BASEBALL

At a meeting of the baseball officials of the county league, Monday night, the game played under protest between Pleasant Gap and Centre Hall a week or more ago, was ruled out for the reason that the P. G. pitcher had an illegal delivery, using resin for effectiveness. The game will be played over.

Centre Hall Scores Shutout Over Howard, 1-0.

In a brilliant 7-inning game at Howard, Thursday evening of last week, Centre Hall played a brand of baseball which was invincible, and defeated the strong Howard club 1 to 0. Paul Martz, fresh from the harvest field and as a result strong and snappy, mowed down the opposition without much difficulty. Klme, too, pitched a fine game, yielding only one more hit than did Martz. The game was won in the sixth inning. Goodhart was out on a fly to short; R Martz collected a single, went to second as Crawford went out, and scored on Gross' single.

What Bellefonte Did to Us!

The old adage—a good beginning makes a bad ending—applied to Saturday's game with Bellefonte, on the home grounds. Montgomery, always an enigma for the local batters, looked like he was to be solved at last, for three runs were scored on four hits in the first 3 innings. Then he closed up, allowed but two more hits and one run for the remainder of the game. However, the 3-run lead looked like a mountain, with Jamison going strong against Bellefonte. For five innings Bellefonte appeared as Boy Scouts before Jamison's offerings, collecting only three singles and drawing blanks in the run column. But what was in store for the fans for the remainder of the game exceeded their worst expectations. Working like a smooth and well-oiled piece of machinery for five innings, the local club from now on performed like the same machine into which some one with evil designs had tossed the proverbial monkey wrench! The smash-up was complete! Right now we tell you that Bellefonte scored 12 runs in the last four innings, in groups of 3, 2, 4 and 3. Jamison was relieved after Bellefonte scored three to even the count, in the 6th. This, on the face of later events, proved to have been a mistake, for Bellefonte had not done any real hitting as yet. Durst, who followed, tossed up balls to the enemy's liking and was soon knocked off the mound. Martz was called from 3rd base to the pitching hill, but Bellefonte was not to be denied, and kept up the barrage which they had suddenly turned on the opposition. We'll not worry you with the details, gentle reader. The large turnout of "fans" sat through the ordeal and took it on the chin. Riglin and Confer handled the stick with telling effect for the visitors, taking 7 hits between them. Benford was good, and no one knew it better than he. His exaggerated ego stuck out like a sore thumb.

For the locals, Emery's juggling act in center field was a feature, but it was forgotten when he dropped an easier chance in the next inning. Dale, for Bellefonte, was outstanding on the defense, taking nine chances without a slipup. The score—
