

ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST

Mrs. W. F. Bradford and Mrs. J. F. Wetzel represent Centre Hall as jurors for May court, this week.

F. V. Goodhart was in charge of the Robert Porter Lohr funeral. Interment was made in the Rose Hill cemetery, Altoona.

Lt. Wm. D. Reiber and Sgt. Elmer Chickarella, of Carlisle Barracks, Carlisle, spent the week-end with the former's mother, Mrs. Della A. Reiber, in town.

F. P. Geary, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Agnes Geary and R. S. Jamison, on Sunday motored to Williamsport where they visited friends.

There will be a Memorial service entitled "Musical Memories," to be given in the Evangelical church, Centre Hall, Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Everyone is cordially invited.

Week-end guests at the Spring Mills Methodist manse included Mrs. Maude Cuyler and Orson Russell, of Walton, N. Y. Mrs. H. A. Pruyn and children returned with her mother, Mrs. Cuyler, for an extended visit in New York State.

James Lutz, employed by the Miller Motor company here, is making frequent visits to Sellingsgrove and is hopeful of securing employment with the R. G. Lasiter company, road builders. He prefers a place under Lee Cements, foreman of mechanics, of the extensive concern.

Treasurers in a number of counties seem to rule that applications for beer licenses received after yesterday, (Wednesday) cannot be considered. Under this ruling no licenses will be granted between June 1st, 1933, and May 31st, 1934. Attorney General Schnader may make a decision contrary to this view, when called upon to do so.

State College borough fathers are having trouble with their chief of police, A. E. Yougel. He retained $250 in fees collected in connection with arrests and cases during the past year, while the borough auditors claim it should be turned into the borough treasury, the chief's attorney, John G. Love, says, "Keep it, Yougel, keep it."

Mrs. Light, wife of Dr. C. H. Light, and Mrs. Lenore Sandel, both of Centre Hall, are appendicitis patients in the Centre County hospital. Mrs. Light was taken to the institution on Saturday evening and Mrs. Sandel on Sunday. Both patients are reported to be in favorable condition at this time. Mrs. Sandel is a sister of Mrs. Paul Hironimus, in town.

During the past ten nights Billie Morrow has been locked in his bed room by his daddy, Dr. Hugh Morrow. The lad, who is eight, had a habit of prowling around the house at night in his sleep. That was tolerated, but when he began making his bed on the lawn to the front of the Reformed church without notice to the family, the measures referred to above were adopted.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Gould and daughters, Miss Ellen Gould and Mrs. Morrison Watkins, were called here on account of the sickness of Mrs. (Dr.) C. H. Light, now a patient in the Centre County hospital. The Goulds are located in Freehold, N. J., and Mrs. Watkins in New York City. Mr. Gould is known to many of the Reporter readers, having been cashier of the First National Bank, Spring Mills, and later held a similar position in the People's National Bank, State College.

State College and Pleasant Gap are leading Centre county boroughs and villages in home construction. At the present time fifteen houses, at an average cost of between $8,000 and $10,000, are under construction in the college town. Pleasant Gap, not incorporated, this year like last, is leading villages and all boroughs under 1000 population in home building. While the average cost is not as high as those of State College, every residence erected is handsome in architecture and modernly equipped.

The writer was a guest of the Kernlins, on Sunday, on a motor trip to Williamsport and north to Troy by way of Trout Run, Ralston, Grover, and Canton and from Troy west to Mansfield and south to Blossburg, Buttonwood, Steam Valley, Brookside and Larry Creek, intersecting with route No. 220 a short distance east of Jersey Shore. The scenery through the mountains north and south on this drive is beautiful, but the soil does not approach the appearance of fertility found in Penns and Nittany Valleys. On the way from Troy to Mansfield a large scope of country, to the north and south, may be viewed. Here a much more inviting agricultural section is seen, and improvements desirable. The farms, too, are devoted to the growing of staple Pennsylvania crops and dairying. A large per cent of the fields on the way from Williamsport to Troy are infested with wild mustard; indeed, many of them are entirely covered with the weed, now in full bloom. Canton and Mansfield are pretty towns, the latter being the home of a State Teachers College, the buildings and surroundings of which present a pretty picture to the tourist.

A bill introduced by Senator Scott appropriating $20,000 for scholarships for children orphaned by the World War was signed by the governor. Other Scott bills approved were: permitting the county treasurer to serve as borough tax receiver when a borough resident can not qualify. Permitting the State Relief board to borrow funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or "any other federal agency."

SWEATSHOP SITUATION IN PA. RESULT OF REPUBLICAN RULE

Statement by Warren Van Dyke, Democratic State Chairman: "Republican leaders are engaged in an internecine quarrel over responsibility for the shameful sweatshop situation which both sides to the smoke-screen controversy know can be traced directly to the Republican party and the interests which have had a collar around its neck in Pennsylvania since the days of the Camerons and Jay Gould. "One must expect to find such conditions in a State which for nearly forty years has had the most reactionary government in the United States. The tradition-bound Republican Party has given Pennsylvania do-nothing administrations just as it gave the nation do-nothing presidents during the twelve years which led up to the election of President Roosevelt. "Will the G. O. P. deny that it knew of the existence of the sweatshops when it was smothering in Republican-controlled committees every piece of Democratic and Labor legislation designed to end the inhuman exploitation of women and children? Bills killed in the recent session of the legislature had enough teeth to drive the sweatshops out of the State. "Slowly Pennsylvania is breaking the shackles of that great evader of issues, the Republican Party. The ease with which President Roosevelt brought back beer and started prohibition repeal on the way has convinced Pennsylvanians that the Republican Party, enslaved by tradition and fear of issues, is alone responsible for their State being one of the least liberal and progressive in the Union. The State has witnessed the anomaly of a conservative government over a progressive people. "The only thing now standing in the way of a wave of liberalism in this State is the Republican Old Guard."

Up to Wednesday of last week the rain fall during May was 4.77 inches. The normal fall for the entire month is 4.09, which indicates that the first half of May was exceedingly wet.

Mrs. S. W. Smith was a week-end guest of Mrs. Virginia Miller, at 2011 Mt. Vernon street, Philadelphia. Mrs. Miller and her nephews, George and David Geiss, were found in the best of spirits. She also had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Lou Reynolds, matron at a girls' colony, Miss Emma Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey, and Mrs. Harriet Moore, all very well known here. Mrs. Miller expects to be in Centre Hall on Memorial day, having been invited to be an auto guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Stahl, of Narberth, on a drive here at that time.

While the motorist against which it is aimed will not approve the bill when its provisions are made applicable to him, motorist in general will be pleased that Governor Pinchot has affixed his signature to the "financial responsibility" bill enacted by the legislature. Endorsed by automobile clubs, this bill stops short of compulsory liability insurance such as has been proposed as a protection to the public. It does, however, place a check upon the irresponsible operator of a car by requiring that, when a license has been revoked or suspended because of an accident, proof of financial responsibility adequate to meet claims to damage, injury or death, be furnished before the license is renewed.
