Poisonous Insects in Jungles of Bolivia

In the jungles along the River Beni, in Bolivia, are found some of the most malignant blood-sucking insects in the world.

Here lives the apasana, a bird-eating spider, attaining a length of from 8 to 10 inches, whose poisonous bite is sometimes fatal. It has a body resembling a ball of wool, with black hairs on its body and red ones on its legs. Its eyes are black and quick moving, with a most malevolent expression. It is very active and jumps about two feet at a single bound.

The palo santo ant, a fire ant, which lives in hollow-stemmed trees, is common here. A touch on this tree brings down a shower of the ants, whose bites feel like red-hot coals, the sting lasting for hours.

Other plagues are the zaputana, an almost invisible insect which lies in the grass, bites the legs of men and causes an almost intolerable itching; the guano, a bug which lives in the sand and whose bite is usually fatal; the baregul, a sand fly with a painful sting; sweat bees, which suck the perspiration from the hair; the anopheles or malaria-carrying mosquito, and wasps, ticks and jiggers.—New York Times.

Recalling Old Times and the Stereopticon

"What has become of the stereopticon lecturer," asked an old Washingtonian the other day.

"I remember when they used to be popular here in the city and crowds turned out to listen to them and to look at the slides.

"When he wanted a slide changed he would push a buzzer, clearly audible to the audience. Sometimes the operator of the machine would either be asleep or talking and failed to hear it.

"This necessitated a number of extra sharp buzzes on the button. We were patient with him, though, even if occasionally he was describing the Leaning Tower of Pisa while a picture of the ruins of the Coliseum was being shown on the screen.

"Then there was the era of illustrated songs, when a sour tenor sang maudlin songs about some girl who lived in a village by the sea. They were foolishly sentimental things, but we managed to get a kick out of it. Of course we didn't have the diversions in those days that occupy us now. Imagine our young generation attending a stereopticon performance." We can't.—Washington Star.

Young Financier

Don't dismiss this as a made-up story, for it happens to be based upon an actual happening.

A boy in a town not far away called at a store to say he had come to pay a bill owed by his father. "No hurry about it," said the merchant. "I will send him a statement."

The boy insisted he was there to settle the account, so it was figured up and the money paid.

"Now give me the 2 cents it would have cost you to mail the bill," suggested the lad, who would seem to have in him the making of a shrewd financier. He got the 2 cents and went away satisfied.—Brookton (Mass.) Enterprise.

England's Oldest House

Minster abbey, in the Isle of Thanet, is said to be the oldest house in England. It is in the market by order of the trustees of the late Lord Conynham, the fifth marquis. It is said to be a fine example of an Eleventh-century Norman manor house, renovated about 1413, the house being built on the site of Edburga's monastery of Saints Peter and Paul, founded early in the Eighth century and destroyed in the Ninth by the Danes. The building is specifically described in Domesday book as Thanet manor, and is said to have been the only manor in the island in Saxon times.

A RACING PILOT'S Slant on Everyday Motoring—
by Ralph Hepburn

Watch the Other Fellow

THE accident statistics show that motorists do not realize that an automobile improperly driven or not well kept is a dangerous vehicle.

Racing drivers keep their personal cars in the best possible adjustment. Most race drivers are able to handle their cars perfectly but they give a great deal of attention to brake adjustment, tire inflation and proper lubrication.

It may seem strange that the average American highway should be more dangerous than the speedway, yet, this is the fact, due largely to thoughtlessness of many otherwise normal people.

On the race track we know what our competitors are going to do under most circumstances or emergencies. But who can tell on the highway whether or not the driver in front of you is going to swerve out at you just as you are passing him? This sort of thing is done times without number, in order to avoid holes, an animal, a hat, or what not.

It is all right if the scene is a country road and the next car is fifty or more feet back, but thoughtless or incompetent drivers do it in congested traffic, when cars are running two and three abreast. They have no consideration for anyone else on the road. And the result is accidents.

They turn corners without giving proper signals to those behind. They turn corners too fast in ninety cases out of every hundred. And when stopped by the traffic lights, they itch to make a quick getaway. It is this latter practice which causes a large number of minor accidents and some serious ones.

Here now, I want to ask you a question. Think of ten people you know best who have automobiles. Do you know how many times they have received tickets for traffic violations? How many have you received? Now listen carefully. I know, personally, ten race drivers who have never been in an accident on a public highway and who have never been arrested for breaking traffic rules. One of these drivers has been driving since 1898. (He drove the second automobile ever to come to this country). He has been driving different makes of cars for 32 years and has never been in an accident nor caused one.
He doesn't drive around corners fast. He doesn't drive right up to another car and slap on his brakes; he doesn't weave in and out of traffic; he doesn't go any faster than he considers safe for himself or the public on the highway; he never races to beat a light, and in all these years he has never had an automobile accident. Think of it!
In these days of super-luxurious, full-vision, all-steel bodied cars, equipped with the best brakes American engineers have been able to design, the papers are still full of delugingly to the loss of the rights of others.
