FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Select Adapted Seed—For southern Pennsylvania counties, alfalfa seed from the northwestern states or Kansas, but no farther south, seems satisfactory. In the central counties, one should insist on northwestern alfalfa seed. In the northern and mountain counties, or where a long-lived stand is desired, it is generally advisable to pay the extra price for Grimm alfalfa or Ontario Variegated, which is one of the Grimmas.

Plant Trees Soon—April is the best month for planting seedlings of most forest tree varieties. This year the supply in both public and private nurseries is very low. Many forward-looking individuals are already placing orders for 1937 delivery so that they can get the kinds and quantities of trees they want.

Break Ice Crust—Where there is danger of the ice crust smothering alfalfa, it can be broken by driving stock or machinery, such as a disk harrow or tractor, over the field. Clover and winter grain also may be injured if the ice sheet stays on too long and lies too close to the ground.

Colts are Increasing—The number of horses over two years old decreased four per cent last year in this country but there was a substantial increase in colts under one-year old or those foaled in 1935. The Gold Medal Colt Club is encouraging the production of better horses in Pennsylvania.

Grow Enough Vegetables—All farm gardens should include sufficient greens, tomatoes, root crops, and other vegetables, such as peas, corn and beans, to meet the food requirements of the family. They can be used fresh and canned, or stored for future use.
