The hunting grounds contain 1900 acres, and it is the intention of the owners to plant trees each year. Baker Run affords good fishing. A. P. Krape, of town, is interested in the camp.

Cleveland Brungart, a mechanic at the Hagan Garage, severed his connection with that garage last week. He was employed continuously at that garage since it was opened by L. L. Smith, when Mr. Smith came there from the Diamond garage, and later by W. R. Hosterman and then by Mr. Hagan. James Foust succeeds Mr. Brungart.

Little Elaine Snyder, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Snyder, aspires to become a poetess, and brought a poem entitled "Spring-time," of original composition, to the Reporter office. We told Elaine her poem was pretty, and indeed it was, and promised a first-page position for one some time in the future if she keeps on improving.

T. Benton Tate is back to his home in Bellefonte from the Altoona hospital where he underwent an eye operation, he was stated in these columns last week. He is improving rapidly and is in the best of spirits. BREW FLOWS FAST AT BOALSBURG, EARLY FRIDAY

At the Boalsburg Tavern, "the early bird got the worm." The tavern keeper was able to serve the new brew eight or ten hours earlier than any one in his locality, including State College. He was ready shortly after midnight, Thursday, and was not wanting for customers at that early hour. "The three-point-two appeared to have effects as though" in blowing off the froth the decimal point went off with it. The customers were mostly Penn State students, who after the first few hours of patronage disappeared, and since all has been quiet along the tap. The Boalsburg Tavern was recently taken over by State College parties, and Mr. Van Camp, a West Virginian, is in charge. He is an accommodating soul.

Operations on the erection of the new bridge over Bald Eagle creek at Flemington have been suspended by the contractor, J. B. Shultz, of Buffalo, N. Y. The bonding company backing Shultz will award the contract to complete the bridge.

Penn township men are employed under the direction of Supervisor John Winkleblech in getting out stones at the quarry near the Paradise church. Many of the township's miles of road will have to be chipped this spring and summer, some work having been done on them during the open winter months. Recent heavy rains have played a part in what the township will have before it in the way of road making. With tax money quite scarce, it is going to be a tough job—no matter who tackles it.

A collision occurred at the Boalsburg bridge where the Earlstown road and the concrete road intersect, on Thursday, entailing a loss of approximately $250.00 to cars driven by Ralph Rockey and Carl O. Dossin, the former a farmer near Boalsburg and the latter of State College. Mr. Rockey entered the concrete road when Mr. Dossin was in the act of passing. The Chevrolet sedan driven by Mr. Dossin was pushed over the embankment, doing the greater damage to it. Mrs. Dossin was also a passenger, and both she and her husband received slight injuries. Mr. Dossin carried insurance through C. N. Kryder, a local agent here.
