FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

STORE CABBAGE HEADS—A barrel pit can be used for storing cabbage. Only perfect, mature heads should be selected. Preparation calls for removal of loose leaves, stems, and roots. Individual heads may be wrapped in paper.

WASH PORCH FURNITURE—Porch furniture should be cleaned before it is placed in storage for the winter. Lukewarm soap suds, to which a little kerosene has been added, is best for painted pieces. Darkened unpainted furniture will have the natural color restored by washing with strong soap suds plus salt and a little chloride of lime.

TO BROADCAST PROGRAM—Pennsylvania 4-H club members will take part in the national achievement program to be broadcast from KDKA, Pittsburgh, 12:30 to 1:30 p. m., Saturday, November 4.

MULCH ROCK GARDEN—Peat moss, oak leaves, or salt hay can be used for mulching rock gardens. The mulch will protect the soil from heaving and excessive evaporation so common on uncovered ground during the winter.

MAKE QUALITY CIDER—Use of special enzymes for clarifying and special earths for filtering makes a high quality cider. This process results in a product of sparkling appearance and unblemished taste.

DRY GREEN WOOD—Splitting green wood and cutting it into stove length will speed up the drying in the wood is then ricked so that the air will circulate freely throughout the pile.

DEVELOP GOOD HERD—A sound program of weeding, breeding, feeding and management will improve the dairy herd.

LOCALS LOSE TO "S. I. S." AT HUNTINGDON 4-3

It was curtains for baseball for this season, on Saturday. The local club had a game with the State Industrial School at Huntingdon, remaining on the calendar, and it was played on the school grounds with a 4-3 victory resulting for the inmates. The game went only six innings. It seems the school officials call baseball games at any time convenient for them to do so. Incidentally, the "School" team lost only one game this season on the home ground. Some one observed that this was the only game to go nine innings, —if you know what we mean.

Paul Martz pitched a fine game, allowing only three hits, but one of these was a fly ball hitting one of the buildings surrounding the field, resulting in a home run, which on the local field had been an easy out for "center." The winning run was put over in the 6th on a bit of daring base running. The locals out-hit the School boys 2 to 1.

'Twas lucky for "Pooley" Fetterolf that he was permitted to return home with the team, for he STOLE second.

8 FARMERS GROW 400 BUSHEL POTATO CROPS

Eight Pennsylvania farmers have qualified for the 1933 Keystone 400-Bushel Club, reports received by L. T. Denniston, plant pathology extension specialist of the Pennsylvania State College, shows.

George Flamm, of Somerset county, has the highest yield reported. He harvested 594.6 bushels of the Mason variety of potatoes on a measured acre. They were planted May 12 and the vines remained green until frozen October 12. Planting distances were 4 inches deep, 30 inches between rows, and 9 inches between seed pieces in the row. Clover sod was plowed down in the row at the rate of 500 pounds an acre. The crop was cultivated five times, harrowed twice, and sprayed 10 times at a pressure of 250 to 300 lbs.

Twenty-five or more carpenters from nearby sections are engaged in the erection of six wooden structures, 112 by 22 feet, outside measure, at Treaster Kettle camp No. 65, above Colyer, which will house the C. C. C. boys during the coming winter. About one-half the lumber—three car loads—is already on the ground.

Historical Facts

[Under this head will appear one or more historical facts of local interest, to a large extent taken from Linn's History of Centre and Clinton counties, designated for reference as L. H., the figures following indicating page. The "Notes," if any, are those of the editor.]

The first school house, in Haines township, and what was always considered as one of the first in Centre county, had its location on the turnpike, about two miles east of the village of Aaronsburg. On the 15th day of December, 1789, Jacob Stover, "for and in consideration of promoting literature and learning," donated a tract of land containing seven acres, "for the use of a school and the master thereof." A short time after a double house was built, one room of which was reserved for the "master" and his family. This school for many years was the only one in the eastern part of Penn's Valley, and notwithstanding the fact that many scholars had to travel miles to reach it, it was numerously attended, and became quite famous in its day as an institution of learning.

The earliest teacher of whom any tradition is preserved was a Mr. Sam-sell. After him came Mr. Gelstweite, who taught mostly in the German language; then Mr. Musser, Mr. Delschley, Mr. Rockhauser. The latter was well known throughout the whole of Penn's Valley. Other teachers were Henry Young and Mr. Wagner. The old log school house disappeared years ago, and its site now (1883) occupied by a school building erected by Haines township. The land, however, is still held in trust for the purposes for which it was originally intended.

The population of Harris township in 1880 was 942; of this number 329 lived in the village of Boalsburg. Prior to 1875, Harris township included the territory now comprising Harris township.

The arable portion of Harris township was taken up principally by warrants belonging to Reuben Haines, surveyed in 1767. One of the earliest settlers was Rev. Wm. Stuart, born in Londonderry, Ireland, 1759. He came to the States at the age of seventeen. He graduated from Dickinson College in 1795. In 1801 he visited Huntingdon Presbytery as a candidate, and became pastor of the East Penn's Valley, Sinking Creek, and Spring Creek churches, Oct. 8, 1801. He purchased 145 acres in Harris township which he cultivated. He died March 30, 1848, and was buried in the graveyard of the Sinking Creek Presbyterian church, at Centre Hill. His two children—David and Isabel—married, respectively, Martha Johnson and Dr. Hugh Montgomery—L. H. p. 311.

(Note: The farm cultivated by Rev. Wm. Stuart, later known as the Leech farm, is now owned by Wm. S. Brooks, and is located on the south side of Nittany Mountain, about four miles west of Centre Hall. The farm was tenanted for a number of years by G. W. Ralston. It was on this farm that David A. and Isabel Stuart were born. David was born in 1812 and died in Boalsburg in 1898, aged 85 years. William H. Stuart, of Boalsburg, is a great grandson of the Presbyterian minister, and is the only descendant carrying the family name in the county.)

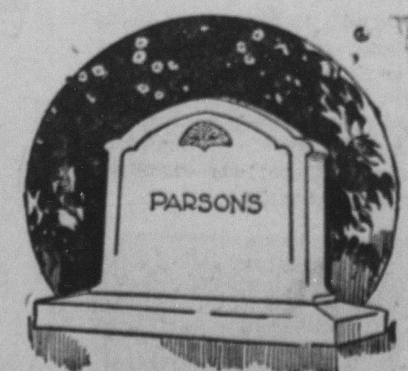

Fergus Potter came with Rev. Wm. Stuart and settled on an adjoining farm, in 1801.

Note: From great grand-children—Harry W. and Miss Mary Delinda Potter—it is learned that the first improvements erected by the forefather was a log house on the west side of the lane leading to what is known as the Potter homestead, now owned by Miss Potter, referred to above. The improvements as they now stand were erected by a Potter of a later generation.)

Shingletown, west of Boalsburg, a bustling village prior to 1844 at which time a fire consumed a grist mill and still-house, the pride of the community. Neither was rebuilt. A Mr. Shingle erected the first building in the place, in 1820, which (1883) still remains.
