FARM CALENDAR

TIMELY REMINDERS FROM PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

In the June Garden—

During June the home gardener should top dress early crops with fertilizer and cultivate them carefully, plant all the warm weather vegetables not seeded in May, sow New Zealand spinach and plant late cabbage the last part of the month.

Stop Cutworm Attacks—

Poison bran mash is recommended as a control for cutworms. These pests are particularly destructive this year, and only prompt action will save vegetables from their attacks. Your county agent can tell you how to mix and apply this treatment.

Repaint in Time—

Repainting should not be postponed until the old coating has flaked badly and much bare wood is exposed. The old coating serves as the foundation for the new covering, and if it is badly chipped and broken, customary methods of repainting do not result in a first-class appearance and a durable repainting job.

Encourage New Growth—

Trees and shrubs planted since the first of the year must be given sufficient water to encourage the formation of new roots and development of the tops.

Provide More Feeders—

As chicks grow their capacity for feed increases, so more hopper space should be provided, say State College poultry specialists.

Pig Pastures Pay—

Pastures for pigs save 133 pounds of grain for every hundred pounds of pork produced. 400 extension demonstrations have proved. Where 20 to 25 pigs are pastured on an acre the new profit is $40 to $50. Sanitation is aided and thriffter pigs are grown.
