

Spring Mills

A Collection of Newsy Happenings and Personals from Gregg Township's Metropolis.

Spring Mills.

When the city dailies printed an account of how William Lingle, aged 23, is alleged to have thrown his wife from a boat and drowning her, in Catfish Bay, near Sacketts Harbor, New York, it was little thought that he was a resident of Gregg township and was well known throughout Penns Valley. This was due to the change in spelling the name from Lingle to Lengle. He is attached to the First Ordinance Co. of Madison Barracks, residing at Watertown, N. Y. The crime charged against him is first degree murder, and if the grand jury finds a true bill he will be tried before the New York county courts on that charge.

Lingle has a criminal record in Centre county, having twice been prosecuted in the local courts. It was this man who back in October, 1925, broke into the S. L. Condo store in Spring Mills, taking $20.00 from it. Squire Jamison heard the case and held him under $300 bail. Not being able to find bondsmen he was sent to jail, where later he plead guilty, and upon paying costs and making restitution for the theft, sentence was suspended.

Three years later he was arrested for attempting to cash a forged check at the Farmers National Bank, Millheim. In default of $1000 bail he was imprisoned. Twice the Commonwealth failed to have the case prepared for trial—once in September and again in December of the same year—whereupon the sitting Judge ordered Lengle be discharged upon payment of costs.

In a statement to officers, Lengle said he and his wife did not get along too well, and that he stayed with her only because of their two children. Lengle's last place of employment in Penns Valley was with Harry Wolf, east of Centre Hall. There was such a difference between the activity of the two men that Lengle was discharged after a brief try-out.

William Lengle, from the best information obtainable, is a son of Besie Davis, now married to Morris Lingle. Mr. and Mrs. Lingle live on the Fred Auman (formerly John Lingle) place, on the road leading from the iron bridge, below Spring Mills, to the intersection of the Decker Valley road at the Mountain cemetery. Mrs. Lingle, up to Monday, had no direct information from Watertown, either from her supposed son or any of the Jefferson county, N. Y., officials.

Bark is being hauled from Colyer to the large tannery in Lock Haven for Charles Stoner. The hauling is done with a truck owned by Albert Lingle, with Roy Steiger as operator. Albert Lingle purchased a new Chevrolet sedan from the Miller Motor Co., Centre Hall.

An explosion of an oil stove in the kitchen of Browne's place, Tuesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock, caused slight damage, which was adjusted by E. T. Jamison, representing the company in which the property was insured. It was the quick measures taken after the explosion that averted a disastrous fire.

The band festival, Saturday night, attracted the largest crowd seen in Spring Mills in many years. The patronage was liberal, summing up to a gross sum of about $350. The net receipts will not be less than fifty per cent of that amount. The members of the band are grateful for the public's liberal patronage. The behavior of the crowd was very good, and all appeared to be contented with the offerings of entertainment and food and confections.

The local lodge of I. O. O. F. was represented by one of its past grands, E. T. Jamison, at the services conducted by past grands at Sunbury Orphanage on Sunday. Others from this section to attend the services were V. A. Auman, Centre Hall; Joseph Carson and Ernest Wagner, Potters Mills; Rev. Sherman, former pastor of the local Methodist church, delivered the sermon.

The Gregg Township Vocational school, as well as the grade schools throughout the township, will open Tuesday following Labor Day. The Vocational school faculty is made up as follows: C. M. Watts, supervising principal; John W. Decker, supervisor of agriculture; Mr. Myers, of Chambersburg, assistant supervisor of agriculture; Mrs. H. W. Fetterolf, English and music; Miss Tschudy, Home Economics. It will be noticed that there is but one change in faculty, Mr. Myers taking the place of H. C. Hayes the latter having been released by the board to accept the position of supervising principal of the Petersburg Vocational school.

The grade teachers are: Spring Mills, Miss Orle Wagner, 1 and 2; Miss Louella Reareck, 3 and 4; Harry Condo, 5 and 6; Russell Condo, 6 and 7. Township schools: Hoy, Paul Miller; Cross Roads, Rosella Heckman; Beaver Dam, Adaline Bradford; Penn Hall, Catharine Hosterman; Decker, Sara Vonada.

Some person who probably had no conception of the loss that would follow his act, on Saturday evening, closed the valve on the inlet to the large fish rearing pond, and as a result about six thousand of the ten thousand rainbow trout suffocated before the depredation was discovered, although the keeper reached the pond Sunday morning earlier than usual. On Friday previous precaution was taken to avert a repetition of loss of fishes following a heavy rain two weeks ago by closing the inlets to both ponds for about two hours. This was to avoid a flow of soil into the ponds which proves so detrimental to the development of small fishes.

Mrs. Vera Meyer autoed to Altoona on Monday to meet her nephew, Charles Morris, of Pittsburgh, who joined his brother, Harry Morris, at the Meyer home for a two weeks' outing.

The Lutheran Sunday school picnicked at Hecla Park on Tuesday. The children were transported by William Osman on his Dodge truck, while others were conveyed in private cars. The Sunday school has an enrollment of about ninety, with an average attendance of from sixty to seventy. Guy Corman is the superintendent.

Probably the best item of news in this column is this: The Groce Silk Mill began operations on Monday, fulfilling the prediction of Superintendent Robinson that the wheels would begin revolving in a short time. The mill was closed but for about ten days.

Frank A. Long, accompanied by Mrs. Long, of Portsmouth, Ohio, arrived here on Tuesday and is a guest of his brother, C. P. Long. Mr. Long conducts an elaborate establishment, handling household furnishings of all description.

The 4H Club, whose chief line is sewing, will meet this week at the home of C. P. Long, two of whose granddaughters—Isabel Musser and Marie Long—are members. The organization has a membership of fifteen, all wide-awake and active young girls who delight in doing things well.

The Finkle property acquired by Mrs. Annie Finkle through the will of her husband the late Calvin Finkle, was sold by the executor of the estate of Mrs. Finkle, W. H. Haney, to Mrs. Mabel Finkle Smith, for $1250, in addition to her right as an heir. Mrs. Smith now occupies the place. She is manager of the Sheffield Farms Company milk plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Wingard autoed to Huntingdon, on Monday.

Charles A. Krape has been confined to bed since the latter part of last week, during which time he has had professional attention. He is said to be suffering from an attack of pneumonia.

A snipe, not frequently seen in this section, was feeding on the Vocational school lawn on Monday afternoon, and paid no attention to curious observers.

The picnic held on Hecla Park Wednesday of last week, by the members of the Reformed-Methodist Union Sunday school, was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed. The only mishap of the day was the capsizing of a canoe in which Homer W. Fetterolf and Miss Gladys Ziegler were enjoying the "sea breeze." It was in deep water the occupants, unprepared for the event, were spilled.

Oliver Corman is suffering from a severe case of poisoning which spread over his arms and parts of his body.

Mrs. C. B. Stover and daughter, Miss Josephine, on Sunday, autoed to York, where until Tuesday they were guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Fred Burrows, and family.

Miss Bernice Smith accompanied her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Grove, to Buffalo, N. Y. last week.

The festival by our local band last Saturday evening was attended by a large crowd, and the music furnished by the Lock Haven and Millmont bands was very much enjoyed.

The Fredericks mill at Farmers Mills was bid up to $1925.00, but was not sold. The highest bidder was Elmer Hettinger, who we believe, if he would buy it, would make a success of it as he is a hustler and usually makes good of whatever he undertakes. If anyone doubts this, just visit his place and see how he has his things arranged about his barn and surroundings.
