FARM CALENDAR

TIMELY REMINDERS FROM PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE
SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

Start Plants Early—
 Plants of certain vegetable crops may be started in late winter or early spring in sunny windows, a hotbed, or a coldframe. This practice enables the gardener to have plants well advanced when the weather permits planting in the open ground. Good plants also result in earlier maturity and larger yields of most crops.

Improve Girls' Rooms—
 Showing how to provide convenient arrangement of appropriate furniture, use a harmonious color scheme, and make care and cleaning easy, the Girl's Own Home project has improved thousands of farm girls' rooms at low cost. Your county home economics extension department representative can explain the plans.

Protect from Lightning—
 For lightning protection, it is well to ground to earth every electric entrance to any farm building on the outside even though the system is connected to a water pipe on the inside.

Beautiful Home Grounds—
 Garden arbors often can be used to screen unsightly objects. These can be made easily at home now and get out later. Vines, such as climbing roses, clematis, polygonum, and wistaria, may be planted in the spring and trained over the arbor.

Tone Up Young Pigs—
 Exercise, sunshine, good water, clean surroundings, and plenty of green succulent feed are nature's tonics for young pigs. Provide these for the infant porkers.

Spray Berry Plants—
 Black raspberries should be sprayed every year for the control of anthracnose and other fungous diseases, say State College plant specialists. Spray other brambles as they need it.
