JOSEPH F. GUFFEY NOT A BORROWER OF MELLON FUNDS

Pinchot says Guffey received money from Mellon. Guffey says, "This is absolutely untrue. Pinchot knows it is untrue. I have never in my life received or borrowed a dollar from Andrew W. Mellon, from a Mellon bank, from any member of the Mellon family, or from any associates of Mellon. I have no obligations financially, politically or socially to any of the Mellons."
"The obvious strategy of the Republican party is to use poor old Pinchot to take the people's minds off the main issue. Feebly he protests his loyalty to Roosevelt while he goes to the limit to elect to the U. S. Senate Roosevelt's bitterest enemy."
Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury under three administrations, cleans up the middle when he issued a statement in which he (Mellon) said:
"Governor Pinchot has evidently been misinformed. Mr. Guffey does not owe me any money and never has owed me."

"I BELIEVE IN THE PEOPLE"

Earle has a slogan that he has made a part of his life. It is: "I believe in the people." It might be called an hereditary slogan. For he comes of a line of men whose lives were formed on that same belief.
It took him into the ranks as a buck private when the United States found it necessary, back in 1916, to send Gen. Pershing and army to the Mexican border.
Doughboy on the Mexican border. Commander of a submarine chaser. Hero of a fire at sea.
United States Minister to Austria. Decorated for heroic war service by President Woodrow Wilson.
Commended by President Franklin D. Roosevelt for his courageous diplomacy.
That is George H. Earle, Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.
That is George H. Earle, as perhaps few of his loyal adherents know him.
Attorney General Schnader farms out some of the Department's job instead of his own attorneys doing the work. For instance, William A. Gray, Philadelphia lawyer, was paid $50,000 for collecting the Dorrance Estate tax. Another big fee—$100,000—was paid to United States Senator David Reed by the State for services during Pinchot's term.

A. E. KERLIN DIES IN WINTER HOME AT ST. PETERSBURG

Arthur Elmer Kerlin died in his Florida home in St. Petersburg, early Monday morning after a brief illness with pneumonia, following a light paralytic stroke a week previous.
The body is expected to arrive in Centre Hall by train from the east on Saturday morning, and will be taken to the Goodhart funeral parlor where it may be viewed by relatives and friends. Interment will be made at 10:30 o'clock, in the local cemetery, Rev. S. F. Greenhoe, pastor of the Lutheran church, and Rev. J. F. Harkins, of the State College Lutheran church, to officiate. After the interment further services will be held in the home church of the deceased.

A. E. KERLIN.

Previous services were held at the Florida home of the deceased on Wednesday by the pastor of the Lutheran church which Mr. and Mrs. Kerlin regularly attended when in the South.
Mr. Kerlin's first experience as a baby chick producer began thirty-four years ago, when, as his present literature indicates, his equipment and stock was located in a back yard and consisted of twenty-four hens and two male birds, and a 60-egg incubator.

Although greatly handicapped physically through the loss of a limb at about the time he attained his majority he set his mind on building up a business worthy of note, and never lost heart, striving at all times for the goal set. About 1903 the present site of the Kerlin poultry plant was purchased and occupied. From the grand view one obtains when looking out from it, the name, Kerlin's Grand View Poultry Farm, had its origin. Gradually the plant began to develop and soon became the leading industry in this vicinity, measured from any angle and it is still growing. The goal set by its founder, no doubt, had been reached when he retired, a number of years back, since which time he and Mrs. Kerlin have been spending the winters in St. Petersburg, and the summers at their home here.

During the time his industry was in its formative stage, Mr. Kerlin gave it his personal supervision, rarely leaving the plant for any purpose whatsoever during the hatching season. That was before the installation of electrified incubators with their numerous automatic controls.
The success of his efforts as a producer of baby chicks need be dwelt on to no further extent.

Throughout his residence here Mr. Kerlin took his place as a good supporting citizen. He was a liberal contributor, prompt to fulfill all his obligations, and was always interested in any movement that looked toward the advancement of the community. In politics he was a Democrat, but never aspired to obtain office—high or low. His religious faith was that taught by the Lutheran church, and he attended services regularly when it was possible to do so.

PENN STATE GRADUATE SEES FARMING FUTURE

Opportunities in farming are seen by Senator Joseph R. Ziesenheim, of Erie county, who talked to the freshmen of the School of Agriculture at the Pennsylvania State College last Wednesday. Ziesenheim was graduated from the agricultural course of the College in 1915 and is a Master Farmer.
Changes in agriculture have brought a demand for trained leaders, Ziesenheim said. Despite the depression, he believes that agriculture is better off financially than many other industries. He pointed out that many successful enterprises have had their foundation in hard times.
Ziesenheim sees room for improvement in the present marketing system. He declared that the motor truck has revolutionized the marketing of agricultural products, but because of the truck it is not possible to know definitely how much produce may be expected at any market on a given day. Advertising and packaging will play a more important part in the selling of farm products in the future, Ziesenheim declared.

BIG POTATO CROP.
Hundreds of persons are daily visiting the J. L. Reitz potato farm at West Lewisburg, which is harvesting Central Pennsylvania's biggest crop of potatoes, averaging 2500 bushels per day. It is estimated that the total will reach 45,000 to 50,000 bushels, with from forty to fifty pickers daily on the job. The potatoes are placed in drums and stored in the big underground cellars. They will later be graded according to size and quality.

Meeting of Democratic Workers.
A workers' conference in the interest of the Democratic candidates, local, State and National, will be held Thursday evening in the council room. The meeting will be open to all favoring the New Deal.
