BLIND GIRL COOKS COMPLETE MEALS ON ELECTRIC RANGE

By LOUISE BROWN

YOU MAY be as amazed as I was to learn the ease with which a complete meal may be cooked on an electric range without the use of sight. Miss Gretta Griffiths, who has been blind almost from birth, demonstrates it daily in the Home Economics Kitchen of a nationally known manufacturer. Miss Griffiths is actually demonstrating electric cookery at cooking schools throughout the country with great success.

Here, briefly, is her story.

Always desirous of being of assistance in the work of her home, she was handicapped by her affliction until her mother purchased an electric range. Miss Griffiths soon became so proficient in the use of the range that she was cooking all of the meals for her family. She performs all types of surface and oven cookery as well as the preparation of broiler cooked foods. In making pies, cakes, cookies, etc., she is able to divide the ingredients exactly through the use of measuring cups and measuring spoons. Spices she identifies through her sense of smell. She knows that flour comes in a sack and baking powder in a can and therefore can tell them apart.

The "time chime" and timer clock of the range enable her to time each cooking operation accurately. The absence of flame makes the range safe for her to use, eliminating the danger of her clothes catching on fire.

A native of El Dorado, Kansas, Miss Griffiths attended McPherson College, McPherson, Kansas, where she studied social sciences and, upon graduation, entered the University of Chicago, where, in August, 1935, she obtained her Master's Degree in Educational Psychology.

Nation Meets at Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland

SOUTHERN PALMS wave in the breezes of Lake Erie as Yeomanettes of the Great Lakes Exposition at Cleveland stroll through the 150 acres of the big show that opens, all new and greater, on May 29 to run for 101 days. In the background is the big modernistic Varied Industries Building, which houses the exhibits of the nation's manufacturers and which is a companion building to the 100,000-square-foot Hall of Progress that shows the development of the home through modern science and electricity. A marine theme marks the Exposition, which has as a chief entertainment feature Billy Rose's huge 5,000 seat theater - restaurant, Aquacade, with its company of 500 Lady-Go-Diving girls headed by Eleanor Holm Jarrett, Aquabelle No. 1 of the show. More than 30 foreign nations will be represented in the "Streets of the World" at the Exposition, which will draw more than 5,000,000 visitors from Canada and the United States this summer.
