In Ike, of Tyrone, a brakeman on the Bald Eagle railroad, was very seriously injured Saturday morning about 11:30 o'clock, near the Pennsylvania freight station, Bellefonte. He was standing on top of a tank car, trying to apply a brake, when the shifter of which he was unmindful, struck the tank car. He was thrown to the track and being caught by the journal boxes, was dragged to the frog before the engineer could stop. It was at the frog that he received serious injuries. The ambulance was summoned, and he was removed to the Centre County Hospital, where it was revealed that he had sustained serious injuries to the chest, head and hip.

MOST FIRE ALARMS GIVEN BY TELEPHONE

Subscribers Urged to Refrain from Asking Operator Location of Blaze

Every telephone, whether in the home or business establishment, is a potential saver of property—and often a saver of life—in case of fire. This is evidenced by the fact that a majority of the alarms turned in throughout Pennsylvania in recent years have reached fire companies via telephone, according to records compiled in many cities and towns.

Ignorance of the location of the neighborhood fire signal box, or its remoteness from the scene of the outbreak, are frequently responsible for the use of the telephone by persons sending in alarms. Telephoning an alarm has the advantage of enabling the person flashing the warning to designate the exact scene of the blaze. When a fire signal box is used, firemen are forced to proceed directly to its location, which may be some distance from the burning building.

To the farmer, the telephone affords the only agency through which firemen may be summoned hurriedly. Many farm buildings in Pennsylvania have been saved because telephones were available in the homes of the farmers affected.

In connection with the use of the telephone in case of fire, telephone officials have repeatedly emphasized the fact that subscribers should refrain from calling the operator to ask the location of a blaze.

If scores or hundreds of curiosity calls are made when a fire breaks out, it is impossible for the operator to distinguish between vitally important calls for ambulances, physicians or additional fire apparatus and the calls of the merely curious.

Life and death may depend upon the rapidity with which these emergency calls are handled and the switchboard must be kept clear to receive them.

FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College.

FEED GRAIN TO LAMBS—Young lambs should be creep-fed as soon as they are old enough to eat grain, which is at about two weeks of age. Use a ration composed of 300 pounds of cracked corn, 200 pounds of crushed oats, and 50 pounds of oil meal.

GROW EMERGENCY HAY—Soybeans are recommended by Penn State farm crops specialists as an excellent emergency hay crop. The soybeans is tolerant of acid soils and produces a hay of high protein content and feeding value comparable to alfalfa.

PREPARE GARDEN SOIL—Improve the tilth of garden soil by applying at least 20 tons of well-rotted manure per acre or by plowing under a green manuring crop. Lime and drainage where needed, also aid in soil preparation.

HAVE HORSES READY—Putting the farm horses into the hard spring grind without preparation is an inadvisable practice. Good care and proper feed are essential in conditioning them for the season's work.

CHICKS NEED CLEAN GROUND—Raise the chicks on ground where no fowls of any age have been allowed to run for at least two weeks, and where no poultry manure has been spread during that time. In the absence of such favorable conditions, grow the chicks in complete confinement.

TUNE IN COLLEGE RADIO—Timely talks on agricultural topics are broadcast from the Pennsylvania State College station WPSC at 12 o'clock noon every day except Saturday and Sunday. The station operates on 1230 kilocycles or 243.8 meters.

KEEP OUT OF THE "DUMPS"

PEOPLE who wouldn't think of going to any but a good, reputable dealer for food, clothing or furniture, patronize the worst kind of 'dumps' when it comes time to buy a tire.

They do this thinking it is necessary in order to get a tire bargain.

We'll sell you a Goodyear—"The World's Greatest Tire"—the GOODYEAR ALL-WEATHER TREAD Balloon—at a price as low as you can get anywhere.

MORE PEOPLE BUY GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ANY OTHER KIND.
