THE ELECTION IN THE BOROUGH The election on Tuesday in the borough was quiet, as is the rule. Eighty-one per cent of the Democratic and Republican registered vote showed their preference at the polls. A total of 359 votes were cast out of a possible 428, divided thus: I'emocratic, 234; Republican, 124; Prohibition 1. This is the vote according to party registration. The actual vote as found in the table varies somewhat from this as applied to the Republican candidates, but carries through on the Democratic side.

There were cast 215 straight Democratic and 87 straight Republican tickets, a total of 302; 57 ballots were split, and two thrown out. See the table for details.
