THE SPECIAL SESSION.
The most profitable business in Pennsylvania this month will be the State Legislature in Harrisburg. It will make $22,500,000 in two weeks, at a cost between $75,000 and $155,000.

And the profit will go to the people of Pennsylvania who need it most. Under Federal law, social security taxes collected here will go into the general fund of the United States Treasury if this State has no social security law by January 1.

If it has such a law, the social security program will go into effect in Pennsylvania, and 90 percent of those taxes will come back here in social security payments.

The last session of the Legislature was presented with a bill to give the State a job insurance program. The Republican-controlled Senate strangled it.

That is why this session is necessary—to see that $22,500,000 collected here comes back here instead of being lost to this State by the partisan obstructionism of the old G. O. P. majority in the State Senate.

The new Legislature, which comes into office December 1, is Democratic in both houses.

If any Democrats are tempted to vote against the social security bill, let them remember the campaign and the election.

Social security was a central issue. The Republicans spent thousands of dollars trying to frighten the workers of Pennsylvania with the social security tax bogey.

They put propaganda in factory payrolls. They plastered it on factory walls. Their candidates from London on down to aspirants for the Legislature dwell on the horrors of the social security setup.

Deaths

STOVER.—Mrs. Florence R. Stover, wife of Oscar W. Stover, died at her home in State College Friday morning at 4 o'clock at the age of 75 years, 7 months and 25 days. Death was due to pneumonia.

Mrs. Stover was born April 2, 1861, at Boalsburg, the daughter of James and Catherine Sparr Kelley, both now deceased, and was united in marriage to Mr. Stover in 1896. She was a member of the State College Presbyterian church.

In addition to her husband, who himself is in ill health and is now bedfast, Mrs. Stover leaves two sons, Ralph, of State College, and James R. Stover, of Reading.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the Koch Funeral Home in charge of the Rev. E. H. Jones. Burial was made at Boalsburg.

Mr. Underwood was born at Unionville. He was first a lumberman, and in 1890 he became associated with the McCalmont Company and later began the sale of heavy machinery.

His last illness began more than two years ago when he suffered a fall at his home and was since confined to bed.

Surviving are two daughters, Mary and Blanche Underwood, both at home; two brothers, Zephaniah, of Sunbury, and Warner, of Woodbury, N. J.; and a sister, Mrs. Way, also of Woodbury. A son, J. Irwin Underwood, of Erie, died in 1933.

HOGAN.—Mrs. Elizabeth C. Hogan died at the home of her niece Mrs. Helen E. Lindemuth, in Union township, on Tuesday of last week in her 89th year. Mrs. Hogan was the widow of Marion Hogan, who died 25 years ago.

Born August 3, 1848 in Penna Valley, she was the daughter of Henry and Anna Maria Weaver. She was a member of the Unionville Presbyterian church.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at Unionville in charge of the Rev. H. E. Oakwood; interment was made at Millheim.

FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Reduce Flower Diseases.—Cleaning up plant refuse in the flower garden will reduce the severity of many troublesome diseases next year. These diseases live through the winter on old dead plant parts. If stalks and leaves are gathered and burned, less trouble will be encountered next year.

Use Winter Vegetables.—Parsnips and salsify can be used all winter instead of waiting until spring. After hard freezing weather these vegetables can be dug and placed in a shallow pit. When the roots are well frozen they can be covered with litter and will be accessible all winter.

Kill Perennial Weeds.—One of the best methods of killing small patches of perennial weeds is through application of a salt known as sodium chlorate at the rate of ten or twelve lbs. rate at the rate of ten or twelve lbs. rate to 1000 square feet. The material costs about 35¢ a pound and is too expensive to use on large areas. The chlorate may be broadcast or used as a spray. Ask your county agent for detailed information.

Milk in New Form.—Homogenized milk is a new form now being processed and sold. The solids of the milk are reduced in size under pressure, resulting in uniform, smooth quality and lack of creaming. The curd is softer and more easily assimilated or digested.

Plants for Christmas.—Many attractive plants make suitable Christmas gifts of lasting quality. A wide range of choice is available. Included are the most colorful of flowering plants, berry-bearing plants, and foliage plants, say Penn State ornamental horticulturists.

Sell Poor Cows.—If feed supplies are short, it is better to dispose of some of the low-producing cows than to keep the entire herd through the winter on short rations. A poor cow is a drain on the profits made by the rest of the herd.

We know that Christmas is approaching because our west-bound train is arriving an hour or more late mornings—a sure sign of the season.

Ninety-six students in the sophomore class at Penn State College are registered from Centre county. Among these are four from the south side of Centre county, Centre Hall being represented by Miss Jean Rishel; Linden Hall by Thomas Ross; Spring Mills by Robert Corman; Aaronsburg by Carl Winkloblech. Of the remainder, sixty-six are from State College; eight each from Bellefonte and Philipsburg, while eight other localities are represented by one or two each.
