FARM CALENDAR

TIMELY REMINDERS FROM PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

Select Show Fruit—

When fruit is being picked a good supply for exhibit purposes can be selected. The fruit chosen should be large for the variety but not overgrown.

Save Green Tomatoes—

When tomato vines heavily loaded with green fruits are apparently going to be caught by killing frosts, they may be pulled and hung in the cellar or a cool room where the fruits will ripen for some time.

Feed More Protein—

As pastures become shorter the protein in the grain mixture for dairy cows should be increased. When pasture grass grows older and more mature its protein content decreases.

Build Strong Shells—

One of the essentials in producing high quality eggs is to give the birds access to an unlimited supply of oyster shells or some other shell-forming material.

Drain the Wet Spots—

"You may pay for drainage whether you have it or not," is an old saying that is true, especially on farms where there are wet spots which will not produce crops or that hinder farm operations.

Like Winter Barley—

Farmers in the southern Pennsylvania counties have found that winter barley is a good grain to raise in place of wheat. It yields good crops and is a fine feed for livestock, say State College agronomists.

Maintain Fertility—

Experiments on the 50-year-old soil fertility plots at the Pennsylvania State College prove that the producing ability of soil can be maintained by the use of commercial fertilizers and lime.

Plow This Fall—

One of the greatest advantages of fall preparation of ground is that seeding can be done earlier in the spring.
