

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to wince or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicine that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given them a fair trial and I expect to take two more bottles of the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHARLES MORGAN, R. F. D. 1, Tully, N. Y.

The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT CIRCUS ANIMALS

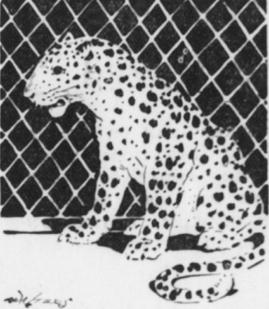

"THERE is going to be a week of every year set aside," said one of the horses in the circus, "when people will go about with their pockets full of lumps of sugar and horses will all be given a special treat."

"It will be called something like being-kind-to-animal week. And it will show people how nice it is to be kind to animals and how much better they will feel for being kind."

"Then it is hoped people will continue being kind all the time, of course. But this week will show people the nice things there are to be done."

"And anyone seeing people unkind or cruel to animals will stop them and make them feel ashamed of themselves for bullying and ill-treating and being thoughtless and unfair."

"It sounds like a wonderful idea," said another circus horse. And the other circus horses said, "Neigh, neigh," which was their way of saying, "Yes, yes!"

"Sometimes, All the Time," Said the Leopard.

"It began a year ago, I believe," said the first circus horse, "and this year will be the second year of it."

"Neigh, neigh, good, good," said the other circus horses.

"Some can't tell me from Neighbor Rhinoceros," said the circus Hippopotamus. "People come and stand before me and they say, 'Is that a rhinoceros or is that a hippopotamus? It's one of those big animals, anyway.' Now, did you ever hear of anything so unintelligent?"

"Never," said the circus rhinoceros. "Of course, it is true we're big animals, but such ignorance is absurd. It is as though we saw a boy and a girl coming along and we said, 'Which is the boy and which is the girl? One or the other is the boy and the other one is the girl!'"

"Just as absurd," said the circus hippopotamus.

"They say that the people in charge of us answer questions about us all the time and that the ignorance shown toward us is very great," the hippopotamus continued. "And it is also said by those in charge of us that grownups know far less than children, yet they're supposed to be bigger and wiser."

"Of course grownups may know more about other things; but, alas! they don't know as much as they should about the hippopotamus and the rhinoceros."

"People don't know the difference between us half the time," said the leopard and the tiger together.

"Sometimes, all the time," said the leopard.

"Sometimes, three-quarters of the time," said the tiger.

"It is said," the leopard continued, "that that is one of the reasons the hyena laughs so much. Yes, a wise man known as Dexter Fellowes, who has much to do with the circus, said that was the reason. And I'm sure he must be right. For Dexter Fellowes is very wise, very wise, indeed."

"So they all say," the tiger remarked. "I must say I have never talked to him long enough to tell for myself, but I'm sure everyone must be right."

"So many couldn't be wrong, especially when it is about one of their own kind."

"People know more about people than they do about animals. Well, I would like it if Dexter Fellowes would come and have a chat with me some time. But I don't believe he will. He said to me once, 'Tiger, you're a handsome fellow, but I wouldn't choose you for my pal.'"

"So I think he prefers to keep a respectful distance from me. But certainly everyone thinks the 'world and all,' as they say, of him. And I'll tell you one thing, leopard."

"Yes," said the leopard, "pray tell it to me."

"And that is," the tiger went on, "that he most certainly has the most marvelous and the most patient disposition I've ever seen in all my circus life. And he can tell most beautiful stories of the circus. Oh, they sound so grand and so magnificent, and he can tell them so easily. He's just a born story teller, and he tells the truth, too. Oh, my, yes, he tells the truth!"

Farrell Mac Donald

One of the most versatile actors in the "movies" is Farrell Mac Donald, a native of Waterbury, Conn. He is a real veteran of the screen and is well liked. Before entering the pictures he had a varied stage experience. Among some of his latest pictures are "Surprise," "Mother Knows Best," "Me, Gangster," "Riley the Cop." He portrays the title role in the latter.

FARM IMPLEMENT EXPORTS

WITHIN the memory of most readers of this feature modern machinery has replaced older methods of threshing both wheat and oats; automatic planters have supplanted hand labor in sowing the seed, and the tractor has taken the place of the horse. In other words, much of the hard and irksome farm labor is now done by machine power. Our country has excelled all other countries in the world in the manufacture as well as in the practical use of farm implements.

Most interesting is the report of the United States Department of Commerce for the year 1928 which states that the value of agricultural implements exported to other countries amounted to the large sum of $116,000,000, the highest total on record for any single year. The three countries which made the largest purchases were Canada, Argentina and Russia. Canada exceeded all three countries in purchases, which were 52 per cent of an increase over 1927 and 39 per cent of the entire amount exported in 1928. It is interesting to note that tractors and threshing machines were the two principal items sold to Canada. Argentina increased its purchases over 1927 by 25 per cent, the first increase recorded by them in the last five years, which like Canada bought mostly tractors and threshers. Russia showed an increase in purchases of 40 per cent over 1927, tractors being one-half of the shipments. The only country which showed a marked decrease in 1928 over 1927 in purchases of American farm implements was France, which decrease was about 35 per cent.

Countries are depending more and more upon the United States not only for financial resources in the form of colossal loans but also for that most important form of all machinery, farm implements. The stability of a country depends upon its productive power. Canada, Argentina and Russia are laying deep foundations for future prosperity by developing and increasing the productive possibilities of the soil.

Doubtless manufacturers, profited financially through these high exports but it must also be recognized that through them a very definite contribution has been made toward international prosperity and racial advancement.

PIN MONEY

WOULDN'T it be awful, girls, if we had to spend all our pin money on pins? But there was a time when court ladies were considered fortunate to be able to buy them.

The expression and the custom of supplying women with an allowance for fancies comes down to us from the time when pins were so expensive that only the wealthiest women could afford them.

For a long time after the invention of pins, in the fourteenth century, it was not extraordinary for women to be endowed at their marriage with a sum of money for the purchase of pins.

At one time a law was passed in England permitting the maker of pins to sell them only on January 1 and 2. Then the wealthy city ladies flocked to the shops, provided with "pin money."

The early pins were of two parts—the stem and the head of wound wire soldered to it.

Though our marvelous manufacturing methods have revolutionized the pin industry so that the product is now turned out by the million and several hundred can be bought for a few cents, pin money still survives.

May the scorn implied by the oft-used expression, "It isn't worth a pin," which its cheapness has brought upon it, be counterbalanced in the heart of that most important adjunct of modern femininity by this little appreciation of its former glory!

FOR THE GOOSE—IT AIN'T how much you got that makes you contented, but how much you got that you really like.

Ruts holds more people than iron chains. But nowadays nobody ever stays in an apartment long enough to make a voting address let alone a rut.

Since inferiority complexes got so much publicity, a woman is scared to tell her husband his pants is shiny, for fear some night he'll pick up an ax and kill her.

How much conversation would there be in the world if nobody was allowed to say nothin' good about themselves or nothin' bad about other people?

You might pay too much for what you buy; but it's what you get for nothin' that costs you the most.

Community Building

Salvaging Old Homes Point of Importance

"New homes mark the prosperity of the nation," was the point made by the president of a leading building and loan association, in a recent address. "Salvaging old homes shows a continued pride in community progress, a work of equal economic importance with that of original home buying."

"Walk down the Main street of your town, just as we can walk down the Main streets of a hundred towns, and pick out the properties which are beginning to show need of painting, or re-roofing, or stuccoing. Depreciation only too often affects not only that one house but the entire neighborhood in which it is located. Careful surveys have shown that they are so old or so poorly planned and built that they are now in definite need of complete remodeling both as to exterior, interior and modern equipment, such as heating and wiring."

"Economically, such reconstruction is sound, provided only that the location of the property is good and that the original construction is of such quality that remodeling is worth while. No use in re-roofing a house with sagging floor joists. Better tear it down."

"Financing new homes must always be the foremost building and loan work. But rebuilding old homes and improving comparatively new ones becomes more important yearly as the influence and ability to serve of the building and loan association grows with increasing resources. During 1928 one building and loan association allowed a total of 1,949 home loans, aggregating $11,805,752, of which 784, totaling $1,288,900, were rebuilding or remodeling loans. In comparison 596 loans of this type allowed during 1927 totaled $972,550. Thus, we see a decided increase in calls for home improvement."

Must Work Together for Community Chest

Elwood Street, director of the community chest, told the Laymen's League of All Souls' Unitarian church, Indianapolis, that "social work as practiced by the agencies which make up the community chest is the age-old spirit of charity in modern guise."

"We have found, however," said Mr. Street, "that these agencies cannot be effective if each goes at its work by itself. We have learned that we must have co-operation and teamwork if these agencies are to work effectively and economically and serve the community adequately."

"The consequence of our seeing the community as a whole and of our realization of the need of unity in social planning and action has been the creation of our council of social agencies for effective planning and for the improvement of methods and of the community chest as a means of joint finance with resultant economy in money raising and efficiency in money spending."

Looking to the Future

The biggest waste of the country today is in its human resources. This waste is represented in delinquency, crime and dependency of scores of kinds. It comes from a policy of neglect and indifference, chiefly in the case of youth. The home, church and school have their obligations with youth; but frequently the work of one or all of these needs to be supplemented. That is the function of the Scout and Camp Fire program. It is calculated to develop qualities of character and good citizenship. Its value has been attested by the results secured. Bringing additional thousands of boys and girls under the influence of these organizations would be the best kind of insurance for community welfare.—Kansas City Times.

Dry Basement Important

Adequate drainage of a basement is vital to any home. Back flowing of sewers means menace to the entire family health, besides rusting the furnace, and piping, rotting the woodwork, warping the finished floors. It can also cause the building to settle, cracking brick and plastered walls, heaving even the basement floor.

There are excellent and not expensive systems of drainage on the market preventing such back flowing of sewers and protecting the underside of the buildings as well as the inside of the basement.

Look into these systems carefully in any remodeling work you are having done or if you are having any trouble with damp or odorous basements.

Developer's Good Work

One small-tax charge on an unimproved tract of land, or many contented residents paying taxes on individual holdings of improved property, which is the better for a town?

The building developer is the man who brings about the change and adds not only directly to the sightliness, comfort and prosperity of his city by his development work, but also indirectly by increasing the taxable value of the property in the community and thus furnishing more money for public improvements.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescriptional product.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the cruelest pangs of colic, or constipation or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.
