COFFEE TREE IS A THING OF BEAUTY

Even Californians who boast of the splendor of their numerous orange blossoms, have been known to exclaim with wonder at the beauty of Columbia's coffee trees in full bloom. It is to be doubted if Nature has ever produced greater beauty or richer fragrance than comes from these trees.

The Colombian coffee tree is evergreen, rich in foliage, and its symmetrically placed leaves gleam in rich lustre. The flowers of the tree resemble gardenias and have a richer, more delightful odor. The flowers are followed by oval-shaped green "cherries," about as large as peanut kernels that change from green to yellow and dark red as they ripen.

According to the U. S. Department of Commerce, there are more than 450,000,000 coffee trees in Colombia and to see acre after acre of them blooming in a perfumed blanket of white on a mountain slope is a sight never to be forgotten.

FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Eradicate Weed Patches.

Fall is an excellent time to kill bad weeds in patches by applying sodium of calcium chlorate. Rates of application are 8 to 10 pounds for 1000 square feet or 2 to 3 pounds a square rod. The material may be dissolved and sprayed on or applied dry.

Cut Fire Wood.

Fuel for the coming winter can be obtained from the farm woods by cutting trees not suitable for saw timber purposes. By thinning the woods properly, the crooked and decayed trees can be cut for firewood while the straight trees of good species are left to grow a crop of saw timber.

Feed Fleshing Mash.

Many Pennsylvania poultrymen have found it desirable, when pullets are thin and show evidence of molt, to feed each 100 birds three pounds of the following fleshing mash: one pound each of ground yellow corn, ground rolled oats, and condensed milk.

Make Cows Earn Feed.

Skimping on feed to lessen surplus milk is not good dairy practice. It is much better to sell some of the poorer cows and feed those remaining in accordance with their ability to make good use of what they eat.

Take Care of Sprayer.

Before freezing weather the sprayer should be prepared for storage. The tank, pump, hose and pipe connections should be flushed with clean water, and then drained thoroughly. All working parts, adjustment connections, and nozzles should be oiled.

Prune Trees Early.

As soon as the fruit is harvested pruning may be started. Pruning can be done without injury at any time other than the growing season.
