FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Make Landscaping Plans—

Any contemplated changes in the landscaping of the home grounds should be planned now before the leaves of the deciduous materials have fallen. If fall transplanting is desired, this may be done now, provided an ample supply of water is given to each plant at the time of setting, after which successive applications of water should follow until heavy frosts.

Stress Performance—

Quality and production of purebred dairy cattle are being emphasized by breeders now instead of increase in numbers. They are demanding that the records of all daughters of a sire be published instead of only the records of high producers.

Pick Apples When Right—

Stage of maturity of apples when picked influence the value of the crop. Quality suffers from too early or too late picking. Storage troubles also develop when the right stage of maturity is not selected.

For Shaded Lawns—

A mixture of about equal parts of rough-stalk meadow grass and Chewings of red fescue is preferable for heavily shaded lawns.

Make Table Lamps—

Artistic table lamps can be made from jars and vases, and the shades to match the furnishings can be made or bought cheaply. Clear glass bottles may be filled with colored water to match.

Pick Seed in Field—

Seed corn selected from the standing stalks is more dependable than that picked from the wagon-box or crib. Height of ear, size, and other relationship between ear and stalk should be considered.

Harvest Root Crops—

Beets and carrots should be pulled before a heavy frost and stored in a cool dry place.
