CENTRE COUNTY HOSPITAL NOTES.

Week of January 25: Monday, admitted: Maurice Bryan, Centre Hall, R. D.

Tuesday, discharged: John H. Burkholder, Centre Hall, R. D.

Friday, discharged: Col. T. D. Boal, Boalsburg.

Sunday, admitted: Master Leroy Horner, Centre Hall, R. D. There were forty patients in the hospital beginning of this week.

THE SICK.

A number of persons in Centre Hall, mostly adults, are sick at this time, some are confined to bed, others simply remaining indoors to prevent further complications.

Probably the most serious of these is William E. Fiedler, who has been confined to bed for more than ten days. While it is not certain there is a possibility he had a light paralytic stroke at the beginning of his sickness. His condition Wednesday morning was reported not improved.

Daniel S. Daup, First National Bank employe, has been off duty for a few days, from gripe or something akin to it. W. D. Shoop has been confined to the house for a week or more with a bad cold.

Mrs. Elizabeth Small, at the C. E. Bradford home, has recovered from a three weeks' illness sufficiently to be out of bed.

Ralph Hagans, the garage man, who kept indoors for four or five days to prevent further trouble, is at his post at this time.

J. William Bradford, who was ordered to bed eight weeks ago due to a heart condition, came downstairs on Monday.

Edwin Crawford, 8, son of G. A. Crawford, is suffering from ear trouble, and must be in bed.

Mrs. J. C. Lee, Centre Hill, confined to bed for more than a week from gripe, is improving.

Miss Freda Burkholder and Miss Mildred Smith are gripe patients.

J. H. Burkholder, following an appendectomy, continues to improve at his home.

Grippe kept Mrs. W. W. Kerlin in bed from Friday until Wednesday.

Miss Jennie Bartholomew is seriously ill from complications.

David Stoner, who had a great toe removed following an infection, continues to be confined to bed. He does not suffer much pain, except when weight is put on the foot afflicted.

REP. DECKER SEEKS $56,000 FOR CENTRE CO. HOSPITAL

A bill was introduced in the lower house, Harrisburg, by Representative John W. Decker, Democrat from Centre, asking for $56,000 for the Centre County hospital. Previous appropriations were about one-half or the amount called for in the measure introduced on Monday.

MRS. A. WILSON NORRIS DIES IN BELLEFONTE

Mrs. A. Wilson Norris, widow of a former Auditor General of Pennsylvania, died Saturday at her home in Bellefonte. She was 93 on January 22. Her husband was Auditor General during the administration of Governor James Adams Beaver in 1887 to 1891.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.

The Julian Chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was host to an interested group of members last Wednesday evening. The ladies met at the Flesher restaurant and about 40 partook of a wholesome supper and then met in the parlor for mutual help.

Matters of general interest were discussed with the county president, Mrs. Fred Henry, of Phillipsburg, after devotions led by Mrs. Harriet Akins of Unionville.

Inspiring talks were given by Mrs. F. D. Gardner, county treasurer for the Union, and Mrs. W. A. Broyles, National Lecturer, both of State College. Current legislation was approved or disapproved. A reading was given by Miss Rowan of Unionville.

A spring institute will be held at Millheim early in April, since they lately reorganized.

The World's Convention will be held at Washington, D. C., June 4th to 9th, with 53 countries represented.

Besides those already mentioned were others from nearby points, and Mrs. R. Lucas, president of the Phillipsburg local; Mrs. Edna Baumgardner, county publicity director; and Mrs. James Andrews and daughter, Anna, at the wheel, all of Phillipsburg. Announcement was made that a radio program will be heard each fourth Friday over KDKA at 3.15 p. m., of interest to all.

P. D. Waddle died Monday morning in State College after a long illness.

Read in Bed... If You Like

It's Safe With Proper Lighting

By Louise Brown

Reading in bed used to be frowned upon as a very bad habit. Now we know that it wasn't the reading in bed that was harmful. The poor light by which we read often resulted in eyestrain and headaches and caused us to assume awkward, tiring positions.

Go ahead and read in bed if you like. Just make sure your lighting is the right kind to make reading a relaxing, comfortable pastime. And, whether your room is a mere cubby hole or a palatial one, good lighting is easy and inexpensive to achieve.

THESE ARE OUT

First, a word about the kind of lighting not to have.

What one home lighting adviser calls the "little bitty" lamp on the bedside table, is definitely out as a reading lamp. How could you enjoy reading by it when you have to tilt the shade to get even a small amount of light on your book, and turn and twist trying to find a comfortable position?

The light of a center fixture isn't adequate, either. Even though it gives a high intensity of light, the light doesn't fall on the page of your book, but rather on the back of your book as you lie in bed.

Many of the boudoir lamps that are hung on the headboard of the bed are far from satisfactory, for their positions make good posture impossible and their light is apt to be glaring on the page.

THESE ARE GOOD

My vote for comfortable reading in bed goes to the portable "pin up" wall lamp which may be hung above the bed as easily as you would a picture. In the photograph above, two of these are hung over twin beds. These lamps have diffusing glass bowls and when equipped with 100 watt lamps they give a very pleasing quality of light. They should be hung so that the distance from the light source to the book is about 30 inches.

Posture is almost sure to be right with such lighting for we unconsciously assume a nearly upright position. Thus, there is no unnecessary eyestrain as the eyes follow the printed page. Another excellent reading lamp that may be placed between twin beds, or beside a single bed for that matter, is the floor study type of lamp. One of the new I.E.S. approved end table lamps is also good, or a regular table study lamp. All of these have the glass bowl beneath the shade that softly diffuses the light. There is plenty of light without those bright reflections from the page to the eyes that cause you to constantly move your head in an attempt to escape from glare. Good lighting really makes reading in bed a delightful relaxation.
