

SEVEN MT. ROAD TO MIFFLIN CO. LINE TO BE CONSTRUCTED

Centre County Commissioners Sign Papers Giving Assurance of Building Long-Delayed Stretch

Word that the long-delayed road from Potters Mills, over the Seven Mountains to the Mifflin county line would soon become a reality was assured on Thursday when the board of Centre County Commissioners gave their assent to the lengthy procedure necessary to secure the right-of-way.

Heretofore there have been repeated rumors of the construction of this road, but no tangible evidence followed until about six weeks ago when the superintendent of CCC Camp No. 62, at Stone Creek, was officially urged to hasten the completion of the new road from the head of Stone Creek to Colyer.

Following completion of the lengthy procedure necessary to secure the right-of-way, the county commissioners in Bellefonte signed the documents providing for the county's approval.

The road which will be built largely with Federal funds, will be of concrete and of the regulation 18-foot width.

Instead of winding through the "narrow" a short distance farther on, the road will be straightened through the valley by means of fills and cuts.

The road will be completed some time before fall, according to present indications. As work is already under way on the concrete of the William Penn between Mifflintown and Lewistown residents of this district will have an improved concrete road between Potters Mills and Harrisburg when the Potters Mills portion is finished.

A representative of the re-employment bureau, Bellefonte, will be in Millheim today (Thursday). Those seeking employment are asked to consult with him.

Miss Isabel Bradford accompanied her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur McClellan, to Philadelphia, on Sunday, and will be their guest until the end of the week.

In Centre county six hundred sixty farm homes have water piped at least into the kitchen. There are in the State more than 100,000 homes into which water is carried.

Isaac Underwood, aged 90 years, of Bellefonte, tripped on a rug at his home and on falling injured his hip. An X-ray taken Friday revealed no broken bones, but the hip bone was slightly dislocated.

John H. Knarr, a foreman at a CCC camp in Franklin county, came to Centre Hall on Friday to attend the Knarr reunion, and on returning the next day was accompanied by Mrs. Knarr and children, John and Nellie Jane, for a few days visit in that section.

Lightning played one of its unusual pranks, Sunday evening, at the home of Franklin D. Goodhart, when it knocked a window frame above the kitchen sink out and broke the glass into small bits. Luckily, it was not dishing time for Mrs. Goodhart when the crash came.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. McCormick and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Burkholder, of Potter township, in the McCormick car, will start this (Thursday) morning for Chicago, to visit "A Century of Progress" Exposition. They will stop enroute to visit relatives, and will be gone for a week or longer.

Mrs. Jacob Meyer, of Boalsburg, spent the greater part of last week with her daughter, Mrs. H. Lee Brooks, and family, east of Centre Hall, and while there also visited her niece, Mrs. W. A. Odenkirk, in town. Mrs. Meyer is in good health and enjoys the hospitality of her friends and relatives.

Sunday's Philadelphia Record printed a picture of Miss Marian Fisher Beury, daughter of Dr. Charles E. and Ella Fischer Beury, in connection with the announcement of her engagement to Henry Wismer Scarborough, Jr., son of Henry W. Scarborough. The young couple are both of Philadelphia. The young lady's father is president of Temple University, and her mother is a daughter of Dr. W. E. Fischer, of Shamokin.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Finn Stover, of Carnegie, and Mr. and Mrs. Mervin C. Stover, also of near Pittsburgh, are on a week's vacation, part of which time was spent in and about Centre Hall and Yeagertown. Both the gentlemen are managers of company stores in their home towns. The former Mrs. Stover before marriage, was Miss Mary Koch, reared near Centre Hall. One of their objects in coming to Yeagertown was to visit a brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Burris, Mr. Burris having just recovered from an illness. Irvin Stover, of Yeagertown, is also a brother of the Western Pennsylvanians.

NEW BUILDING ON GRANGE PARK TO FURTHER INTEREST IN EDUCATION IN COUNTY

The erection on Grange Park of a second building, 112x24 feet, to be devoted to the further development of the department of education, affording the finest kind of display space for schools and granges as well as special exhibits, marks the spirit of the 51st annual Grange Encampment and Centre County Fair which will open on Saturday, August 25, and continue one week. The growth of this department has been encouraged and supported by the management in every possible direction and the earnest and enthusiastic response from every part of Centre county, has been most gratifying—so much so that the necessity for better display facilities was apparent and it is certain space will be filled.

Young people and young people's organizations and activities will have a big place in the week's program, according to present plans. The management wishes to emphasize to parents and teachers alike that at the Centre Hall Grange Fair each day is set apart for school children, as it has been the settled policy of this organization to admit free all children under 14 years of age, and a rollicking good time they may have in clean and safe surroundings, no more delightful place to be found anywhere.

4-H clubs and vocational schools the entire year make plans for the annual round-ups and contests which take place during fair week. The number of 4-H clubs and projects undertaken have increased in the county, therefore we may expect a more varied program and a more interesting one also. Vocational leaders in Centre county will add to their exhibits one that is outstanding in importance and beauty—and one that must be seen to be fully appreciated, the presentation of Centre county at the Farm Show last January in Harrisburg. We are fortunate indeed to secure this work.

The premium book is nearing completion and distribution will be made at an early date. Every effort has been made to see that it contains full information for camper and exhibitor.

FARLEY PREDICTS DEMOCRATIC SWEEP IN STATE ELECTIONS

The Democratic party will make a clean sweep in the November 6 general election in Pennsylvania in a vote of confidence in the Roosevelt recovery policies. Postmaster General James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman and close adviser of the President, made the prediction while in Philadelphia one day last week.

Farley, in predicting the Democratic victory, assailed U. S. Senator David A. Reed, Republican Senatorial nominee.

"Pennsylvania will give overwhelming indorsement to the Roosevelt Administration in November by electing the Democratic ticket by a decisive majority," said Farley.

"I am entirely satisfied that Pennsylvania will join the other States of the Union in giving approval to the President's recovery policies by electing Joseph P. Guffey, Roosevelt leader of Pennsylvania, to the U. S. Senate." Guffey's opponent, Dave Reed, is one of the most reactionary members of the U. S. Senate and one of the hard-shelled Republican Old Guards.

Reed is out of step with the progressive sentiment of the people of this nation and of this State.

"Reed was part and parcel of the Hoover Administration, which was dominated by Mellon and Mills and others of that type."

"Pennsylvania voters won't be counted out this year as they were in 1932 when President Roosevelt carried the State, but was 'counted out.'"

"I am satisfied that the people are of the same mind today as they were in 1932 when they voted out the Hoover Administration and its dominant Tory Republican bosses."

"President Roosevelt's recovery policies have been made an issue in Pennsylvania at the forthcoming election by Republican National Chairman Fletcher. I am certain that the enlightened voters of this State will give Fletcher and Joe Grundy and Andy Mellon the surprise of their lives when the election returns come in on the night of November 6."

SCENIC MOUNTAIN DRIVE THROUGH DECKER AND PO

One of the most scenic mountain drives in this section is found in the Seven Mountains. Turn east at Sunset club house, which road leads you through Decker Valley, once thickly settled with sturdy men and women, but now inhabited only by a few families, descendants of old settlers. The road leads you by the Mountain cemetery where lie the remains of many who engaged in subduing the forests and bringing the soil under cultivation in the early years of the eighteenth century. Nearby, the cemetery are distinct marks of where once stood a church where these people worshipped. A few rods further to the east a road leads to your left into Georges Valley, while the main road bears to the right and three miles further on intersects with the old pike, known as the Millheim pike to Lewistown. Here you turn at right angles and after a drive of between two and three miles you strike the "old detour." Turn to the left to reach Sigleville, in Mifflin county, and to the right for a seven-mile drive on the Garry road by the Juniata Valley Boy Scout camp, the Rayona camp and the intersection with the State Highway Route No. 322, formerly No. 53, at the Forest Place.

Before reaching the intersection of the Millheim pike you ascend Big Po Mountain, where is located a modern steel fire tower. From this point may be viewed Penns Valley, from Spring Mills eastward, and west through Georges Valley upper Penns Valley comes under the eye.

At this season of the year the scenery is most beautiful, the fields being varied in coloring by their covers—stubble, corn, oats, meadows, while the villages may be located nestling among the hills. The view from Po Mountain tower rivals in beauty and expanse that from Old Nittany Top. Looking eastward from the tower you see Little Po Valley, and between you and Little Po is the CCC camp, lying in a deep ravine.

The roads are all pleasant to drive, with no excessive grades. The Old Pike was rebuilt by the CCC boys, and is a modern mountain road. The circuit by the route mapped out from Sunset back to that point is between eighteen and twenty miles, every portion of which presents delightful mountain scenery.

TRUCK AND LOAD OF 600 TIRES BURN AT MCKINNEY'S

A Ford truck carrying six hundred automobile tires took fire as it reached the State House, in Seven Mountains, where lives Forest Ranger W. F. McKinney, resulting in the total destruction of both the truck and its load. John Meeker passed the truck on his way to McKinney's but noticed nothing wrong, but when it came opposite the State House he saw the flames, and at once rushed to the scene. The driver had alighted and called to Meeker to awaken his assistant driver and get him from the cab. The man was fast asleep, and at once responding to a call and gentle "shake," he was pulled from the cab. By this time the tires were burning briskly, and the tarpaulin no longer kept the flames subdued. The heat of the burning tires was terrific, and blocked traffic from ten o'clock until a short detour was established. It was 3:09 a. m. Friday when traffic resumed on No. 322.

The Alpha fire company, State College, responded to a call, but could render no aid, as tre was not sufficient water in the little run nearby to operate the pumper.

The truck stood only a short distance west of the McKinney barn. The heat burned a fence, grass, and garden truck, and also curled the steel fire tower.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by the lanterns hung on the rear of the truck, a requirement made by the Ohio trucking rules.

The tires—Silvertown, U. S. Cord and Berwick—were being transported from Akron to Philadelphia.
