Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dunkle, of Punxsutawney, are visiting at the J. B. Fortney home, at Tusseyville.

If you are interested in the purchase of real estate in Gregg township, read the adv. by C. F. Long, Spring Mills.

George O. Benner continues to improve following an operation at the Lewistown hospital, but does not leave the house.

Progress Grange will hold a regular meeting on Saturday evening, 7:30 o'clock. Election of officers will be an item of business.—G. W. Ralston, sec'y.

The Bell Telephone Company spent $18,000 in improving its lines in the Lewistown area. The work will be completed by the first of the month.

The Mifflinburg Body company has a contract with the Austin company, at Butler, to build light truck bodies for the manufacturers of the bantam cars.

Robert D. Musser, of Spring Mills, found his way to town the latter part of last week. He is a former county auditor and continues to interest himself in political affairs.

R. D. Schlegel, of Fleetwood, and Mrs. A. M. Schaeffer, of Allentown, father and sister, respectively, of Mrs. D. R. Keener, were guests over Sunday at the Reformed parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Allis were in New York State for ten days or more. Mr. Allis attended a convention of milk men in Binghamton, and after that joined Mrs. Allis in Syracuse at the home of their son, Manley Allis.

Up to Tuesday 29,400 licenses for killing antlerless deer were issued by the State Game Commission. Six full counties and parts of 17 other counties will be thrown open for the special doe season, last of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Long and daughter, Miss Mary Long, of Penns Cave, on Sunday drove to Bellevue, Ohio, where they attended the funeral of Monday, of Clyde Ryer, a nephew. A brief account of the death appears in this issue.

The telephone line leading west from Centre Hall to the Wm. S. Brooks farm, tenanted by George Ralston, is being rebuilt by the farmers it serves. About fifty per cent. of the poles are being replaced, and new cross arms are being supplied where needed.

The Food Class under the supervision of Mrs. Alexon, Extension worker at State College, will meet at the home of Mrs. Clyde Smith, Wednesday morning, December 3, at 9:30. Anyone wishing to attend these classes will be welcome.

The State Game Commission acknowledges scarcity of rabbits in some sections but advises the ringneck pheasant from and destruction of the young. There is no authentic proof that the ringnecks in any way disturb young rabbits.

The Colyer school, taught by Ernest Wagner, has the largest enrollment of any one-room school house in Potter township. Fifty scholars are in daily attendance, and Mr. Wagner, who is teaching his first term of school, is said to be proving quite successful.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxell Harshbarger and daughter, also the former's father, Calvin Harshbarger, of Altoona, were with friends and relatives about Pottery Mills and other points on Sunday. Mr. Harshbarger is one of the Harshbarger brothers conducting an extensive milk distributing business in Altoona.

Floyd E. Snyder had his house wired for electric lighting. The work was done by Edgar Sommers, contractor, assisted by G. Frank Smith. Mr. Sommers, it is understood, secured a number of wiring contracts that will keep his men employed well into January. Harold Durst, of town, like Mr. Smith, is one of his regular employes.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hackenberg, of Smulton, on Tuesday morning started to drive by auto to Clarence to visit their son, Charles Hackenberg and family, but on reaching Bellefonte met their daughter-in-law there and so returned home, reaching Centre Hall by noon. The younger Mr. Hackenberg is principal of the High school at Clarence and is making a good record there.

On Sunday afternoon two auto loads of Bellwood folk arrived at the home of Harry W. Dinger, near town, to call on Mrs. E. M. Steiffer. The following comprised the party: Fred Balsbach, editor of the Bellwood Bulletin, Mrs. Balsbach, Mrs. Jennie McCracken and sister, Miss Lillian Jeffries; also, Howard Jeffries and lady friend, from Pittsburgh. All were much pleased with their visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Breen and son, Rome Breen, of Rockford, Ill., were in the East on a visit to friends and relatives. They came by car three weeks ago and started back home on Tuesday. The elder Breons are living retired from an active farm life, while the son is a general merchant in the thriving Illinois town. At State College the westerners visited John Breen, a brother of the senior Mr. Breen, and east of Centre Hall, William H. Breen, also a relative, was a host, and in Centre Hall Miss Margaret Scholl, proprietress of the Hotel restaurant, entertained them.

The local lodge of Odd Fellows has arranged to render a half hour entertainment program at each meeting for the present. Two of the programs have already been given and they proved to be beneficial. Attendance has been increased and a more active interest in the lodge created. The programs so far have consisted of music, plays, stunts, contests, etc., and it is predicted that each night the numbers will be more interesting. It is urged that all members attend more regularly and thus give encouragement to those assigned or volunteer to entertain.

Slaves Gate in New Orleans ... an Interesting Relic

Iron Gate Forged by Slaves

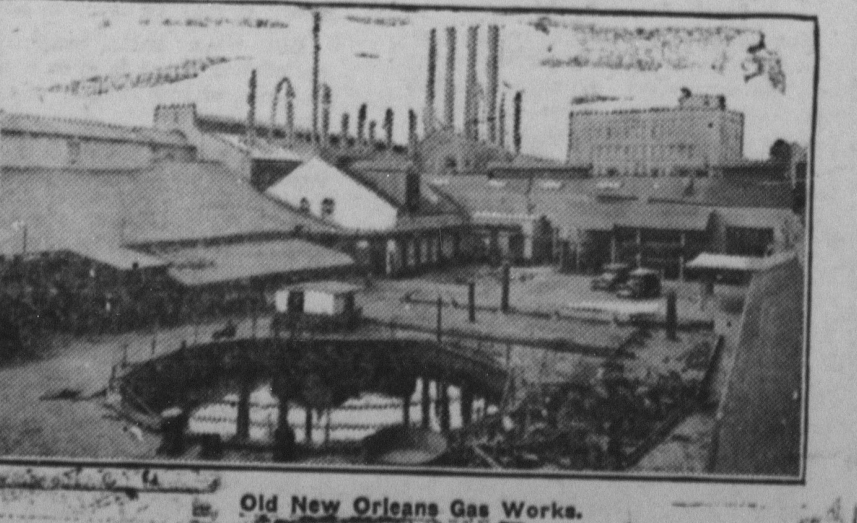

It was to keep slaves from running away that the wrought iron gate was made so high at the entrance to the old gas works in New Orleans; and no doubt it was by slaves that these bars and scrolls were shaped and welded into so fine a composition of beauty and strength. For in New Orleans, whose craftsmanship in iron was equalled only by one or two other American cities, it is known that many of the most skillful metal workers were slaves.

This gate is about twenty feet high and wide enough to let two vehicles pass. Yet its members are all so nicely proportioned that its effect is one of beauty rather than of overpowering size. Just when it was erected might be difficult to learn. The furnaces within the gas works had been kept going continuously for ninety-three years, when they were lately extinguished, because new supplies of natural gas make them no longer necessary except as a reserve.

The gate may have been as old as the fires. It opens and closes as well as ever and its lamp and scrolls look as if their airy grace might remain for another hundred years.

The gate is of old-fashioned wrought iron throughout, believed to have been floated down the rivers from puddling furnaces in eastern Tennessee.
