At the annual convention of the National Association of Ice Industries, held in San Francisco, California, two weeks ago, Guy W. Jacobs, manager of the Steubenville (Ohio) Ice Company, and a former Centre Hall boy, was elected first vice-president.

Members of the local Odd Fellows lodge who have been asked by post-card to attend the Hall Association celebration supper, December 14th, are urged to send in the return card not later than December 8th, so that the committee may know definitely how many to prepare for.

Miss Helen Schooley, of Washingtonville, was the guest of Miss Lorraine Brungart, in Centre Hall, over the week-end. The young ladies became friends this summer at Eagles Mere, while both were engaged at that popular resort. Miss Schooley is a school teacher in Washingtonville.

Mrs. V. A. Auman is improving nicely since Saturday at which time she underwent an operation for the removal of growths on both great toes, the surgical treatment having been given by Dr. J. H. Galbraith, of Altoona. Saturday night and Sunday she suffered considerable pain but since then there has been a gradual lessening of the pain.

Mrs. D. F. Smith had as guests during the past week, her son, Elwood Smith and Mrs. Smith, and their young daughter, Lida Ann, all of whom recently participated in a birthday party given the elder Mrs. Smith by her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Runkle, upon attaining her seventieth year. Other guests at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bradford.

Lee, in Centre Hall. The Iowa farmer in a letter to his brother stated the corn crop in his section was very poor, the yield on his farm being but twenty bushels per acre. Iowa farmers speak of yields of corn only in the terms of shelled corn, the double bushel not being a customary expression.

"The Tiger," local high school publication, makes its first appearance for the current school year this week. The paper is starting its fourth volume. The Tiger is an eight-page publication, teeming with school news, all of which is original on the part of the contributors, who are numbered from all four classes in the high school. The paper is published under the able supervision of Miss Agnes E. Geary, English instructor. Local merchants are liberal in their support of its advertising pages, without which publication would be impossible, except for a subsidy.

Fred Slack and Ralph Homan, both farmers living east of here, who are giving dairying special attention, had valuable cows die for them. On reaching his barn Saturday morning the former found one of his cows slumped in her stall as though she had been shot. She had cleaned up her feed given the evening before. She was a young animal and had freshened the second time about two weeks previous. Mr. Homan found the animal that died for him sick one morning, called a veterinarian, who diagnosed the sickness due to some form of poisoning, and suggested that it might have been a particular mould on the top layers of ensilage taken from a silo opened a few days previous. Both farmers have large herds of cattle, but no further trouble is anticipated.

"Ken's" absence from the above group is due to the fact that he fell into the arms of Morpheus on the day the picture was taken and all efforts to locate the scene of his slumbers proved fruitless.

LOCALS MOVE ONE STEP NEARER TO CENTRAL PENNA. CHAMPIONSHIP

Defenseless at the hands of eleven battling "Tigers" from the Centre Hall lad, the heretofore undefeated Beaver Vocationalites fell from the Central Pennsylvania championship race, 3-0, last Friday on their own grounds.

The game was played in a veritable sea of mud, due to the steady downfall of rain throughout the game.

The locals scored twice early in the initial period when Frank and McClellan registered from scrimmage. The third goal was recorded by Spyker in the third quarter when he headed the ball into the net on a very pretty play.

Beaver Vocational put up a stubborn fight throughout the entire game but was unable to cope with the class shown by the local team.

Many Breeds of Dogs—How to Feed Setters

Nearly every human being is interested in dogs. No other animal is so friendly, so understanding, so pleasant to have about as a good dog. Many varieties of dogs have been developed. New breeds are announced nearly every few years. Older breeds are improved.

In the large dog shows often as many as a hundred different breeds are represented, varying in size from the giant Saint Bernard, weighing around 230 pounds, to the tiny Chihuahua. There are long-legged dogs, short-legged dogs, heavily furred, black, white, tan, orange, or lemon. Irish Setters are a little more high-strung in disposition. When well-trained, they are unexcelled as hunting and field dogs. Their color is a rich golden chestnut, no trace of black.

The Gordon Setter in the bottom illustration was originally more delicate in structure than either the English or Irish Setter. He has now been bred to a sturdiness necessary for a hunting dog. The males will reach a height of 22 to 25 inches; females slightly less. His color is coal black with tan straight-haired, and some with hardly any hair at all. How to tell different dogs apart and to note the characteristics that differentiate one from the other is an interesting study. Through the courtesy of Purina Mills' Educational Division, we are able to present a series of most interesting photographs of breeds of dogs. In the accompanying illustrations are shown three types of Setters, among the most popular of our hunting dogs. The top illustration shows an English Setter, the center one, an Irish Setter, and the bottom a Gordon Setter.

The English Setter is the largest and strongest of the setters. His entire make-up shows power to gallop with ease through a hard day's work. Color may be any combination of markings of rich chestnut and mahogany red.

All setters should be kept hard and in good condition. It is bad practice to allow them to become fat and lazy. The most effective method for keeping valuable hunting dogs in condition is to eliminate all chances for germ infection by controlling their feed sources. A standard dog food that comes in dry checker form, where every unit of nutrient is under perfect control both as to rich vitamin content and to freedom from contamination, is the method followed by the more successful dog owners. Dog food in checker form is less bother to feed, keeps indefinitely without spoiling, and does not need to be supplemented with other foods.

Cats

CAN SEE IN THE Dark

...but CHILDREN need Light

NEW "I. E. S." READING AND STUDY LAMP

DEVELOPED by the Illuminating Engineering Society... scientifically designed to protect the eyes.

It is efficient... it furnishes 6 to 10 times more light than the ordinary lamp.

ONE school child in every five now needs glasses. Two in every five will have defective eyes by the time they are ready to go to college... YOUR child may be one of them.

What should you do?

FIRST—Avoid glare! Shade all bulbs, so that the bare bulbs cannot be seen from any point in the room. Have plenty of light all over the room... it is harmful if confined solely to the book or other seeing task. And have enough light on the task itself to assure minimum eye fatigue.

SECOND—Take your child to an eyesight specialist once each year. This two-point plan assures maximum child-eyesight protection.
