CONVICTS LEAD OFFICERS TO BURIED GOLD AND SILVER

Andrew Mayes, serving time in the enitentiary for burglaries committed in company with Eric Byrol, was taken to Canton recently by Corporal Lowis and Private Knox, of the Rockynw State Police unit, to g ive Corporal Santalli of the Towarda Detail, further information concerning the activities of the gang prior to their cap-

He led them to menia Mountain, where buried in the und at the foot of a tree was found $1500 worth of melted gold and silver. The treasure had been melted into eleven nuggets. Mrs. Bessie Comly and family moved and placed in a glass jar, which was then buried several feet below the surface of the ground at the foot of Mayes told the officers that he and Byrol entered the Sacred Heart church at St. Mary's on August 4, and took gold and silver plates, statues, etc Found in the loot was the melted renains of a woman's silver mesh bag, which it is thought may have been taken from Dallas Armstrong's home Ishler, and son Gene, of State College: in Lock Haven early in the fall. Acording to Mayes' confession Byrol entered the Armstrong home and stole lewelry in the form of brooches, rings, bracelets, etc., valued at thousands of dollars. Officers are still checking up Maurice McClintic, the only lucky on the activities of Byrol, Mayes and hunter in the immediate vicinity, shot their associates, and further developments are expected. Byrol and Mayes are the two outlaws who so severely beat up the two Highway patrolmen in Madisonhurg par were captured in the northern part of the State.

PENN STATE STUDENTS APPLY FOR CWA JOBS

Approximately one of every six men students at the Penna. State College applied for jobs under CWA when Dr. George F. Zook, U. S. Commissioner of Education, obtained rulings from the federal authorities which permitted the inclusion of needy students among the eligible workers on these projects. Addition of Penn State students to the working force will be a part time basis their hours of labor being dependent upon their scholastic schedules. Their employment is to be regulated by college committee CWA operations for which students are eligible to apply is that which will be carried out at "publicly-controlled" schools, colleges and universities.

In this category are ten projects which were proposed by Penn State and approved by the state board as sultable CWA operations. The first of these to be approved by thefederal authorities, a storm sewer to take care for the eastern side of the campus, was authorized from Washington last week. Work was started two days after the drainage line was approved, but the number of students who could be given work was not immediately ascertainable. In acordance with federal reguations, former service men are given first preference, men on relief second, and students and other unemployed,

Of the 560 students who applied for work, approximately 40 percent asked for full time employment during the Christmas bolidays. By working thru this vacation, they will be enabled to get two full weeks' work, and as many of them as can be used, under the regulations in force, will be given the opportunity to work.
