

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Miss Betty Gentzell of Robersburg, is a guest of the T. F. Delaney family, at Old Fort. Clayton Homan for the past week suffered much from a boil on his face below the eye. Mrs. T. F. Delaney, daughter Agnes, and Betty Gentzell, spent a few days the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob E. M. Huyett visited his daughters, Mrs. Lella Magee and Mrs. H. O. Alexander, at Wenonah, N. J., over the week end. Mrs. T. M. Gramley and daughter, Miss Orpha Gramley, of Millheim, on Saturday were guests of the Bartholomew family. O. E. Bailey, of Lancaster, for a few days the past week, was the guest of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kerlin. Mrs. Ada Butz, after visiting among friends at various points in Huntingdon and Blair counties, is back to the Lutheran parsonage here. Dorothy Hartley, of Millifield, is at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Hartley, where she will remain until school opens. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Smith Dupp and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Hagan are camping in the Seven Mountains, and while there are entertaining a number of their friends. Bruce Knarr accompanied Wm. F. Colyer on a trip to Baltimore, Md., on Monday, returning Tuesday with a truck load of watermelons, cantaloupes, etc. The Gebhardt clan extend a general invitation to their third annual reunion to be held on Hoffer's park, Middletown, Dauphin county, Saturday, August 15th. Mrs. W. Milford Luse was a guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Harvey, at State College, over the week end. Little Miss Ruth Harvey returned home with Mrs. Luse for a short stay. Miss Myla Spiker, for more than a year employed in the Agricultural Extension department at Penn State College, is taking a part of her vacation for the year at her home here. Mrs. Harry Weaver, of Altoona, was in town for a day last week. She reported business slow and work not plentiful, but that Mr. Weaver had been fortunate in having employment almost every day. W. A. Odenkirk, who had been confined to bed for some weeks, continues to improve and now daily sits in the open for several hours. He is also able to locomote to some extent on his own power. Charley Stump, well known to many here, but now living at Finnywood, Virginia, writes the Reporter that he and his nephew would like to rent a farm somewhere in the valley. So here is a chance for a tenant. Miss Helen Bartholomew, early Monday morning met the Greyhound bus at Lewistown and brought home with her Misses Ida Frazier, Elizabeth Bartholomew, Agnes Geary and Martha Yearick, passengers from Atlantic City. Miss Ferna Hoover, after being a guest of Miss Laura Runkle at the Centre Hall hotel, for the past month, returned on Monday to Danville, Va., where she will resume her work as superintendent of the Memorial Hospital in that place. Elmer M. Miller, who has been in the Railroad Post Office service for a number of years, now has a regular run on the Pittsburgh and Buffalo R. P. O. He is now taking his regular time off at his home, on the south side of the valley. Mrs. W. J. Cann, of Johnstown, and Mr. and Mrs. George Kilne and family, of Salona, were guests of Mrs. Margaret Godshall, on Sunday. Mrs. Cann, a sister, will be here for a week, while the brother, as stated, remained only for the day. The Central Pennsylvania Gas company is about to install a bullet type gas tank at State College at an expense of $7,500. The tank will be sixty feet long and twenty feet in diameter, having a capacity of 50,000 cubic feet under thirty pounds gauge. All instruments and other property of the Millifield band, valued at $900, has been given to the High school and accepted by the board of directors of that town. It is planned to use the equipment in organizing a High school band, which is very commendable. Miss Mary Delinda Potter is driving a new Chevrolet coupe. She has been elected to teach in the Allensville High school for the second term, and, of course, will use the coupe in making the necessary trips to and from that Millifield county town in Kishacoquillas Valley. The Stump kinfold held their ninth annual reunion at Alfarata Park, Huntingdon county, July 25th. Mervin Stump, of Harrisburg, a member of the State Police, was re-elected president for the ensuing year. Samuel Gross and family, of Centre Hall, were present and stated there was a large attendance. Russell W. Bohn, teacher of the 7th and 8th grades of the public schools here, has been employed during the summer on Camp Susquehannock, at Brackney, Susquehanna county. Harry Neff and one or two others from Potter township, have been employed at the same place for a few months throughout the entire year. Mrs. A. Miles Arney, of Niagara Falls, and daughters, Mrs. Harold Brumstead, of Holland, New York, and Mrs. Billie Buck, of Rochester, New York, autoed to Penna. Valley, the home of the mother. The three were guests of Arney families, above town, and of Mrs. Arney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Gramley, of Aaronburg.

Trans-Sea Telephone Talks Speed Moratorium Parleys. President Hoover and Secretary Mellon Use Washington-Paris Service Freely to Exchange Data During Negotiatory Period. (How trans-Atlantic telephony accelerated European acceptance of President Hoover's war debt moratorium plan is described in the following article by Warren W. Wheaton, of The Philadelphia Public Ledger's Washington Bureau.) WASHINGTON.—The radio telephone played a tremendously important part in the international debt suspension negotiations. It represents a new phase of modern diplomacy availed of with alacrity by President Hoover and his advisers in what doubtless is the initial stage of world-wide use of the ether waves as annihilator of space and time in the affairs of nations. With the facility and dispatch almost with which Philadelphians may telephone suburban points, Washington is connected with London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and other European points, and to the use of the radio telephone may be attributed the speed of the negotiations instituted by President Hoover. The telephone has been used to span the Atlantic as a substitute for the laborious coding of cablegrams and their decoding since Secretary Mellon touched foreign shores to put the "finishing touches" upon the debt holiday. It has hurried American voices across the seas to be heard as distinctly as a local call. It has cost a lot of money, but it has accelerated the moratorium project materially. President Hoover picks up his desk telephone and informs the White House operators he wants to speak with Mr. Mellon. The secretary is on the other end usually within five minutes. But what is just as much to the point, so are the American Ambassadors in London, Paris, Berlin and Rome. At home here there is a three-forked telephone, with the President, Acting Secretary of State Castle and Acting Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills listening in. With eight or more on one wire, there ordinarily would be a lot of confusion with two or more trying to speak simultaneously. President Hoover and his advisers foresaw this possibility and immediately met it. When the conversations were to start a chairman was appointed to conduct the "meeting." Usually it was Mr. Mills, who has been a tower of strength to the President in the negotiations. Mills or the President opened the conversation. Then the "chairman" told who was to be heard from next and when that speaker had finished, the next, if there was a next, was designated, thus avoiding not only confusion but keeping down the thousands of dollars. It costs a bit over $33 for the first three minutes to talk to Paris and $11 for each additional minute. The "chairman" method is, therefore, one of economy as well as facility. The "cross-the-ocean" telephone habit really got its start during the London Naval Conference a year ago, but now has become an accepted medium of international communication. It is hard escaping a trans-Atlantic telephone call. There are 35,600,000 telephones in the world and intercommunication is possible on 32,000,000 of them, so that 91 per cent of all the telephone subscribers in the world, notwithstanding oceans and continents between, are in potential touch with one another. As a time-saver the international telephone is a wonder compared with the code-cablegram method of communication. William R. VaNance, Assistant Solicitor of the State Department, is authority for the statement that had not the radio telephone been used in the debt negotiations much more time would have been consumed in learning what France intended to do about acceptance of Mr. Hoover's moratorium proposal.
