

Spring Mills

A COLLECTION OF NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND PERSONALS FROM GREGG TWP.'S METROPOLIS.

Large Crowd Witness Senior Play—An excellent crowd turned out to see the play entitled "The Ghost Parade" which was presented by the senior class of G. T. V. S. in the Gregg township auditorium Friday night.

Wild Game Pictures to Be Shown—Pictures of Wild Life will be shown in the auditorium at Spring Mills on Thursday evening, April 22, under the sponsorship of the Spring Mills Fish and Game Association.

G. T. V. S. Plays Howard Friday—The G. T. V. S. baseball team will open their home season with a league game with Howard high on the Spring Mills diamond on Friday at 3 p. m.

High School Entrance Examination—The entrance examination for admission to the Gregg Twp. Vocational School will be given at Spring Mills on Friday, April 23, at 9 a. m.

Gregg Twp. Pre-School Clinic on May 3 and 4—Plans have definitely been made to hold a pre-school clinic in the primary room at Spring Mills on the afternoon of May 3 and the morning of May 4 for all Gregg Twp. children who will enter first grade next fall.

The Sick are All Improving—On Monday the sick in and about Spring Mills were reported to be improving. Mrs. A. C. Confer, who returned from the Lewistown hospital more than a week ago, made a remarkable recovery.

Blaine Bitter, who underwent a stomach ulcer operation in the Lewistown hospital, is improving rapidly. Haring unforseen complications, it will only be a short time until he will be able to return home.

H. F. Erdley, cashier of the First National Bank, made his first trip to the bank on Monday forenoon. That means that he too will be back of the wickers soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Condo spent Sunday in Coburn visiting with Mrs. Condo's sister, Mrs. Paul Vonada, and family.

Mrs. Carrie Long attended a funeral of a relative of Mrs. Lohr, in Millheim, Wednesday.

Mrs. Curtis Watts, with Mrs. Annie Detweiler as a motor guest, motored to Millheim and Aaronsburg to visit the Roush family, one day last week.

Miss Gladys Ziegler, employed at Laurelton State Village, was home over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Bright Bitter spent Sunday with the Harry Mensch family in Milton.

Ivy Bartges, who has been making his home with his son, Ralph, in Sunbury, has been ill during the past week.

Vernon Godshall spent the week-end with his family in Spring Mills.

Orchestra Instructor Here—Robert Hartley arrived in town during the past week. He will become the instructor of the Vocational School orchestra, and will perform a similar service at Centre Hall where an orchestra will be formed from raw material in the high and grade schools.

Mrs. Mabel Musey is suffering from an infected middle finger on the left hand.

Mrs. Blanche Diehl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dunlap, formerly of Millheim, is employed at the Laurelton State Village in some capacity in the kitchen, where the food is prepared for the 700 and over inmates.

Rev. Russell Returned—Members of the Methodist church comprising the Penns Valley charge, are more than pleased over the return of Rev. Seth W. Russell, who is beloved by all. He has been doing splendid work in all of the appointments. Rev. Russell, besides performing ministerial duties, is teaching two classes in Sociology at Penn State, two days a week.

Mrs. Annie Emerick is living with Mrs. C. A. Krape at the present time. Randall Meyer is having the interior of his home redecorated. The Meyer family occupy the former Gramley home.

Albert Lingle purchased a new Chevrolet sedan from the Miller Motor Co. Miss Margaret Grenoble is expected home from Susquehanna University over the week-end. She will be accompanied by a young lady, a school-mate.

George Bartley, a retired railroad trackman, reported the best catch of trout by local talent. He brought in a string of one or two short of the limit. Three fishermen from Johnstown, stopping at the Leonard Kerstetter house, captured but 18.

Harry Brown, of Williamsport, was with his father, Samuel Brown, over the week-end.

Mrs. D. M. McCool, Mrs. Grace McCool and Miss Rae McCool visited with the former's daughter, Miss Lottie McCool, in Millheim, during last week.

Floating Gang of Railroad Men—What is termed a "floating gang" of 15 or 18 repairmen employed by the P. R. R. company, are located at Spring Mills. They carry three especially equipped coaches for living purposes, a flat car and two box cars.

One of the cars contains a blacksmith's outfit and a large variety of tools and the other is loaded with supplies. The men are skilled electricians, plumbers, blacksmiths, linemen, carpenters, bricklayers, masons, painters, etc. At Spring Mills a chimney was rebuilt, much of it with new brick, all the material being taken from the supply car. The "floaters" will do repairing all along the L. & T. Quite a change from the old methods which hauled a man from Williamsport to any place along the line to take the squeak out of a door hinge. Frank Long, one of the men in the crew, built the concrete bridge over Sinking creek, west of here, twenty-five years ago.

Messrs. B. G. Meyers, Frank Beaton, Thomas Kerstetter, John Goodhart and Miles Bressler, fished in Baker Run, west of Renovo, for trout. Their catch was moderate, but Mr. Meyer got the largest one.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bell and Miss Edna, of Sunbury, visited with Mr. and Mrs. G. C. King on Sunday.

C. E. Ziesler and Mrs. Lulu Brungart, on Sunday, were guests of the latter's daughter, Mrs. Paul Cummings, in Rebersburg. Mr. Cummings is a son of Arthur Cummings, and is a caretaker on State roads.

Wm. Osman purchased a Diamond T truck which will be used on his milk route to the Sheffield milk plant at Coburn.

Donald, 5 years old, who recently suffered a fractured leg when hit by motorcycle he was inspecting, is recovering nicely at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Breen.

Silk Mill Closed Temporarily—The Groce silk mill closed for a few days, but will resume operations today (Thursday) to manufacture products on hand. When that is done, it is estimated, the mill will again close with no guarantee when it will be reopened. The closing of the industry is greatly regretted, not only by the employees, but by business men and citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Corman motored to Williamsport on Friday. On Friday evening, April 22, the class in home economics will have its last instruction in cooking for the present season. The class will meet at the home of Mrs. Robert Heckman. The only other activity the class members have in mind is a pleasure trip by motor and a dinner, the time and place not determined at this time.

The Past Templars Association of Centre-Clinton county held its regular meeting in Lock Haven Wednesday evening. The gathering is usually attended by 50 to 60 ladies.

Penn Hall Topsy-turvy—All on account of rebuilding State highway route 45, Penn Hall at the present time looks as though nobody cared, but when the work is completed the village will be greatly improved in appearance, in addition to having a first-class thoroughfare passing through it. The Lester Condo store and garage surroundings will be materially improved in appearance and may be approached more easily by the public than heretofore. The homes of Jerry Albright and Edward Zerby will also set better, much better than heretofore, after the owners expend the money labor they have planned to do. William Hagan's brick dwelling, always sitting high, is now higher, but at the same time the front line is even and the roadway to the barn that disfigured the property, is moved to the rear and is easier to travel. Nearly all surroundings to the properties to the east of these points can be brought to conform to the new road levels. The exception is the large brick farm house, owned by the Pittsburgh Stone Co., where the road elevation has been raised about eight feet.

Wayne Biting represented Gregg Vocational at the baseball clinic conducted on Saturday at State College. A number of others from here interested also took a part in the sessions.

BOALSBURG

Mrs. Boyd Williams, of Houserville, spent Friday evening visiting Mrs. Nevin Meyer.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Reformed church will hold a food sale at the Wm. Tennis store on Saturday afternoon and evening, Apr. 24. Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Goheen, with Miss Augusta Murray as a motor guest, drove to Hollidaysburg on
