EDITOR MEEK TO GRAB A PLUM, IF POSSIBLE.

Editor George R. Meek, of the Democratic Watchman, speaks right out, without blushing or anything, in an "Ink Sling" paragraph last week. He says:

We are a receptive aspirant for an office of some sort under the coming administration of our party. Our friends haven't gathered around and urged us to seek something, nor have we had our ear to the ground and heard an imaginary call to duty. We're merely mused-up enough nervy to go on the air and tell the world that when the plums are being passed around we're going to grab one, if possible. If long years of loyal service to our party merit regard we yield our claim to no one. We want a good paying place that we are capable of filling to the credit of the party and we would be glad to hear from anyone who thinks we are not entitled to it. We would be just as glad to hear from those who think we are. Such letters might help our cause when we head for the public crib for a bite of the kind of corn we've never tasted.

Editor Meek has sure taken the bull by the horns, and is going out to get something. Long self-effacing and content merely to wield a facile and powerful pen in the interest of Democracy, he now asks for some reward, and is entitled to it. If given a place worthy of his capabilities, it will be a high post.

COMMISSIONERS SETTLE FOR VOTING MACHINES

Centre county commissioners settled with the Automatic Voting Machine Co. of Jamestown, New York, for the payment of the five voting machines for the borough of Philipsburg. The amount paid was $521.65, representing the cost of the machines less interest for one year.

According to County Commissioners' clerk, Charles E. Freeman, and Roy Gustavson, representative of the Voting Machine company, the settlement was amiable and the pending suit will be dropped.

The dispute arose over the refusal of the County Commissioners to pay for the machines pending the decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on a case that concerned the Constitutional rights of Richard Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, to order the purchase of machines after the voters had signified their desire to use them instead of the paper ballots.

A stranger in these parts stalled his sedan on the railroad tracks at the station here, as the east bound passenger train was approaching on Monday, 11:03 A. M. The whistle was blowing full blast before the car operator's manipulations induced the "engine" to move off the rails. It was a close call for the driver and his passengers, none of whom seemed to be very excited.

DEATHS.

CLYDE A. SMITH DIES AT HOME

HERE, WEDNESDAY MORNING

Clyde A. Smith passed out of this life at his home in Centre Hall shortly after 7:00 o'clock Wednesday morning, after an illness extending over several months, during which period he was in distress from pain for much of the time. September 13th he went to Washington, D. C., and became a patient in the Walter A. Reed hospital, a U. S. Government institution, but the eminent surgeons there could give no relief. Upon returning home a few weeks later his condition began growing more serious as each day passed by until death gave relief.

The deceased was a son of Isaac C. and Margaret Witmer Smith, and was born in Loganton, May 18, 1873, making his age 59 years, 6 months and 5 days. His wife, who before marriage was Miss Levan Henderson, survives him. There are no children. H. Witmer Smith, Bellefonte; James W. Smith, Williamsport, are surviving brothers, and Miss Grace Smith, Centre Hall, is an only surviving sister.

Early in his life Mr. Smith engaged in various undertakings, and traveled extensively, through the States. Later he became a telephone lineman and engaged with the now extinct Commercial Telephone company and afterwards with the Bell company in that capacity. His engagement with a large construction company in building a telephone line in South America, four or five years ago, was his last service in that class of work.

When the Spanish-American war broke out, in 1898, he enlisted as a volunteer and served to the close, and it was his record as a U. S. veteran that afforded him the service rendered by the Washington hospital named.

Interment will be made in the local cemetery on Friday, at an hour not yet determined.

SMITH—David Franklin Smith died suddenly at his home in Centre Hall, Tuesday morning. He had been in delicate health for more than a year, but most of the time was able to be about the house and walk to various places in town. Tuesday morning he went to a shoemaker shop nearby his home and on returning walked into the kitchen where he collapsed, death following in a short time thereafter.

Funeral services will be held at the home Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. E. Smith, with burial at Houserville.

The deceased was a son of Ezra and Julia Smith, and was born at "Blackhawk," west of Centre Hall, July 18, 1869, making his age 72 years, 4 months and 4 days. He was a member of the Evangelical church for almost fifty years; also, a member of the Modern Woodmen lodge.

Earlier in life he engaged in farming, but during the last years he was able to work and was employed on the State roads.

Surviving him are his wife, Sallie (Mokle) Smith, two sons—W. E. Smith, of State College, and Elliott Smith, of Wilkinsburg, and one daughter, Mrs. Elmer Runkler, Centre Hall. One sister, Mrs. Molly Woerner, State College, and one brother, George W. Smith, of Rockview, also survive him, as do also eleven grandchildren and one great grandchild.

EDINGER—James Edinger, 3-year-old son of Prof. and Mrs. Paul Edinger of Foster avenue, State College, was found dead in bed by his father early one morning last week. The child had apparently been in the best of health since an attack of whooping cough it contracted several months ago. Heart failure is believed to have been the cause of death.

James was one of three children in the family. Funeral services were held from the home and interment made at Pine Hall.

WEISER—Mrs. Clara Jane Weiser, relict of the late Samuel Weiser, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Breen, at State College, following an illness of a complication of diseases incident to her advanced age.

Mrs. Weiser was a daughter of Joseph and Mary (Adams) Cantner, and was born in Penn township February 21, 1858, hence was aged 74 years, 8 months and 24 days.

The Weisers were residents of Millheim for upwards of forty years and were esteemed and respected by their many friends and acquaintances in lower Penns Valley. Mr. Weiser died twenty-one years ago.

Surviving the deceased are a son, E. E. Wieser, and a daughter, Bertha, wife of Charles Breen, both of State College. Also surviving is a sister, Mrs. Maggie Ricker, of Scranton.

Deceased was a member of the Evangelical church and her pastor, Rev. A. C. Ruth, had charge of the services held at the home of her daughter in State College, Thursday; interment was made in the Union cemetery at Millheim.

SMITH—J. Henry Smith, president of the Smith Printing company and prominent for a quarter of a century in local business and religious circles in Williamsport, died at 5:30 o'clock last Tuesday morning at his home at 1125 Walnut street, Williamsport.

He was formerly a resident of Reedsville, from which place the original Smith Printing plant was removed in 1899.

His death follows a critical illness of less than two weeks' duration; it resulted from a stroke. He was 63 years old.

Mr. Smith had been in falling health for several years and had a slight stroke in May. He had been confined to bed since November 4.

He was twice married, his first wife having been Pearl Kuhn, who died several years ago. To this union there were born two children—Mrs. W. N. Hunter, Williamsport, and Albert V., of Philadelphia. There also survive him: Dan Smith, Jr., a first cousin who is manager and treasurer of the Smith Printing company; a sister, Mrs. W. B. Jackson, of Drexel Hill; a brother, G. Herbert, of Dover, Del.; and Phyllis Smith, of Philadelphia.

He also leaves a widow, Mrs. Alma Smith, to whom he was wed last September 6th.

OSMAN—Jesse F. Osman, the last of his generation of the Osman family, who was born at Centre Furnace, near State College, died at Grazeville, aged 82 years, 4 months and 12 days. He was a son of David and Martin Fulton Osman. He lived most of his life in Altoona, where he was employed in the P. R. R. shops.

CROFT—Mrs. Mary A. Croft, widow of John Croft, died at her home in Yarnell, of complications incident to advanced age. She was born in Bellefonte 53 years ago. Surviving are the following children: James Croft and Mrs. George Cunningham, of Nantyglow; John, of Clearfield; Thomas, of Oveston; Mrs. Isaac Heaton, of Moshannon; Mrs. Harry Sayres and Mrs. John Shawley of Yarnell, and Harry, at home. One sister also survives, Mrs. Catharine Martin, of Wingate.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS LECTURE BY MARGARET SANGER

Birth Control Advocate Appears As Speaker in New P. S. C. A. Lecture Forum—Discusses "Future of the American Family."

(Times, State College.)

A large number of townspeople and faculty members were among the audience which filled Schwab auditorium Tuesday night to hear Mrs. Margaret Sanger, noted birth control advocate, discuss "The Future of the American Family." Mrs. Sanger was brought here by the P. S. C. A. as one of the speakers in its "Forum."

Declaring that birth control was the keynote of a new social and spiritual era Mrs. Sanger stated that its practice was necessary for the continued advance of civilization. "Now that we are opposing nature which regulated growth of population by wars, plague and famine," she said, "we must counteract this decrease in the death rate by a decrease in the birth rate. We are menaced by our protection of the unfit which in former times, nature did away with."

Out of one hundred million persons in the United States, but fifteen million of these can be considered intellectual, Mrs. Sanger said, pointing out that use of the term "intellectual" did not necessarily mean genius but simply persons capable of intelligent thought and action. The intelligent group has fewer children than the other group, yet it is this group which "carries the load" both in government and business.

In the large, less intelligent group, the death rate of infants is high because of lower wages and poor living conditions brought about because of the father's inability to support satisfactorily his usually large family. Birth control would do a great deal toward bettering this situation, Mrs. Sanger said.

The great amount of money paid by both State and federal agencies for care of those mentally and physically deficient because of disease incurred during infancy could be saved, Mrs. Sanger argued, if birth control were practiced and children were not born in homes where they could not receive proper care or of parents who were not equipped mentally or physically for parenthood.

Each year 20,000 mothers and 200,000 children die from poverty and neglect, the speaker said emphasizing the fact that birth control would do much toward ending this. Ten million children, in addition, are handicapped thru life because of defects which appeared during the years of infancy.

Birth control is not only a personal but world-wide problem, Mrs. Sanger maintained, as both Italy and Japan are overcrowded now and must soon seek an outlet. Increase in population too rapidly is a question pondered by the world's leading statesmen, she told her listeners.

Mrs. Sanger gave seven reasons for the practice of birth control. They were that a man or woman with a transmissible disease should not be permitted to become a parent, that when a woman is suffering from a temporary disease she should not be permitted to become a mother, that when there are already subnormal children in the family, there should be no others, that children should be born at healthful intervals, that adolescents should not become parents, that there should be no children unless they could be provided for and that there should be a certain period where the husband and wife are the only members of the family.

"Under the old order, a man knew his wife simply as a girl which he courted and a mother, Mrs. Sanger said, declaring that there was never a proper period when a man knew his wife as a woman.

Her present aim, Mrs. Sanger said, is to have amended the federal laws now excluding supplies and medical literature relating to birth control from the mails.

TOMMY JAMIESON STILL MAN OF MYSTERY

Tommy Jamieson, the man without a home, is still resting in the Centre county jail searching a blank mind for some clue to who he is and where he came from. The shattered memory of the frail, stoop-shouldered citizen still persistently refuses to divulge the vestige of a lead that might bring the authorities to a solution of the most baffling and interesting case that has confronted them in years.

Two leads that sprung into existence proved only blind alleys and the answer to the question is as far removed today as it was when a hungry man was taken into custody by the Bellefonte police on the Green farm west of Bellefonte.

A Phillipsburg citizen believed that he had once attended school with the man but after a trip to Bellefonte with a representative of the Phillipsburg Journal, he failed to identify Jamieson as the man he knew. Then again a few days ago a solution was thought to have been reached when Fred Harvey, of State College, attempted to identify the man as a soldier with whom he had served in France. The names checked, and John Hardy, a Philadelphia detective who was also in the same company, was reached by telephone. He stated that the Jamieson he knew was working as a policeman in Philadelphia and had not been reported missing. A close check is being made on this angle, however.

A teletype message was sent out to missing person bureaus in an effort to solve the riddle of Jamieson and finger prints and pictures will be mailed to police headquarters in all the cities of the east.

County Detective Boden and Sheriff Boob are confident that an answer will be found in a short time.
