

Spring Mills

A Collection of Newsy Happenings and Personals from Gregg Township's Metropolis.

Although Monday, the first day of the trout season, was an exceptionally uninviting one for the anglers, two of them got the limit—20—between Klhne's and the bridge on Route 45, at the Peterhof mill. One of the men was James Solt, Williamsport, whose wife is Minnie Ebert, formerly from this vicinity, and the other his friend, Samuel Kelschner, of Newberry. The two baskets contained trout of a size to make any angler feel proud of his ability to collect on a rainy day.

Four of the Sheffield Farms Co. milk collectors purchased new trucks to better perform that service. The purchasers are Bright Bitner, William Osman, Albert Lingle and Calvin Lingle, all living in Spring Mills. The first two named secured Dodge trucks, and the other two Chevrolets. A new Chevrolet truck was also purchased by Thomas J. Decker to be used in his lumber operations.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Keown, of Millertown, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Grove, on Sunday, with whom Mr. Keown boarded when a resident of Spring Mills, at which time he was superintendent of the Breyer milk plant here prior to the time it was sold to the Sheffield people.

Among the sick in the community are Mrs. Jacob McCool, Beaver Dam, and Mrs. Samuel Mosser, near the Salem church, from complications. The condition of both is somewhat improved.

Harold Stover, tax collector for Gregg township, informed the writer that all taxes against real estate unpaid on May 1st will be returned to the board of County Commissioners for collection. He further stated that collections to date were about up to the average of former years.

Mrs. Coleman Wingard and daughter Gloria were in Bellefonte, on Monday.

Robert Slegal, as he has frequently done heretofore, spent the week-end in State College.

Theodore Wagner fulfilled his promise to come here for the first trout fishing. He spent Monday, and Tuesday along the streams, then reluctantly left them for mail service with Uncle Sam.

Roy Schaeffer, of Old Fort, and Attorney W. Harrison Walker, Bellefonte, were in this vicinity on business during last week.

Luther Wagner, son of J. A. Wagner, a member of the CCG camp, in Po Valley, has recovered from an illness that for a time had an alarming outlook. He attributes his recovery to his camp physician's efficiency.

Arthur Grove, who was housed up for a month, is able to be about again. The patrons on the milk route he serves were taken care of during his illness by Blake Bartley.

Ernest Styles moved from the Immel place, Green Grove Corners, to a farm on the Pine Creek road near Woodward.

Mrs. Jeremiah Confer, of Milroy, but formerly of Spring Mills, visited among friends here for a few days.

Miss Josephine Stover spent the week end at the Al. Alexander home, at Coburn. Another guest at the same home was Miss Faye Sayer, of Altoona, a clerk in the Gable Department store. The young ladies are close friends and took advantage of the opportunity to enjoy each other's company at the home of a mutual friend.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Corman, and the latter's mother, Mrs. Annie Smith, on Sunday autored to Belleville where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Alexander.

John W. Decker improved his dwelling by reroofing it with asbestos shingles. The work was done by Charles Zettle and Elmer Foust.

Mrs. Della Reiber, Miss Ruth, of Centre Hall, and Miss Mary, of Jersey Shore, spent part of last Saturday among friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Dukeman and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Young, of Clearfield, were visiting at the home of Mrs. Dukeman's sister, Mrs. C. C. Bartsge.

The card party sponsored by the Fish and Game Association was considered a success, but not patronized as well as it might have been.

Harold Kennelly, while returning from school last week, fell and fractured his arm. This was partly the fault of the "bigger guy" who caused him to fall.

A shipment of trees was received here last week for Ralph Bartsge who intends to plant them on his property in Madisonburg which he bought recently.

Mrs. Veram Myers and two sons and Miss Pearl Lingle took a pleasure trip to Pittsburgh last week.
