FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Control Grain Disease—Oat smut spreads with the seed, grows inside the plants, makes black heads, reduces yields, lowers quality, and makes threshing disagreeable. It can be controlled by treating the seed with formaldehyde solution, say Penn State plant pathologists. Ask your county agent for detailed information.

Sunlight Helps Chicks—If the chicks get sunlight through open front houses or if they are on range, it is not so necessary to supply vitamin D in the ration. Since it is desirable to feed some vitamin D, the ordinary amount may be reduced one-half for chicks getting direct sunlight, according to Penn State poultrymen.

Leaders Help Clubs—Local leadership plays an important part in the success of 4-H club work. Last year 1598 men and women gave time and talent to guiding agricultural and home economic groups throughout the state. Club work is conducted by the agricultural service of the Pennsylvania State College.

Improve Garden Soils—Organic matter helps the garden soil to perform the task expected of it, say State College vegetable gardeners. Stable manure, applied early, adds fertility to the soil and enables it to hold more water during dry seasons. Rye, clover or other green crops may be used as substitutes for manure, but should be turned under before becoming tough or straw.

Prepare Spray Rig—Save time and trouble during the spraying season by putting the spray rig in good condition now. Repairs and adjustments should be made so that the machine will work efficiently, say Penn State agricultural engineers.

Sweeten the Lawn Soil—If the grass is thin and moss and weeds are present, apply 50 pounds of ground limestone to each 1000 square feet of area as soon as possible, Penn State agronomists recommend.

LEARNING TO TALK

"I'm a student operator in the Bell Telephone Company. You'd be surprised how much more there is to the job than just operating a switchboard. Making connections quickly and accurately is only a part of it.

"For example, we have to know how to talk! How to speak clearly, courteously, pleasantly. For when you hear my voice I want it to mean a lot to you. I want it to tell you: 'Here's a pleasant, courteous, capable person who is anxious to give you prompt, accurate, pleasing service.'"

Although every telephone must have a number, we never forget that these numbers are really people. The business of helping you reach anybody, anywhere, at any time is a personal service, to be handled with speed and accuracy, but above all with courtesy. Use your telephone more to keep in touch with folks. It's a friendly thing to do—and often a profitable one.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

The 60-horsepower Ford V-8 engine was first developed for Europe, where fuel costs are high. Two years' usage there proved its unusual economy.

When the "60" came to this country this year, the Ford Motor Company made no mileage claims—waited for facts, written on American roads by American drivers.

Now Ford "60" owners are reporting averages of 22 to 27 miles on a gallon of gasoline. That makes it the most economical Ford car ever built!

Best of all, the Ford "60" is just as big and roomy—just as handsome, sturdy and safe—as the famous 85-horsepower Ford V-8. And it sells at the lowest Ford price in years.

If you want a big car for a small budget—a car you can drive with pride and profit—see the thrifty "60" soon!
