

For the Goose and Gander

By Viola Brothers Shore

FOR THE GOOSE—
WHO would you rather follow through the woods—a guide that had been through before, or one with a handsome uniform? Why not listen to your mother once in a while.

A man that a woman has just refused to kiss would always rather think she was an iceberg than a volcano.

A man that'll learn to notice what his girl wears, don't need to ever be afraid of runnin' outa interestin' conversation.

FOR THE GANDER—
Livin' is like any other trade. You gotta serve an apprenticeship before you're really ready to begin.

An ignorant man with table manners has got a better chance with women than a college professor with a dirty collar.

Notin' gets on your nerves so much as a person that don't know when to laugh. Except one that don't know when to stop.

(Copyright.)

VICTORIOUS SOPHOMORES PERMITTED TO WEAR SMOCKS

In the annual smock fight between the sophomores and juniors of the University of Pennsylvania school of fine arts the sophomores were the victors and consequently now have the right to wear smocks in the drafting room. The picture shows Marvin Schadel of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the sophomore class, being carried from the battlefield by his triumphant classmates.

WHEN YOU'RE AWAY

By Douglas Malloch

THEY'VE written books
With less to say
Than how life looks
When you're away.
I wish my pen
Could tell you how
I need you then,
I miss you now.

No song's a song,
No flow'r a flow'r,
The world's all wrong
Each day, each hour.
Each day, each night,
I look about,
But nothing's bright
With you left out.

So here's a blot,
A tear or two,
To tell you what
You ought to do:
The world's all gray,
The sky's all black,
When you're away—
So come right back!
(© 1929, Douglas Malloch.)

GIRLIGAGG

"They separate the sheep from the goats in Heaven," said Flippant Flo, "but they both look alike in Wall Street."

The Understanding Heart

By F. A. WALKER

IN ALL history, sacred and profane, there is no more interesting figure than that of King Solomon. Wise beyond the other rulers of his time, his reputation stretches over from the days of the Old Testament into the records inscribed by the writers of the Christian era and he stands as the type of magnificence and wisdom. You will find much to interest you in reading the story of Bathsheba, the mother of Solomon.

The most interesting event in Solomon's life is recorded in First Kings, third chapter, beginning with the fifth verse. Somewhat condensed it reads as follows:

"In Gibeon the Lord appeared to Solomon . . . and God said, 'ask what I shall give thee.' And Solomon said . . . 'Thou hast made Thy servant king instead of David my father, and I am but a little child. I know not how to go out or come in . . . Give therefore Thy servant an understanding heart to judge Thy people, that I may discern between good and bad, for who is able to judge this Thy so great a people?' . . . And God said unto him, 'Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself, nor hast asked for thyself long life, neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies . . . Behold I have done according to thy words; so, I have given thee a wise and understanding heart . . . and I have also given thee that which thou hast not asked, both riches, and honor, so that there shall not be any . . . like unto thee."

The great trouble with the most of us is that we lack an understanding heart. Parents do not have an understanding heart in the consideration of their children and children lack it regarding their parents.

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

If our public officials could have an understanding heart when they consider the problems of the people how much more wisely they would govern.

If the heads of nations could have understanding hearts how completely the faculty would take the places of armies and battlefields, bloodshed and destruction, in the solution of the world's problems.

We should all cultivate a viewpoint outside ourselves. Selfishness, envy and covetousness are responsible for more evil than all the other human characteristics.

The golden rule has in all ages been the basis of religion. Confucius wrote it down before the Christian era began. Mohammed made it a part of his creed, and as far back as there is a trace of any code for human conduct "Do unto others as you would be done by" has been a foundation stone.

It is the understanding heart that establishes the basis for that reciprocity of action. It is the understanding heart that tells us when we have put our neighbor on an equality with ourselves and made due allowance for whatever difference there may be in wealth, in position, in intelligence and in opportunity.

We pray for a good many things we do not need. We seek for what we think would be blessings, not knowing that we are better off without them. How few of us have, and how many fewer of us seek to have, that broad view of life, that generous attitude of mind, that clarity of vision and liberality of thought which constitutes the thing which Solomon asked above all other things and which choice received so thorough commendation.

It is a short prayer, easily learned and quickly said: "Give me, O Lord, an understanding heart."

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Service in Business

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

SERVICE in business means more than merely satisfying a public need. In his interesting lecture, "Acres of Diamonds," Dr. Russell Conwell relates an experience which occurred when he was a young man clerking in a store. A customer desired to purchase a jack knife, but there were no jack knives in the store for sale. Another customer who desired the same article left the store dissatisfied. By the time the third customer asked for the same article plenty of jack knives were on the counter for sale.

While the public creates the demand which business must satisfy, Service implies more than just satisfying this demand. Service in business should create a spirit of good will, of personal interest, mutual trust and comradeship. Service demands not only that the customer be furnished with a jack knife when he asks for it, but also, that when he desires another one he will return to the same counter for it. The most important thing is not that a transaction was made that may have brought a profit to the dealer, but that through that satisfaction which the customer had in the transaction other people will be influenced to trade at the same place.

Service in business has a sort of plus value. It is a sort of spirit which satisfies a public in such a way that it creates good will. The old policy of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" can no longer be the creed of a successful business career. Self-preservation is not the first law of life in the realm of human values, and business is more concerned with human than material values.

The most serious loss to any business concern is not money but satisfied patronage. In the competition of the modern business world where one concern endeavors to secure advantage at the expense of its competitor, the element which ultimately wins is something more than the quality of the article produced; it is that, but also SERVICE on the higher levels, which creates confidence, mutual understanding, permanent satisfaction and good will.

(© 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Clock-Watcher

Definition of a "clock watcher": A quitter.—New York American.

Foods That Nourish

By NELLIE MAXWELL

MOTHERS who are the busiest people in the world need help often in planning meals. To have them wholesome, attractive, and at the same time economical as to one's income, is not the easiest thing in the world.

With small children, the meals must be simple but wholesome. This rule will work for those in the family who are aged.

Nourishing soups, cream of vegetable or mixed vegetable soups are always good. Young children and old people should have food that is easy of digestion.

Active adults are able to digest various combinations of foods, but with children the less complicated food is best.

Custards, junkets, rice and tapioca for puddings will be easy of preparation and are not taxing on the digestion. Fresh fruits, dried fruits, baked apples and prunes are all desirable.

Since the first and most important division of the year is its charting into months, each of which began with the Kalends, the evolution of the word "calendar" is easily comprehensible.

(Copyright.)

The 'Calendar'

By JEAN NEWTON

"CALENDAR," the word which designates the chart by which we reckon and arrange the divisions of the year into months, weeks and days, has a story in its name.

It comes to us from the Latin "kalenderium," an account book, which goes back to "calends" or "kalends"—and there we have the story.

The Romans made a threefold division of the month into Kalends, Nones and Ides. The "Ides of March" is familiar to every reader of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." In certain months the Nones fell on the 7th, the Ides on the 15th; in other months the Nones came on the 5th, the Ides on the 13th. But the Kalends came always on the 11th of the month.

Since the first and most important division of the year is its charting into months, each of which began with the Kalends, the evolution of the word "calendar" is easily comprehensible.

(Copyright.)

Where Hoovers Will Attend Worship

The Orthodox Friends' meeting house at Irving and Thirteenth streets, N. W., Washington, where Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will attend services during their occupancy of the White House.

Children's Bedtime Story

"MY DARLING," said Mother Hippopotamus to her baby, "no one knows how much I love you."

Mother Hippopotamus was lying in her pool, her head partly under the water, but her nostrils were above so she could breathe the air, and her mouth was above so she could speak to her baby.

The baby was a very big baby, though Mother Hippopotamus thought it was a very cunning "little dear."

"They come to the oo," Mother Hippopotamus went on, "and they think I'm big and ugly and that my skin is coarse and that I haven't any thoughts in my big head.

"I don't believe they think I feel very much. I don't believe they know what a loving, loving heart Mother Hippopotamus has.

"Oh, but they know so little! It is true I yawn right before them and show my great cavern-like mouth and jaw. But why shouldn't I yawn before them? I am not interested in them, and I do not find their society exciting. I can't talk their talk and they can't talk mine, and we don't understand each other by words or gestures.

"Of course it may not be very polite to yawn right in some one's face. I notice that people cover up their mouths with their hands when they yawn. But if I tried to cover up my mouth I'd get all tangled up in myself, I'm sure. It would be much too much of a job.

"But oh, my darling, how a mother hippo does love her baby. There is no mother who loves her child any more, I'm sure.

"And why shouldn't we love our babies? What could be more beautiful than a hippopotamus baby? I wouldn't ask this question of a person, for the answer would not be correct according to my way of thinking.

"My answer would be: 'There is nothing more beautiful than a hippo baby.'"

Mother Hippopotamus looked and saw that her child was just about asleep. "I will soothe him and see that he goes sound, sound asleep," she said.

So Mother Hippopotamus sang the Hippopotamus Lullaby:

Go to sleep, my dear little hippo,
Go to sleep, my own little pet,
And though other mothers boast of their babies,
You're the loveliest baby of all, I bet!

"I don't suppose," Mother Hipposaid to herself, "I should use slang like that before the dear—though I don't believe he heard it. But I pick up slang from humans and use it in my hippopotamus way.

"How different are the ways of humans from my ways. They do things in the daytime and seem to be rushing about them.

"But at night I become far more wide-awake and then it is I like to play and eat.

"When I lived in the African jungle I would sleep during the daytime and at night go marketing for my vegetables and such food.

"My thick skin used to be of great protection to me then as my legs are short and when I scraped my body against the ground it did not hurt because my skin was the right sort of a skin for the kind of traveling which I did.

"Some one taking our picture said of the baby: 'He has a face only a mother could love.'"

"And I know what he meant! He meant that only a mother could fully appreciate his great beauty and charm and loveliness.

"I understand!

"Ah, my baby is waking up now. I must whisper sweet nothings, as they say, in his ear."

(Copyright.)

A WOMAN'S HEAD

is level and her judgment good when she puts her faith in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There is no beauty without good health. Nobody expects to become really beautiful from the use of complexion beautifiers. Bright eyes, clear skin, and rosy cheeks, follow the use of the "Prescription." All dealers.

Every woman requires a tonic and berrine at some period of her life. Whether suffering from nervousness, dizziness, faintness or general debility, the "Prescription" benefits. Mrs. Clara Pearce, 1920 Stewart St., Richmond, Va., said:—"When I have felt weak, over-tired and nervous, the 'Prescription' has given me new life and energy. When I had headaches and other pains it gave me almost instant relief."

Mothers—Try Mild Children's Musterole

Of course, you know good old Musterole; how quickly, how easily it relieves chest colds, sore throat, rheumatic and neuralgic pain, sore joints and muscles, stiff neck and lumbago.

We also want you to know CHILDREN'S MUSTEROLE—Musterole in milder form. Unexcelled for relief of croupy coughs and colds; it penetrates, soothes and relieves without the blister of the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Keep a jar handy. It comes ready to apply instantly, without fuss or bother.

Better than a mustard plaster

Garfield Tea

Was Your Grandmother's Remedy

For every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashioned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

She's Yours
He—If I asked you to marry me, dear, what would you say?
She—Guess.
He—Well—er—what would it rhyme with?
She—Guess—Answers.

Attend the Party
In Spite of Cold!
Don't despair some day your social calendar is full, and you awake with a miserable cold. Be rid of it by noon! You can, if you know the secret: Pape's Cold Compound soon settles any cold, yes, even one that has reached deep in the throat or lungs.—Adv.

Literally
Bill—Ethel's father is very outspoken, isn't he?
Jack—Yes, I hear he tells every young man who calls on her to get out and stay out.

IT STARTS in the STOMACH
HAVE YOU ever suspected that most of the common illnesses of men and women have their beginnings in stomach disorders? That lost vitality, those frequent headaches, that cold you can't shake off—your stomach is probably responsible. Everyone needs the soothing, regular action of a reliable stomach remedy like PE-RU-NA—known for over fifty years as the World's Greatest Stomach Remedy. It clears away that congested, catarrhal condition which afflicts so many people who never even suspect their real trouble! One bottle of PE-RU-NA will soon tone up your digestion—and give you a new joy in life! Your druggist has this time-honored remedy. Don't wait—buy a bottle and begin taking it today.

ASTHMA
DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA REMEDY
for the prompt relief of Asthma and Hay Fever. Ask your druggist for it. 25 cents and one dollar. Write for FREE SAMPLE.
Northrup & Lyman Co., Inc., Buffalo, N.Y.
Dr. J. D. KELLOGG'S REMEDY
Feel Dizzy?
Headache, bilious, constipated? Take Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Remedy— tonight. This mild, safe, vegetable remedy will have you feeling fine by morning. You'll enjoy free, thorough bowel action without a sign of straining or discomfort.
Make the test tonight—
DR TO NIGHT
TOMORROW ALRIGHT
At Druggists—only 25c
W. N. U., BALTIMORE, MD., 8-1929.