MILITARY FUNERAL HELD FOR NURSE AT STATE COLLEGE

Mrs. Grace Jeffries, wife of Charles D. Jeffries, of State College, a United States Army nurse during the World War, died at her home in State College Wednesday morning of last week.

Mrs. Jeffries was a daughter of Wm. and Emily Williams Newton and was born in Coalport, Clearfield county forty years ago. She was a direct descendant of Sir Isaac Newton, English physicist.

June 30, 1920, she was united in marriage with Charles D. Jeffries now a member of the faculty on research with department of Agronomy at Penn State College. Mrs. Jeffries through her services in the war is the only woman in State College who is entitled to the honor of a military funeral, having served on the army nursing staff.

Mrs. Jeffries is survived by her mother, who resides in Coalport, her husband and a sister, Mrs. George Green, of State College. Mrs. Jeffries received her medical training at the old Medico-Chi hospital, Philadelphia.

Military funeral services were held on Friday morning in the Presbyterian church, State College, in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Edward H. Jones. At the grave a firing squad fired a last salute over the grave and taps were sounded.

MATERIALISM AND THE CRISIS.

(From Christian Science Monitor)

Numerous and authorized voices concur in blaming materialism—by which is meant an undue regard for the purely external conditions of life—as one of the principal causes of the crisis which is felt the world over, not merely in the economic but also in the political sphere. Distinguished writers who are not professionally interested in public affairs have attributed the universal malaise to a too intensive development of material comforts and material riches.

The thesis is that the very discoveries and inventions of our age have been turned against mankind. The machine which ought to be a servant of humanity has become its master. Knowledge of how to use the resources which have been vastly increased has not kept pace with the growth of those resources. Moral life has been sacrificed to material life.

Among those who have recently elaborated this theme is Madame Mury who, in an article which has attracted considerable attention in the Courier Colonial, asserts that nothing worth while can now be realized, even—and indeed, above all—in the practical domain, "without a spiritual regeneration which will rescue humanity from misery. A stupid materialistic idolatry, which is pseudo-scientific, has brought the world to the very edge of the abyss."

Whatever language may be employed there is no doubt that the idea which she seeks to express is becoming prevalent. It is in this direction, happily, that the human thought is turning. Accumulation of material wealth for the sake of material wealth, in a mood of selfishness and rivalry, is bound to lead to disaster. Men are far more troubled today than when life was simpler. Despite the marvelous improvements, the unquestionable progress registered in nearly every department, there is probably more care and distress than before these generous gifts were poured upon the world.

We have learned to make things that a generation ago did not exist. We have learned to make necessities

HUNTED GUNMEN CAPTURED BY POLICE NEAR TOWANDA

Two desperate gunmen who a month ago assaulted Corporal Walter Powell and Private James Knox, of the Rockview Barracks, Penna. State Police, were captured and placed behind the bars of the Bradford county jail after they had cut a wide swath of crime through central and north-eastern Pennsylvania.

The men are Eric Byrol, 35, of Lock Haven, and Andrew Mayeur, 19, of Canton. They were taken into custody in a mountain retreat in Sullivan county. Both were sleeping when officers raided the hideout.

Both men were identified by Corporal Powell and Pri. Knox as the two who made a getaway after they engaged in a heated battle with the two officers on the highway over Nittany Mountain between Madisonburg and Nittany, last month. Both Powell and Knox were badly injured in the fracas and it was only through an exceptional display of bravery that they avoided death at the hands of the gunmen.

Troopers stated that the men made a new attempt to escape but it was frustrated.

The pair were lodged in Rockview penitentiary on Monday.

The Groce Silk Mill, Spring Mills, after having been closed for a month, began operating Tuesday evening.

and luxuries on an unprecedented scale so that there is plenty where there was paucity. Yet instead of being better off, we subject ourselves to self-torture, and many of our fellows are suffering want in the midst of profusion. When everything has been said concerning the difficulties which we experience it is probable that the central and essential fact lies in the paradox of our having made underconsumption the corollary of so-called overproduction.

Obviously, if there were greater good will shown by class toward class and by nation toward nation—if the individual were less mindful of his own advantages and more concerned for the advantages of all—most of the troubles which have been created would disappear as if by magic.

Even though it were necessary to make important sacrifices for the general well-being, the result would be beneficial all round. To set down these axioms appears elementary; yet it is because we have forgotten these elementary truths that we are wrestling with a crisis which is perhaps unique in the annals of mankind. Nothing may seem simpler than this return to the earliest teachings of morality, but unfortunately the obsession of material conditions has tended to obscure the private and public sense of the most vital clause of the human code of conduct.

The elevation of the material above the moral is in large measure responsible for the chaotic conditions which appear to prevail. For the material cannot be other than chaotic unless it is suffused and guided by the moral. More and more it is clearly discerned by enlightened men and women, whether in Europe or in America, that only by the complete acceptance of the Golden Rule can order be brought into human affairs. Planning that is perpetually thwarted by selfish materialistic conceptions can lead nowhere; planning that is unreservedly forwarded by moral conceptions will unquestionably relieve the world of its self-imposed burdens.

REGISTRATION OF THE UNEMPLOYED IN CENTRE CO.

The National Industrial Recovery Act, on Title II, provides for expenditure of large sums of money on highways and other public works with the object of hastening business improvement by giving jobs to those who would otherwise be unemployed.

The State re-employment director has appointed a re-employment committee for Centre county and their office is in the Court House, Bellefonte. This office is open from 8:30 to 12 A. M. and 1:00 to 5:00 P. M. daily, except Saturday when it will be open from 8:30 to 12 A. M.

Registration of the unemployed will be conducted at various points in the county in the near future. Dates and places for registration will be announced at the proper time, with a view to giving all the unemployed in the county an opportunity to register.

When the unemployed have been registered, and when there are public jobs to be filled, the County Re-employment Office will be in a position to intelligently supply contractors and other employers with lists of persons best qualified to fill the positions available.

In making these lists, the Re-employment Office will give preference to qualified workers who are:

1. Ex-service men with dependents.

2. U. S. citizens who are residents of the county.

3. U. S. citizens who are residents of the State.

No preference is to be given to persons on Relief.

The committee named by the State Director are: W. P. Sieg, chairman, Bellefonte; R. H. Schreffler, Philipsburg; S. M. Shallosora, Bellefonte; E. K. Hishman, State College; Harvey J. Smith, Snow Shoe.

Charles E. Garbrick, Bellefonte, will be in charge of the office in the Court House.

FARM FIRE LOSSES TOO HIGH, ENGINEER SAYS

In 1932 the farm fire losses of Pennsylvania represented 25 per cent. of the total State loss of $30,000,000 for the year, says J. R. Haswell, extension agricultural engineer of the Pennsylvania State College.

He points out that in 1920 the farm loss from fires was 12.6 per cent of the total. This indicates, Haswell comments, that rural fire prevention and protection is not progressing at the same rate for urban districts.
