The Spring Mills Water company has extended its pipe line to the Fetteroff grist mill and will now be able to give an unlimited supply of water to the patrons on the line. In case of emergency the supply will be pumped out of a never-falling spring of fresh and pure water, which will be quite an improvement.

P. Long, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wery and daughters Ruth and Dorothy; William Gross, Clarence Gentzell, Mrs. Lansberry and daughter.

The evening was spent very pleasantly and a lot of refreshments were served. The entertainment consisted of vocal and instrumental music. After wishing Mr. Bair many returns of the day all left at rather a late hour.

REFORMED CHURCH MEETING CLOSED

Fall Sessions of West Susquehanna Classis, Held at Boalsburg, Reviewed by Delegates.

The Fall session of the 75th annual meeting of the West Susquehanna Classis of the Reformed church closed Tuesday evening of last week at the Reformed church at Boalsburg. The Reformed church of Centre Hall was represented by Rev. D. R. Keener, Clarence Musser, and D. K. Keller; Aaronsburg charge by Rev. Fred Griesing and Samuel S. Mosser; Rebersburg charge by Rev. A. J. Miller and John A. Shreckengast.

The meeting was given to the consideration of the work of the church as a whole. A survey of the State of the church, showed that while the Reformed denomination has suffered from decreased incomes, its opportunities for expansion are increasing. The report of the representative of the foreign mission work showed that the demand for more missionaries is urgent, but lack of finance retarded the work.

One of the principal items was the consideration of the advisability of taking young women who desired to study for specific church work under the care and the support of the church. Hereafter such aid has been given only to men.

The General Synod was urged to prepare a pamphlet of evangelistic hymns and songs suitable for optional use at evening services, as the authorized number of such a type of hymns. Religious education received considerable attention and the aggressive work done was commended, but the general opinion was that a simplification of the present method was necessary.

FARM CALENDAR

TIMELY REMINDERS FROM PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

Burn Garden Trash—Burning vegetables and flower garden trash at this time will aid in the control of many insects and diseases which winter over on plant refuse. Plowing under such material will not destroy the pests, but burning will.

Save Plant Material—Leaf mould or other rich soil should be placed in a box and stored in the cellar before the ground freezes. This will come in handy for repotting plants during the winter.

Treat Stored Wheat—Fumigation with carbon disulphide is the treatment recommended by Penn State entomologists for control of Anthonomus grain moth in stored wheat. Three pounds of the liquid for every 100 bushels of grain should be placed in shallow tins on the surface of the grain. If the bins are airtight the treatment will be effective in 12 to 24 hours.

Harvest and Store—Pumpkins and squashes should be picked carefully before freezing and placed in a storage which has a temperature of 40 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit, dry atmosphere and medium ventilation.

Weed Out Poor Stock—Scrub bulls are a prolific source of scrub cows. Weed out cows by preventing them from coming into estrus. Investigate the breeding of the herd sire to see if it is possible for him to improve the working ability of the herd. If he cannot measure up to that standard, weed him out, too.

Produce Quality Eggs—In producing quality eggs it helps to provide one nest for every 4 or 5 laying birds. Locate the nests as far as possible from water fountains and hen exit doors.

Protect from Rust—Grease is better than oil for protecting plowshares from rust when they are stored for the winter.

Nature Provided for "Cold Storage" Pussy

One day the local carpenter, who had taken a job in the city, came to see me. He had under his arm one of the oddest little kittens I've ever seen. Apparently a long-haired white. It didn't look like a Persian. It didn't look like anything I'd ever seen before. More than anything else, it looked like a polar bear's cub.

"What kind of a cat is this?" I asked him.

"This here is a cold storage cat." "A what?" I cried, thinking of frozen eggs and defunct chicken. Cold storage was in its somewhat sickly infancy then.

"A year or so ago," he explained, "the cold storage warehouse I'm working for took in a lot of cats to kill rats. What with the damp in 'the dark an' the cold, only a few of 'em lived, but the ones that did grew longer and longer hair, and this kitten is the fourth generation. I've got seven of 'em."

I watched the various generations of those kittens around the neighborhood, and was amused to see them revert to common short-haired. —Mara Evens in the Saturday Evening Post.

First Book on Fishing Credited to a Woman

The first book that was published about fishing in England was written by the prioress of St. Alban's about the time the Cubots were busy making their American discoveries, and the fundamentals of angling have changed but very little since outlined by the authoress, Thomas W. Jull, champion fly-caster of Ontario, said recently. According to "Fishing Julie," as the authoress is commonly known, "the sport is to be followed for its own sake and not for mercenary gain." Of the thirteen files described in her book, twelve are in common use today, Mr. Jull said.

Walton's Compleat Angler, "the only classic that has ever been written on any sport," was written in 1653. An original copy at the time of publication was worth about 17 pence and now realizes a price around $2,500.

Saving the Sequoias

In order to protect the last of the "Big Trees" the government has established two national parks, Sequoia and General Grant, containing some of the most interesting groves now left. In Sequoia National park alone there are scores of sequoia trees 20 to 50 feet in diameter, with a few still larger, and thousands with a diameter of more than ten feet. This park contains the General Sherman tree, considered the largest of them all. General Grant park, an area of only four square miles, contains a magnificent grove of sequoias in addition to the one for which it is named. There are also three groves of the "Big Trees" in the Yosemite National park. One of them contains the famous Wayona tree, through which a motor road runs.

Uses of Education

Bees follow their several sweets from this flower and that blossom, here and there where they find them, but themselves afterwards make the honey, which is all and purely their own, and no more thyme and marjoram; so the several fragments he borrows from others, he will transform and shuffle together to compile a work that shall be absolutely his own; that is to say, his judgment; his instruction, labor, and study tend to nothing else but to form that. He is not obliged to discover whence he got the materials that have assisted him, but only to produce what he has himself done with them.—Montaigne in "Of Education."
