The timber on 315 acres, a part of the Harry E. Fye farm, at the road barn east of Centre Hall, along state highway route No. 95, is being cut and marketed by George Narhood, of Pine Glen. There is a great variety of timber, oak, pine, hemlock, maple, hickory and gum, on the tract. At the present time railroad ties and paper wood are being cut and sawed. The ties are shipped from the Centre Hall station and the paper wood is being trucked to the West Virginia paper mill at Tyone. Building material and boards are also being cut.

About fifteen men are regularly employed. It is proposed to finish the job by the approach of winter.

THE SENIOR DANCE.

The senior class of Centre Hall joint high school held a class dance in the local high school auditorium, Friday evening, Houck's orchestra from Milesburg, furnished the music. The hall was very appropriately decorated for the occasion. The numerals '37', four feet high, were treated with Blue Prang Tamper and artificial snow. The letters were flooded with blue from the footlights. A large cluster of balloons in the class colors of blue, gold and red was suspended from the center as well as a pennant from each ceiling light. The inset ceiling lights were lined with cellophane in the class colors.

The refreshment committee served the usual punch and sandwiches. A door prize of $2.00 was donated by Mrs. R. S. Jamison, and was won by Mrs. Warren Homan—lucky No. 19. The receipts totaled $82.00.

The class appreciates the patronage from our sister high schools and the immediate vicinity. The crowd was most orderly and all seemed to have had a good time.

TEACHER TENURE BILL PASSED HOUSE MON. NIGHT

The Mundy teacher tenure bill, providing security for instructors and "professional" employees, was passed finally in the House, 171 to 24, Monday night. It needs only Senate concurrence in amendments before going to the Governor for signature.

The bill caused the most prolonged debate of the session last Wednesday when Republican members failed to incorporate a half-dozen amendments. Monday night's action was a mild affair compared to the debate last week.

Representative J. T. Stewart, Republican, Indiana, an "old-time school man" who fought valiantly for amendments last week, supported the bill on final passage, but expressed the opinion that "it could have been a better bill."

Calling upon members of the 1935 Legislature "to bear him witness" that he had introduced "a tenure bill long before the Democratic members offered theirs," Representative John H. Longaker, Republican, Montgomery, voted for the Mundy bill because he "believes in furthering educational measures" and "is interested in teacher tenure."

Rep. L. Kenneth Harkins, Democrat, Allegheny, recalled he had sponsored a similar bill in 1935, and concluded his remarks with a plea for a majority vote on the measure.

Chairman Harry J. Brownfield, Democrat, Fayette, guided his education committee bill to permit consolidation of small school districts thru final passage in the House.

Many farmers in Penns Valley began plowing during the latter part of last week.

In the lower counties of the state oats plants are up, one or two inches long, forming a complete covering for the fields.

The first four days of April were delightful, but with Monday came rain.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY TO BE PRESENTED SATURDAY EVENING

"Hobgoblin House," a mystery play, will be the presentation of the Centre Hall high school seniors, Saturday, April 10, in the high school auditorium under the direction of Mrs. R. S. Jamison.

A disreputable old house in the Ozarks, alleged to be haunted, is the scene of the play, which opens with the two negro servants, Delilah and Henry, played by Sarah Homan and Bob Wetzel, and the "Henglish 'Ousekeeper," Mabel Foust, arriving at the weird old place in the midst of a terrible thunderstorm.

William Thomas, as Darius Krupp the caretaker, scares the servants and adds a sinister touch to the whole play.

Miss Priscilla Carter, Marie Snyder in the play, brings her two nieces, Jill and Marian, played by Geraldine Bradford and Louise Miller, to this out-of-the-way house to keep them from marrying Jack Loring and Frank Harlow, roles taken by Alfred Reish and Dick Johnston respectively.

Skulls, hidden closets, and an intricate murder story add to the weird mystery of the place to effect a unique mystery story which is further augmented by the appearance of George Heekman in the role of Bluebeard Ironson, a maniac and Charles Ramer, as Bill Wilkins, his keeper.

The solution is found after the identity of Patricia Arnold, played by Ardah Ishler, is disclosed.

Tickets for the performance are available from any senior or at the door on the night of the play at the rate of 35c and 25c.
