FARM SHOW ECHOES.

A new attendance record was created when 275,500 persons saw the recent Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg. Visitors from as far west as Michigan and Missouri and as far south as the Carolinas attended the exposition which was housed in a 10-acre building.

The Forksville Dramatic Club, of Sullivan county, won the rural one-act play tournament at the State Farm Show, presenting "Joint Owners in Spain." Eighteen groups competed.

The Pennsylvania Potato Growers Association baked and sold 13,089 potatoes during the five days of the State Farm Show. They used six electric ovens in their booths and eight ovens outside. Consumers of the potatoes ate 363 pounds of butter, 14 lbs. of salt, and 3 lbs. of pepper.

A timely suggestion was displayed by home economics extension workers of the Penna. State College in an exhibit at the State Farm Show. Twenty-three women's and children's garments made from flour, sugar, and feed sacks at a cost of $1.50 were shown on one side of a booth, while on the other side were 20 new garments made by renovating and remodeling old ones at a cost of $3.28.

Lehigh county teams won both the 4-H club corn and potato judging contests at the State Farm Show.

Secondo Bigli of Westmoreland county, is the new State farmer horse-shoe pitching champion. He defeated Steward Straw, of Clearfield county, State champion for the past two years in two games out of three. Secondo's brother, Cyrus who defeated him in the county tournament, was third prize winner at Harrisburg in a field of 33 contestants from 21 counties.

John Fogel, of Nazareth, exhibited the grand champion 4-H club pen of lambs at the State Farm Show. His three Southdowns were bought by Arbogast and Bastian, Allentown, for 13 cents a pound. The pen weighed 279 pounds and the total price was $36.27.

Ninety-eight baby beaves, shown by 4-H club members of Dauphin, Cumberland, Lancaster, Lebanon and Montgomery counties, weighed 99,695 lbs. They sold for an average of 8 1/2 cents a pound. Swift & Co., Harrisburg, bought the largest group, more than one-third of the total offered.

This company bought the grand champion of the State Farm Show, a Hereford exhibited by Amos Graby, Lebanon, for the Alva Restaurant, Harrisburg, for 35 cents a pound. The reserve champion, shown by Ezra Engle, Mount Joy, was bought by Swift for Hotel Harrisburger, for 20 1/2 cents a lb. This beef was an Aberdeen-Angus.

History rolled back at the Farm Show when 200 Keystone 4-H club boys and girls played Greeks and Romans. Western Europe and America before a delighted audience of 2,200. In a colorful, spectacular pageant, entitled "Champions of Tomorrow," the club members answered the oft-repeated question, "What Does 4-H mean?"

Miriam Domert, Easton, exhibited the champion 4-H club potatoes at the Farm Show.

Ernest Moran, Lock Haven, had the grand champion exhibit of potatoes at the State Farm Show.

Although there were entries of poultry from 14 States at the Show, Keystone exhibitors won most of the high prizes. There were 3,500 birds displayed, making this the largest winter poultry exhibition in America.

The rush to obtain operators' cards is waning, there having been but five applicants at the last examination in Centre county. The three out of that number to pass successfully were Eva Miller, Clyde E. King and Jola O. Grimplan, all of State College.

POTTERS MILLS.

H. B. Walker, wife and two daughters spent Sunday at Milesburg and Yarnell, at the Arthur Miller and Keller Snyder homes.

Those who visited on Sunday at the T. J. Fleisher home were Ben Witmer and family, of Belleville; Harry Ishler and wife, of State College; D. Sparr Wert, wife and son, of Aaronsburg; Cyrus Wert, of near Tusseyville.

Master Robert Ennist, of Lewistown, is visiting at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ennist.

T. J. Fleisher, daughters Orpha, Mrs. Henry Gettitz of Braddock, and Mrs. H. E. Foust, visited at the H. A. McClellan and D. C. Fohringer homes, a few days last week.

Mr. Davis and wife, of Franklinville, are visiting at the home of their son, Thomas Davis.

Sam Bedlyon and wife, of Milton, spent Sunday with her father, Joseph Parker.

J. G. Boal and wife, F. M. Palmer and wife, visited at the John Corman home at Curtin on Sunday.

FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Set Large Eggs--

Since egg size is inherited, it is of considerable economic importance that all eggs set from the pullet flock should weigh at least two ounces a piece. Eggs from yearling or older birds should weigh at the rate of 26 ounces a dozen.

Produce Fine Honey--

If fancy section honey is to be produced each colony of bees must be strong and well populated with willing workers when the honey flow begins. This applies especially during a slow honey flow when a colony of average strength produces few, if any, fancy sections.

Grow Early Vegetables--

Fresh vegetables for home use or market may be matured much earlier by using well-grown plants of selected varieties. Early plants also insure large yields of peppers, eggplants and tomatoes.

Prepare Flower Garden--

Manure may be spread now over the soil that is to be prepared for the flower garden. Sifted coal ashes also can be spread over the garden to assist in lightening the heavy soil.

Irrigate Garden Crops--

Some vegetable growers have found that it pays to irrigate their crops during prolonged droughts. In several cases, old automobile engines have been used for power in pumping the water.

Develop Sweet Cherries--

Good sweet cherry trees for small home plantings may be obtained by grafting young seedlings of the native wild sweet cherry to some of the better commercial varieties.

"Crossing the Delaware" Is Not So Easy Now as in 1776

DURING the recent "border warfare" over Pennsylvania's law requiring vehicles from other states to carry Pennsylvania license plates, a wit observed that "if Washington were crossing the Delaware nowadays, he'd have to take out a New Jersey license."

"Mr. Panepinto's cartoon is a humorous reminder of the very serious fact that in the modern world it isn't safe to take too many liberties with such things," says a bulletin of the Highway Users' Conference. "The anti-reciprocity law passed last summer, made a national joke of Pennsylvania; yet the influences that want to keep trucks off the highways not only oppose its repeal this winter, but demand further restrictions on trucks. They propose reducing weights so greatly as to require a much larger number of trucks, thus increasing highway congestion, adding to the expense of deliveries, and raising the cost of living."

"Trucks render a service that would be impossible without them. The charge that their competition injures the railroads has been refuted completely by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads investigations. The same authority has disproved the charges that trucks don't pay adequately for their use of the highways."

"Farmers are the largest class of truck owners, using them chiefly to carry freight to and from the railroads; yet the railroads insist on suppressing the trucks! Good roads would be worse than useless to the farmers if they couldn't move their commodities over them; merchants couldn't make deliveries; city and suburban dwellers couldn't get their daily necessities of life. These roads were built to take the farmer out of the mud and make his living easier. Now the railroads demand that the farmers be denied their most useful service. Enormous amounts of railroad money are being spent in propaganda to accomplish just this. Fortunately, people have wakened up and are protesting to legislators against such measures. Passenger car owners have discovered that trucks pay some 40 per cent. of license and gasoline taxes; if that were cut off, the passenger cars would have to make it up with more gasoline taxes, higher license fees.

"Texas last winter passed anti-truck laws demanded by the railroads. Now it turns out that $3,000,000 a year of gasoline and license revenues have been cut off. Pennsylvania will have a little experience if anti-truck laws pass here: higher taxes, restricted markets, less business."
