Spring Mills.

The silk mill is running regularly on a tentative code worked out for throwing mills to the entire satisfaction of the owner, Wm. S. Groce, the superintendent, J. C. Robinson, and the full complement of employees. Later the mill will work under a code applicable to the entire silk industry. This code, too, is looked forward to as being one entirely acceptable.

A report very generally circulated that a certain young couple from the village very clandestinely or otherwise were married recently is apparently not based on facts. The mother of one of the couple supported the denial with the statement that she knew nothing of the event having taken place and that consent had not been asked.

No. Harold Meyer's dog, a hound, is not dead, but much alive, although reported having been killed by a pack of dogs one night recently. The only reason for the correction of this item is that a neighbor lady of Mr. Meyer had the hound under her care during the owner's absence and she resented the insinuation, though not so stated, of negligence.

SUDDEN SHOWERS SAVE BELLEFONTE SHELLACKING

[Reported by Hugh Morrow, Jr.]
Old Jupiter Pluvius crashed through in the fourth inning of the Thursday evening game with Bellefonte at Centre Hall to send the crowd scurrying to the nearest shelter, after they had watched the local boys cross the rubber nine times during four times at bat. Jamison had allowed Bellefonte but one single during the abbreviated contest, and none of Teddy Casper's boys were able to advance further than the keystone sack. Goodhart, Bradford and Jamison each hung up two markers, and Emery, Crawford and Stover each crossed the final slab once for a total of nine runs gained by virtue of five hits and the assistance of four Bellefonte misplays.

JAMISON PITCHES THIRD STRAIGHT SHUTOUT GAME

The league-leading Rebersburg team fell prey last Saturday to the south-paw slants of Jamison, Centre Hall's portside, to give the local pitcher his third straight shutout contest. The boys from lower Brush Valley were able to garner but two safeties out of the offerings tendered them during the 9-inning contest on their own park, while Centre Hall players poled out eight hits, to score four runs during the game. Rebersburg's only scoring chance came in the 7th when Tyson tripled and Bocne was passed, but Tate's whiffing closed the frame. Jack Bradford, Centre Hall's third base starting impetus when he clubbed out man, gave the merry-go-round its a four-master in the 4th frame with the bases bare. Singles in the next inning by R. Martz and Jamison, abetted by a Rebersburg error, rang the bell again for Centre Hall, and three singles, a sacrifice and a misplay brought the local tally to four in the last bracket. Haines did the Rebersburg hurling, and had the only other hit of Jamison, which was a single.

Paul Martz, covering first base, had no less than 15 put-outs, while Jack Bradford on the third sack position assisted in five successful plays. Eight opposing batsmen swung their war clubs for the third time in a vain attempt to hit the Jamison hooks, while four locals were struck out by Haines.

Jamison muffed a batted ball in the ninth to commit the only misplay for Centre Hall. Rebersburg erred twice.
