FARM CALENDAR

TIMELY REMINDERS FROM PENNSYLVANIA STATE COLLEGE SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

Kill Orchard Pests—Poison bait for mouse control may be placed now in the orchards. The bait should be so placed that it is hidden from birds, livestock or irresponsible persons. Wide-necked bottles and tin cans may be used, or the bait may be placed under boards or in tunnels of the rodents. Care for Garden Tools—Good tools kept in condition will make gardening a pleasure next year. Now is the time to clean all tools and cover the metal parts with light grease. Hotbed sash probably need paint. If their otbed is cleaned it will be ready for use next February or March. Feed Wheat to Cows—Wheat makes a good feed for dairy cattle in amounts up to one-third of the total grain mixture. It should be rolled or coarsely ground and mixed with bulky feeds, such as bran or oats, in addition to enough protein feed to make a balanced ration. Save Dead Timber—Trees have been dying this year as a result of the severe drought last year. By harvesting them now, good logs may be saved for lumber or firewood. If these dead trees are allowed to stand through another summer, many of them will be rendered useless by decay, say Penn State foresters. Build Hog Houses—Colony or individual hog houses are easy and inexpensive to build. They are warmer and more sanitary than most central farrowing houses. If such houses are not available, they can be built during the winter so they will be ready for farrowing time. Shell and Store—Seed corn which has dried out about as much as corn ordinarily does by May 1, when stored in cribs, can be shelled and stored in sacks or in metal containers, which have a few holes in the top for ventilation, until planting time.

Best Time to Advertise Is When Business Is Needed

"MY SON," ran an editorial in the Bridgeport (Conn.) Post—there is nothing on earth so mysteriously funny as an advertisement. The prime, first, last and all time object of an advertisement is to draw custom. It is not, was not, and never will be designed for any other human purpose. So the merchant waits till the busy season comes and his store is so full of custom that he can't get his hat off, and then he rushes to his printer and goes in for advertising.

"When the dull season gets along and there is no trade and he wants to sell goods so bad he can't pay his rent, he stops his advertising. That is some of them do, but occasionally a level-headed merchant does more of it and scoops in all the business, while his neighbors are making mortgages to pay the gas bill.

"There are times when you couldn't stop people from buying everything in the store if you planted a cannon behind the door, and that's the time the advertisement is sent out on its mission. It makes light work for the advertising, for a chalk sign on the sidewalk could do all that was needed and have a half-holiday six days in the week; but who wants to favor an advertisement? They are built to do hard work, and should be sent out on the dull days when a customer has to be knocked down with hard facts and kicked insensible with bankrupt reductions and dragged in with irresistible slaughter of prices before he will spend a cent.

"That's the aim and end of advertising, my son, and if you ever open a store don't try to get them to come when they are already sticking out of the windows, but give them your advertisement right between the eyes in the dull season and you will wax rich and own a fast horse and perhaps be able to smoke a good cigar once or twice a year.

"Write this down where you'll fall over it every day. The time to draw business is when you want business, and not when you have more business than you can attend to already."

THE CENTRE REPORTER offers merchants who desire the trade of several thousand substantial citizens, the best Advertising Medium possible—the Home Paper.
