Among the young folks in this vicinity who are attending school are: Miss Martha Wert, of Tusseyville, and Miss Marian Dale, of Oak Hall, at Indiana Teachers' College; Miss Margaret Gingrich and Russell Bohn at Lock Haven Teachers' College. S. R. Rishel transacted business in Altoona Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm who conducted the Tavern during the summer months, departed for Hollidaysburg Tuesday, where they expect to engage in business. Miss Hattie Kaup expects to leave Sunday for a visit with friends in Pittsburgh and later go to Philadelphia to make her future home.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping." Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

Idea of Modern Ship Traced to Egyptians

Shipbuilding had its birth on the banks of the Nile, according to the belief of Prof. Elliott Smith, expressed in the London Magazine. Although, he says, at a very early period in the history of mankind logs and floats of various kinds were used by many people to cross narrow sheets of water or for paddling along coastlines, the real history of boat building began when the earliest dwellers on the banks of the Nile tied together bundles of reeds to make floats. These simple craft not only determined the form of the wooden ships that succeeded them, but the methods of construction for making the reed floats, i. e., tying them together with cords, were also adopted when wooden ships came to be built by adding planks to the hollowed-out logs which eventually degenerated into the mere keel of the composite ship. Thus the earliest Egyptian term for shipbuilding was the word signifying "to bind." Even at the present time we still find upon the Nile all these primitive types that are survivals of phases in the history of shipbuilding, some of them more than sixty centuries old.

Annual Victory Over the Powers of Evil

Great crowds assembled at Innerleithen, Peebleshire, Scotland, on a recent Saturday to witness the annual ceremony of "the exorcism," referred to in Sir Walter Scott's "St. Ronan's Well." The origin of the ceremony says the Washington Star, is based on the legendary story of a combat with the devil engaged in by St. Ronan, Innerleithen's patron saint, who died in 737. The patron saint of the public school, who was duly installed and armed with a monk's pastoral staff to "check the devil." Having "checked" him, he saw that the effigy of his satanic majesty was duly destroyed by fire. The ceremony was impressive, and the youth's victory over the devil was roundly cheered by the throng of students.

Power of Colors

Advertising men know a great deal about color psychology. Purple and royal blue lend an air of aristocracy to printed matter. That is why you often find expensive automobiles or high-priced securities presented to prospective buyers in elaborate circulars printed in these colors and in gold, which is also aristocratic. Red, the advertising men say, is a selling color. It has a tendency to excite the acquisitive instinct in men and women. Candles in red boxes sell best. Expensive perfumes sell marvelously in purple, gold and blue containers. A very red dress on a beautiful young woman will often bring the proposal that was withheld for months when more quiet colors were worn, these advertising experts, all men, tell us.—Capper's Weekly.

Bright Little Raymond

Raymond had just begun to go to school. One morning his teacher was trying to impress upon her pupils the idea of self-reliance. It so happened that a certain small boy had been late on this particular morning. His excuse was that his mother had overslept, forgotten to call him, and breakfast was late. Hence the lecture on self-reliance. "You have fathers and mothers to work for you now," concluded the teacher, "but what will you do after you're grown up? Who will work for you then?" Raymond's hand shot up. "Our wives, of course," he replied.—London Tid-Bits.

Health Secrets

More and more we are learning to rely upon nature, rather than upon medicines, for health. If we all followed nature's laws, most of our serious diseases would disappear. Certainly the so-called "diseases of civilization"—affections of the heart and nervous system—would be abolished. Sunlight, fresh air, exercise, right food, avoidance of worry, and the prompt repair of any injury or defect—these are practically all anyone needs to maintain perfect health.—Dr. Fred H. Albee in the American Magazine.

Tallow Trees

In Texas from time to time experiments have been made to cultivate the Japanese tallow tree. This tree bears nuts that contain a rich tallow-like oil that has been found very valuable in the manufacture of high-grade varnishes and other much-needed products. The climatic and soil conditions in that section of Texas are apparently well adapted to the growth of this curious tree, and the experimental gardens have been supplying farmers through that region with young trees with which to experiment.

No Kidding

Mary Katherine, a golden-haired miss of three, is very fond of a neighbor, Mr. D—. She always expects some attention when he is at home and she is seldom disappointed. But one day Mr. D— sat on his porch, apparently absorbed in his own affairs, and did not see the little girl who was patiently waiting on her own porch for him to speak to her. When she could keep quiet no longer she called out, "Mr. D—, quit joking me!"

PAINFUL CORNS

Loosen—Lift Out A little known Japanese herb, the discovery of an eminent German scientist (Dr. Stickle) instantly soothes the corn, callous or wart, then loosens it so that shortly you can lift it right out. This new discovery called "Corn Fly" excites the white blood corpuscles to action and granulates the corn at its root so that it drops out and leaves no trace of scar or soreness. You will also find "Corn Fly Foot Bath Powder" a boon for sore, tired or perspiring feet. "Corn Fly" for corns, 35c, "Corn Fly Foot Bath Powder" 25c, and "Corn Fly Bunion Remedy" 50c, (all three—$1.10 value—for $1.00), are sold under a positive money-back guarantee by Hi-Gene Co., Newark, N. J., or local druggist.
