THINKING IN PROPORTION.

Next time one of your reactionary friends begins to bombard you with dire prophecies concerning the Federal debt, ask him if he ever has figured out, in rational terms, what that debt means.

It sounds fantastic to some people to talk of billions. But it was inconceivable to some of our forefathers that this country ever should be caught but sparsely settled west of the Alleghenies.

That's why it is essential to think in proportion. That's why we suggest a rule of thought for your guidance. The national debt of the United States is approximately $32,000,000,000.

The annual income of the United States is approximately $60,000,000,000.

A debt of $32,000,000,000 bears precisely the same relation to a nation with an annual income of 60 billions as a debt of $3200 would bear to a man earning $6,000 a year.

Would you think it extravagant, reckless, outrageous for a man earning his $6000 a year to go $3200 into debt to buy a home?

Of course you wouldn't. You know that men earning considerably less than $6000 have assumed a mortgage of $3200 without the slightest hardship.

Well, that's exactly what Uncle Sam has done with his 32 billion dollar debt. So, thinking in proportion, Uncle Sam is neither extravagant, reckless nor foolish.

To the contrary, he's been mighty wise. For of the 32 billion dollar debt, ten billions were spent for a recovery program—and that program boosted Uncle Sam's income $20,000,000,000 a year.

It's an old business axiom that you've got to spend money to make money. You've got to sow in order to reap. You've got to invest in order to gain dividends.

The New Deal is based on that simple principle. The fact becomes obvious once one is willing to think in proportion.

PENNA. FARMER IN GOOD FINANCIAL POSITION TODAY

"Agriculture in Pennsylvania is in a more favorable condition today than it has been for several years," declared J. Hensell French, Secretary of Agriculture, in a statement issued today.

"The cash income of Pennsylvania farmers was $158,590,000 in 1932, and $223,500,000 in 1935. The increase in 1932 was $18,169,000 over 1932. The 1934 income was $44,979,000 more than that of 1932 and the 1935 income exceeded that of 1932 by $64,910,000, making a total accumulated gain in cash income for those three years of $123,058,000.

"The total farm value of horses, mules, cattle, sheep and swine in Pennsylvania was increased $51,031,000 in the last three years.

"Pennsylvania farm land is worth 8 per cent more today than it was in 1932. Between 1929 and 1933 this average value dropped 62 per cent.

"During the twelve years of declining farm values, farm properties in Pennsylvania were a drug on the market, but today there is a good demand for farms in some sections of Pennsylvania and transactions involving the transfer of farm real estate are being reported from all sections. Small farms of from 5 to 10 acres are readily salable, especially near the larger centers of population.

"Farm product prices strike the most optimistic note when compared with the cash levels of four years ago. Pennsylvania farmers have been getting $9.10 per 100 lbs. for their hogs this year. In 1932 hogs were bringing $2.75. Beef cattle prices jumped from $4.15 in 1932 to $7.10 in 1935. Prices for veal calves are more than one-third higher than they were three years ago. And sheep prices have jumped from $2.45 in 1932 to $3.85 in 1935. Lamb prices are 50 per cent higher and wool prices have increased by the same percentage.

Horses that were bringing $103.50 in 1932 are now selling for $149. During the same period the price of mules on the farm increased from $109 to $150. Poultry, eggs, butterfat, milk and farm butter, prices increased proportionately during this same period.

In the spring of 1932 corn was selling for 25.1 cents per bushel and wheat was 37 cents per bushel. On May 15 of this year corn was up to 54 cents and wheat was selling for 83 cents a bushel.

"Perhaps the safest barometer of farm conditions is farm credit and I am able to report at this time that banks are again lending money to our farmers. The experience on the farm credit administration with payments on loans to farmers is convincing proof that the farmers of Pennsylvania are now in a position to maintain their credit at their local banks.

A small island, 9x15 feet, is to be erected at the junction of Atherton street, Route 222, and College Avenue, Route 45, in State College. A traffic dummy will be located on it.

Clayton Musser, son of Mrs. Elda Musser, Rebersburg, is enrolled as a student in the six weeks' course in speech instruction as directed by Prof. Baker at Penn State.

PENNY POTATO GROWERS OPEN HEADQUARTERS IN BELLEFONTE

Ebon B. Bower, Bellefonte, who for the past six years has been employed as a salesman for the Whitecroft Quarries, resigned his position effective June 30, and accepted a position as secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Pennsylvania Co-operative Potato Growers Association with office headquarters in the vacant room in Crider's Exchange on North Allegheny street, formerly occupied by the late Robert F. Hunter.

Mr. Bower will devote his time to furthering the project adopted by the State Growers Association at their last meeting, the object being to "merchandise Pennsylvania potatoes in the most efficient manner," by determining a standard grade high enough to meet exacting demands for all practical consumer acceptance and yet low enough to make the best of our local crop; by adopting and trademarking a distinctive practical and attractive pack of a size to meet the widest market demands; by determining definitely and accurately the merits and qualities of our own potatoes; by determining the true status of the potato in the diet of the normal and subnormal person; by determining and developing varieties most adapted to our growing conditions and most suited to special culinary uses; by setting up machinery by which the grading and packing of the adopted brand will be guaranteed to the consumer, and made available in sufficient volume to interest large purchasers.

54,132 "HIRED MEN" ON FARMS IN THIS STATE

Census analyses made public this week by the United States Census Bureau through the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture show there are 54,132 "hired men" employed on the farms in this State. In addition to this farm labor there are 253,228 farmers and members of their families working on Pennsylvania farms without wages.

These statistics do not include persons doing housework and persons working part time during planting and harvest seasons.

There is one hired farm hand for every four farms in this State. The rest of the work on the Keystone State's 191,000 farms is done by family labor, averaging 1.35 persons per farm. The number of hired farm hands per farm is slightly higher in this State than for the Nation, but the rate of family labor is lower.

Rural electrification is advancing in Pennsylvania. In Crawford county a cooperative company has contracted to secure $101,000 from the REA to construct 124 miles of a proposed 375 mile project. About 723 farms in Crawford and Erie counties will receive electric current over this first section. The electricity will be received from a company already having power plants.

Arch McQuilkin, whom we learned to love last year, if with us again to lead in song, stunts and sports, and as well in the devotions which are so very necessary in our christian life. Everything is in full swing at the new delegates have now learned to know the place better and the old delegates have learned to know the new.—Grace Kleffel, Camp Reporter.

STUDY OF RURAL YOUTH IN BORO OF CENTRE HALL

Centre Hall is one of five typical boroughs in Pennsylvania in which a survey is being made to obtain conditions in it confronting rural youth. In this case rural youth covers persons between the ages of 15 and 25 years. The survey will show what these young people are doing whether or not they are participating in the economic and social institutions.

The information obtained in the questionnaire will not be associated with the name of the person giving it, neither will the information obtained in Centre Hall be revealed as applying to this particular place.

The young people who will call on you for information are Misses Helen White and Elizabeth Bartholomew. The information is voluntary, not in any way compulsory, but should be given by all approached, since it is being obtained for the special benefit of those particular persons.

Before entering onto the project, Dr. O. L. Harvey, who has the work in Pennsylvania in charge, first contacted a number of local citizens to obtain their views as to the manner in which the work would be received. The expressions were unanimous that the survey should be made, so it is up to the youths to advance or hinder their own interests.

This survey is motivated by the interest of the President in setting up the National Youth Administration as part of the Works Progress Administration, and the establishment of the American Youth Commission under the American Council of Education, supported by a foundation. This particular survey has been made possible on the one hand through funds granted by the American Youth Commission, and on the other hand through money granted by Dr. Edmund deS. Brunner, of Columbia University, who is restudying agricultural villages. The Works Progress Administration is also co-operating in this study.

Mr. and Mrs. Jordan and their son motored to Tusseyville, Saturday morning, joining the former's parents and other friends who went to Camp 62, now abandoned except for a keeper, to spend the day. Mr. Jordan had walked out into the mountains a short distance alone, when he fell. A stranger passing that way was asked to convey the news to the camp, which he did.
