

PLAYING THE HEALTH MARKET ON MARGIN

Dr. Apple, State Secretary of Health, Draws Interesting Comparison Between Stock Market and "Health Market."

"Two weeks ago, as everybody knows, the greatest break in its history occurred on the New York Stock Exchange. Then it was that literally thousands of men and women, who a few hours before considered themselves rich, woke up sadly to the fact that they were bankrupt. Playing the market on the margin they found themselves unable to meet their loans when the test came, and ruin followed. Money and health are exactly alike in this respect," said Dr. Theodore Appel, Secretary of Health, this week.

"Bad as the situation was, there is an inconceivably worse one in the United States today. Where there were thousands manipulating the money market on margin, there are tens of thousands playing the health market in like fashion. The end results of course will not be as spectacular as was the stock market crash inasmuch as physical bankruptcies do not occur simultaneously. They are continuous performance affairs, crippling individuals here, killing others there. But the situation is none the less pathetic or devastating for that fact.

"A large number of people, wise in their own conceit, including the young, middle aged and even older ones, somehow conclude that they can play health on the margin and win. But it can not be done.

"The person who habitually robs himself of adequate sleep, a proper amount of fresh air, sufficient exercise, and becomes a marginal player through late hours and exhausting and enervating habits, has a day of inevitable reckoning if he persists in his folly. And it is likely to hit him out of a clear sky.

"True, hospital fees, undertaker's accounts and even doctors' bills are enlarged by such practice, but that is little consolation to the fellow who has played the health game 'on margin' and has lost.

"Just remember that health has its fixed and sensible rules. It may be purchased by proper living and judicious care. And it can be suddenly lost by opposite treatment.

"Are you playing the health market on margin? What do you expect to get out of it? Better play safe by investing in proper living, which is the only type of health finance that pays. Life is sweet. Don't kill it by 'margin playing'."

His lifeless body was found hanging in the attic of the Stover residence by his wife. He used a rope to commit the suicidal act. His age was 42 years, 2 months and 8 days. Ill health caused him to take his own life.

On Thursday evening Mr. Fultz and his wife returned from Centre county to Milroy while upon a visiting trip for the benefit of his declining health. His wife was with him at the Stover home to pay a visit there. At 3 o'clock, a half hour before Mrs. Fultz found her dead husband, she talked to him and he uttered no words to indicate that he contemplated the rash act.

Since last August 13 he was unable to work. His illness was due to nervous trouble.

The residence of Mr. Fultz was along Logan street, Reedsville. He leaves his wife whose maiden name was Miss Laura Stover, of Reedsville, a daughter of the late J. O. Stover, formerly of Potters Mills.

He is survived also by two daughters—Miss Mabel A. Fultz, a member of the Freshman class of Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, and Miss Ellen S. Fultz, a member of the seventh grade of the Reedsville High school, and at her parental home.

MAIL PILOT ESCAPES DEATH IN CRASH

A dispatch from Philipsburg dated Sunday, states that "Jack" Webster, air mail pilot, lost in the wilds of Rush township, is in the Philipsburg hospital with a broken arm, left hand and finger broken. He was found by searchers early on Sunday.

Flying west, Webster passed Bellefonte airport at 2:15 Saturday morning. Motor trouble developed and he glided to the ground. The plane with the mail, parachute, his cap and goggles was found hours earlier.

Webster was missing when his wrecked plane was found on the top of Rattlesnake Mountain, 2000 feet above sea level, and an intensive search was started by volunteers and officials of the National Air Transport operators of the route.

Webster told his rescuers he was knocked unconscious as his craft struck the ground and remained so until dawn, when he set out down the mountain through a densely wooded territory.

Reports from the State Hospital at Philipsburg, on Monday, were to the effect that "Jack" Webster will recover. He took nourishment that morning.

Alcoa Green, aged 18, of Philipsburg, is given credit for the finding of the pilot. Robert Custer, Joseph Milson and Miss Green were on their way to see the plane, when the girl saw Webster lying along the road, and wanted to stop. Her companions said "it's only a drunk," and drove on, but she insisted so vehemently that they backed up. As they reached the spot where he lay, Webster feebly called to them that he was the flier, and they rushed him to the hospital.

SMALL GAME CONTINUES PLENTIFUL

Small game continues to be brought in daily by hunters, although few reports from the beginning of the season have included deer killed, the season for which opened beginning of this month.

During October deer proved destructive throughout the State, and have to their credit the killing of sixty-five sheep, and destroying 126 bee hives. Three hundred and seven deer were killed in October by farmers as a protection to property. This is the largest number ever killed in one month since the privilege has been extended.

Below is noted game killed by various hunters hereabouts. In nearly every instance where ringneck pheasants were killed rabbits or squirrel or both, were also bagged:

D. W. Bradford killed a wild turkey, Thursday of last week.
C. M. Arney, a fox.
Paul Bradford, 2 ringnecks.
Thomas Delaney, one ringneck.
Charles B. Smith, one ringneck.

535 MILES OF SNOW FENCE TO BE ERECTED

State Highway Department Preparing for Wintry Blasts—Trucks, Tractors and Scrapers Will Be Fitted With Plows and Emergency Gas Tanks.

Forces of the Department of Highways began marshalling forces for winter activities and the "snow map" in the office of C. A. Eisenberger, in charge of snow removal, is already in position for action. This map, with hundreds of vari-colored pins, is something like a telephone switchboard in its action.

Trucks, tractors and scrapers, busy on roadwork during the construction season, will shortly be fitted with plows and emergency gas tanks. The big rotary plows are fitted on trucks with special power "take-offs" on the forward end of the crankshaft. Rotary plows differ in action from the other lifting the snow and throwing it clear of the highway. The ordinary type is mounted on an offset, pushing the snow, and as it accumulates it is forced to the right, forming in a curb-like manner.

Last year the department erected 2,179,079 feet of snow fence—nearly 413 miles—along certain sections of road where drifts usually formed. The position of the fence was governed by the direction of the prevailing winds. Experience last year proved the need of more fence and the department is contemplating purchase of about 648,000 feet more, which would make a total in use of more than 535 miles.

By December virtually all of the snow fence will be in place and the plowing units in more than a hundred storage sheds ready for action, lined up before the doors like so many fire engines.

Last year the snow removal schedule covered more than 8,500 miles. With new construction the figure this year will be close to 9,000.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION IN NARROWS DISCONTINUED

Road construction in the Penns Valley Narrows, from Hairy John's Park west, will be discontinued this week, but will be taken up next spring and pushed to completion. About one mile of road was graded and received two courses of stone, and is now ready to receive oil and chips which will be applied in the spring.

Unlike in many sections where roads are under construction, no part of the narrows road has been torn up to lie over the winter. This will be greatly appreciated by automobile drivers. There remain something over three miles of road to be built during next year, which will bring the improved road as far west as Woodward.

THE GOODYEAR TIRE ROLLS THROUGH TOWN

The largest automobile tire ever built rolled through town on Tuesday forenoon at 10:15. It was fitted to a bus by two shafts. A short stop was made at Hagan's Garage, distributors for Goodyear tires in this section.

The Goodyear tire is twelve feet high and four feet wide. The rubber giant and wheel weigh 1800 pounds, almost one ton. The tread weighs 600 pounds and the wheel adds 600 more, while the inner tube tips the scales at 125. Forty-five minutes are required to inflate the tire to a pressure of only three pounds. The fabric weighs a "mere" 150 pounds.

The casing is valued at $5000, while its load-carrying capacity is estimated at between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds.

Local Stock Buyer "Snowed Up" in the West.

T. E. Jodon, of Pleasant Gap, the well known stock dealer, left for the Dakotas a few weeks ago to purchase a carload of colts. He drove his car out and during the time of making his purchases encountered a snow storm which tied him up so tight that he was obliged to abandon his car and complete his business by means of horse and sled. He made shipment of the colts and telegraphed a friend at home to look after the animals and the sale, which was scheduled to be held at Mill Creek, Huntingdon county, this week.

Presbyterian Manse Items.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Haugh and little Hubert, of State College, stopped at the Kirkpatrick's on Monday as they were making their return from a visit with some friends at Scranton.

Miss Grace White, teacher of the Armagast school near Bellefonte, was a Sunday visitor in Centre Hall. Her visit was much enjoyed by her relatives, and the Christian Endeavor where she spoke on Sunday evening.

The Christian Endeavor from Centre Hall had three delegates at the C. E. county convention held at Pine Hall Lutheran church on Saturday. These representatives were Miss Grace Smith and the Kirpatrick's.

On last Thursday Rev. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick motored to Holidaysburg to see the Aged Ladies' Home. They took with them the donation of fruits and vegetables which had been given by the church. It was the big day at the Home. A bazaar and cafeteria lunch was held. Several hundred visitors were present. The Rev. T. Stacy Capers of Holidaysburg, was auctioneer of the bazaar. This Home is one of which the Presbyterians may well be proud. If you have forgotten to make your donation and desire to do so, bring it to the home of Miss Grace Smith, or the manse; we will see that it reaches its destination.

HERD OF 300 DEER WILL BE CAPTURED

From the Joe-Win Game Reserve located in Clearfield and Indiana counties, several hundred deer will be trapped to ship to Roosevelt park in Ohio, and Clearwater, Fla., this fall. To the former place 250 deer will be sent and to Florida, 50. By clever means the deer will be ambushed for capture so that no injury will befall them, people acquainted with the methods of such procedure to head the work. The herds of the antlered tribes have become too large to feed on the acreage of land in the Joe-Win park and a thinning out is necessary to protect them. The number of deer in the park at the present time is nearly a thousand head. About four acres of ground to each animal is required to keep it conditioned.
