HAWK RUN KILLING CALLS TO MIND HOPKINS MURDER

The Phillipsburg Daily Journal relates the incidents surrounding the Hopkins murder, on Sept. 22, 1889, in Phillipsburg. W. Seeley Hopkins shot his wife, Maggie, and mother-in-law, Mrs. Esther Wigman, to death in their home on a Sunday morning. He then made an unsuccessful attempt to kill himself. He shot himself twice in the head.

On November 29 of the same year he was declared guilty of murder in the first degree, after the jury had listened to evidence for 3 days before County Judge Furst.

He was hanged in the Bellefonte jail yard on February 29, 1890. The first time the trap was sprung the hangman's rope broke. The second time it held.

Hopkins' murder was called to mind by the recent killing of two children by a mother, Mrs. Jenny Galley, at Hawk Run, who with a hammer beat to death two of her offspring.

F. E. SNYDER COLLABORATES WITH ARCHITECTURAL STUDENT IN BUILDING MODELS

The craftsmanship of Floyd E. Snyder, local builder, is reflected in the construction of two models from plans prepared by Muth M. Bailey, of Centre Hall, Penn State senior in the department of architecture. The one model, drawn on 1/4 in.-to-one-foot scale, presents a Greyhound bus terminal for State College. The other, just completed, is an airport for the city of Williamsport, built to 1/8 in.-to-one-foot scale. Since Williamsport has a PWA airfield project under way, there is more than a remote possibility of this model in question becoming a reality for that city. The City Engineer is greatly interested in the student's plans and the model will be on display at that place in a short time.

Referring to the construction of the models, meticulous care was exercised by Mr. Snyder. Strength and rigidity are features not to be found in the average model, such as these two possess. No detail has been overlooked, even to the landscaping.

The Greyhound bus terminal model, while not quite so elaborate as the airport model, is nevertheless flawless in construction, and reflects the hand of the artist.

Mr. Snyder's attention to detail approaches a religion with him. Nothing is too much trouble when a desired effect is to be attained. His knowledge of construction is admitted, and his love for his work marks him as an outstanding craftsman.

SHED ON FETTEROLF FARM BURNS, FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday night at 10:30, fire was discovered to be burning briskly in an implement shed on the William F. Fetterolf farm and occupied by his son George I. Fetterolf. The senior Mr. Fetterolf, who lives nearby, was the first to discover the fire, and after entering the house and telephoning to Centre Hall for help, proceeded to protect the barn which stood within fifty feet of the shed. In the meantime the family got out of bed and lent their assistance to battling the flames with their hands, and carrying water.

On the arrival of the Centre Hall pumper, it took care of the situation. No flames burst out of the barn afterwards.

The shed, and an almost new side-delivery hay rake, binder, canvases and tools, a Ford truck and Chevrolet sedan, were included in the fire losses. Insurance was held only on the rake and canvases.

The origin of the fire is a complete mystery. Mr. Fetterolf used the truck in the evening to take butchering tools to the home of his father. He retired at 8:00 o'clock and the remainder of the family an hour later. None of them awakened until they heard someone talking over the telephone.

The farm is located in the Keller district east of Centre Hall.

Mrs. Cox did a very fine piece of teaching and the pupils responded well. She gave many helpful suggestions in the art of teaching reading for both elementary and secondary schools and if her suggestions and the methods of teaching she presented will be followed, more intelligent reading in the district should result.

SUBSCRIBER WRITES FROM STATE OF OREGON

426 Van Buren St., Corvallis, Ore., Mar. 1, 1937. The Centre Reporter:

I notice my subscription is due on the paper, Sorry I'm late; enclosed is $3.00 for two years' subscription. We do enjoy the "Reporter" so much—it is like a "big letter from home."

They tell me this is the coldest winter here since 1915. I thought it very mild compared with Pennsylvania winters. We have no storms and very little wind at any time. In the summer when it is hot other places, a nice cool breeze comes in from the ocean, which is about 60 miles away; the nights are always cool. Now, the grass is green and many have their gardens planted. We have lots of rain during the winter months, and sunshine all summer.

I am employed in the Central Business Office of Oregon State College and like the work very much. George Hennigh has located in Portland and is operating a dairy of his own. Another brother, David Hennigh, came to Oregon over 20 years ago and has been working with the same firm at Roseburg, where he and his family reside; he still reads the "Reporter" and often talks of many happenings back there, and hopes to go back on a visit someday.

We will move nearer the College next summer and will then send you the new address.

Very truly yours,
(Mrs.) ELIZABETH DEVINE.
