FISH LAW VIOLATORS COME TO GRIEF IN MILLER'S COURT

Penna Creek has been the scene recently of a number of fish violations, and last week two young men and a boy of 14 were brought before Justice of the Peace J. R. Miller on charges preferred by fish warden A. S. Snyder, of Millburg. Clarence Auman, 19, and a companion of 14 years, Kermit Wolf, both of Coburn section, were charged with fishing with dip nets and without a fishing license. The youth stalled on his age, saying he was 13. The justice sentenced both of them to 45 days in jail. It was later discovered that Wolf was but 14, which induced the justice to place him in charge of W. C. Thompson, town-ville court officer. Another fish law violation coming from the same section was Ralph Kerstetter, charged by the same warden with fishing in a stream passing through posted private grounds J. M. Keminger being the owner. The penalty meted out was $10.00 fine and costs.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THEY tell me that country newspapers often get poetry sent to them to print. Some of the people that send in poetry don't always write it themselves. They just copy a piece they like real well, and send that in. Of course they sign their own name to it, because they don't know how much trouble that might get them into, and besides, they think it's worth the risk, just to get into print under such good poetry. Well, the country editors are on the lookout for that kind of stuff, and some of them are pretty well up on the big writers anyway. One day a guy came in and introduced himself to the editor and handed him a poem with his name signed to it.

"This is mighty good verse," the editor says. "Thanks. I kinda thought you'd like it." "Did you write it?" "Every word of it, all by myself." "Shake hands again," says the editor. "I never knowed I'd have the good luck to shake hands with old Willie Wadsworth Longfellow himself, right here in my office in nineteen-twenty-eight!" American News Features, Inc.

RECALLED CUT TO SILK WORKERS, AT SPRING MILLS

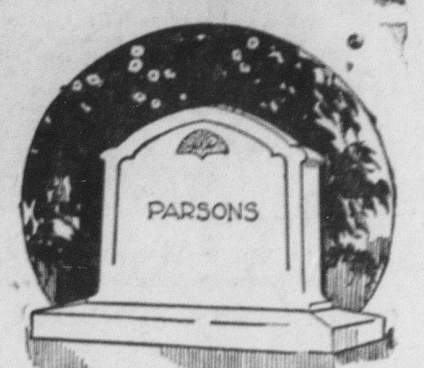

The employees at the Groce Silk Mill, Spring Mills, were most pleasantly surprised when their checks were handed to them recently. The mill was temporarily closed and when it reopened the last time all workers had agreed to take a uniform cut in addition to those previously made. About the time the checks were made out, W. F. Groce, the owner, notified his superintendent, J. C. Robinson, to omit taking off from the workers' wages the bargained cut. That was a fine act, and in accord with the new spirit of the present day.

THIRD-CLASS P. M.S MAY NOT EMPLOY MEMBERS OF FAMILY

Owing to a recent ruling by the postal department, effective May 1st, the employment of immediate members of families of third-class postmasters must cease, at offices having either annual clerk hire or separating allowances of $240 or more, or where their combined allowances equal $240 or more. In their places postmasters were ordered to select competent, deservng, unemployed persons, preference being given to those with dependents. The new ruling will effect the personnel of the Mingoille (Hecla Park) Post Office inasmuch as Charles R. Workman, who had been in the postal service for 32 years, was compelled to give up his position at the post office. The vacancy was filled by William Sproul, of Mingoille, who was appointed by Mrs. M. Irene Workman, postmistress. Mrs. Workman was appointed postmaster at Mingoille on November 6, 1901, and he served in that capacity until he was succeeded by Mrs. Workman not so many years ago. Since then he has been acting as assistant to Mrs. Workman.
