DATA ON PENNS VALLEY AND LOCAL INCIDENTS SOUGHT FOR UNIQUE GUIDE

An opportunity is to be given to this community to preserve any historic spots or records or unique things in scenery, history, racial, botanical, geological, commercial, or anything else, in the American Guide, which is one of the major white collar projects to be carried out under the WPA.

The American Guide, writes John M. Fleming, editor for District X of the Works Progress Administration, located at DuBois, will carry all essential facts about every section of the country, in a greatly condensed form, but there are likely to spring up local guides in which the things concerning various localities may be made more elaborate.

An organization to make a survey of every county of District X is to be formed and the extent to which each community is able to emphasize its own things will depend upon the degree of success each organization has in ferreting out the important things. To that end, the general public is invited to cooperate.

In most communities, there are objects, such as trees, valleys and lakes, about which legends have developed. Perhaps only the oldest inhabitants recall the incidents, real or imaginary, which make these objects interesting and, when they die, local color will go with them.

Readers of the Reporter are requested to send suggestions and descriptions which the representatives of the American Guide might follow up when they begin work in your locality. Readers might even place in our hands for temporary safe-keeping, pending the arrival of the Guide workers, such objects as old records, old timers might write down a few of the facts which they believe possess community value, so that they would be available to the writers in making researches.

SEEK CAUSE OF TROUBLE—Where pullets show lack of good condition, an attempt should be made to find the cause. Intestinal excidiosis and worms may be to blame. If egg production is low and loss of birds is heavy, immediate treatment for worms is justified when it is learned that they are causing the trouble.

CROWN GALL IS SEVERE—One of the severest diseases of raspberries in Pennsylvania is crown gall. To avoid it only disease-free plants should be used. They should be obtained from patches absolutely free from the crown gall organism.

PLAN FAMILY GARDEN—In planning the home garden, four groups of vegetables should be included to have a balanced garden. These include edible seeds, root crops, greens and salad plants, and the vegetable fruits, such as tomatoes, cucumbers and melons.

PROTECT FRUIT TREES—Tree trunks will escape damage from rabbits if some of the succulent terminal branches are cut off and dropped to the ground for their diet, say Penn State fruit specialists.

CLEAN MILK UTENSILS—If the milk utensils are cleaned properly and sterilized thoroughly, the quality of milk and its products will be improved.

KEEP FARM ACCOUNTS—More and more, farmers are learning that account books help them to know which operations are paying and which are losing money. Someone has said that a farm without records is like a clock without hands.

LEARN POULTRY DRESSING—Club members are learning to dress the poultry grown in their projects, thus increasing the returns obtained when the birds are marketed.
