

General State Authority to Spend $5,000,000 at State College

Included in The General State Authority's plans to modernize Pennsylvania's higher education is the $5,000,000 building project for State College. Nine main structures designed by Hunter, Caldwell, and Klauder, architects, will be erected. Five of them reproduced here with their estimated cost are: (1) Mineral Industrial, $139,000; (2) Agricultural Science, $663,000; (3) Chemistry & Physics, $937,000; (4) Biological Engineering, $111,000; (5) Electrical Engineering, $529,000. Four other equally artistic structures, not shown here, are for Library, Education, and Forestry.

One of the most ambitious educational programs ever launched by the Commonwealth is being inaugurated at State College by the Earle Administration as The General State Authority breaks ground there this fall in a $5,000,000 building project.

This money, procured through loans and grants from the Federal P.W.A. will be broken down into thirteen units; four of which embrace: service lines for power, a poultry building, a water supply system, and a service building.

The capital expenditure includes nine buildings devoted to higher education and research, as follows:

Liberal Arts: Three stories of brick and limestone, 170 ft. by 50 ft., with a connecting wing 61 ft. by 50 ft. Estimated cost, $500,000.

Forestry: Three stories of brick and limestone, 170 ft. by 50 ft., with an approximate cost of $150,000.

Educational: Three stories of brick and limestone, 170 ft. by 50 ft., cost approaching $300,000.

Library: Three stories of brick and limestone, 260 ft. by 41 ft. with a four-story rear central wing, 83 ft. by 64 ft. Estimated, half a million.

Mineral Industrial: Three stories of brick and limestone, 37 ft. by 75 ft., with two flanking wings one story high, each wing being 35 ft. by 67 ft. Approximate cost, $130,000.

Biological Science: Three stories of brick and limestone, 292 ft. by 65 ft. Estimated cost, $650,000.

Electrical Engineering: Three stories of brick and limestone, 200 ft. by 50 ft., with a rear central wing two stories high, 115 ft. by 75 ft. Approximate cost half a million dollars.

Chemistry-Physics: This will represent the greatest expenditure for an individual unit the cost approximating a million dollars. It will be three stories of brick and limestone, 194 ft. by 71 ft., flanked by a three-story end wing, 92 ft. by 72 ft.

Agricultural Engineering: Two-story structure of brick and limestone 116 ft. by 45 ft., flanked by a one-story shop wing, 100 ft. by 45 ft. Estimated cost, $110,000.

These enlargements will fill a long-felt want, and permit matriculation of hundreds of students who annually fall of admission.

In announcing The General State Authority's plans today, Colonel A. S. Janeway, executive director of The Authority, paid high tribute to the excited place State College holds in the world's scientific and cultural advancement. He pointed out that Penn State as the Commonwealth's Land Grant College, provides trained men and women for Pennsylvania's commerce and industry, its schools, churches and homes; and that all State interests are benefited by the research activities of its staff, and the extension program of its faculty.

Colonel Janeway recalled that in this instructional project, Pennsylvania is carrying on the higher education that had its origin back in colonial times, and generations later when Congress passed the Land Grant College Act in 1862, the General Assembly immediately designated Pennsylvania State College as the Land Grant College of the Keystone State.

Pennsylvania State College receives a large part of its maintenance from Federal and State appropriations in keeping with the provisions of the Act to engage in higher education "in such manner as the Legislature of the State may prescribe" and "to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life."

LARGE CROWDS ENJOYING MANY FEATURES OF A SUCCESSFUL GRANGE FAIR

The following is an Associated Press dispatch dated Centre Hall, Aug. 23:

Farmers and their families, town-folk and tourists moved into more than 500 tents pitched on the 73-acre fairground for the annual Grange Encampment and Centre County fair.

They brought cots, cooking utensils and food enough to last a week because it is custom at the Grange fair to sleep and eat there until it's over.

They will enjoy the usual country fair program, agricultural exhibits, Grange plays, concerts, the carnival midway, baseball games and agricultural judging contests. At the same time they'll have the fun of tenting under the open skies.

One of the few fairs of its kind east of the Mississippi River, the Grange Encampment and Centre County Fair is observing its 54th consecutive season this year. Patrons have been camping on the grounds for the fair programs since 1838.

It all started back in 1837 when local leaders of the Grange decided to hold a picnic. In 1836 they decided to make it a two-day affair and to camp on the grounds overnight. The gathering was then held on top of Nittany Mountain. The Grangers borrowed tents from the National Guard the first few years. Later they formed an association, moved to their present location and began to buy tents.

Now they can't supply enough tents to meet the demand. Reservations are made a year in advance and many tents retain their reservations for years at a time. The tents, not all Grangers, come from miles around.

The daughters of Leonard Rhone, one of the founders of the encampment, probably hold the record for continuous attendance. Mrs. May Rhone Bayard and Mrs. Florence Rhone Bayard, both of Tyrone, camped with the first tents and they've only missed one year since.

The records of Mrs. Dunlap and Mrs. Bayard are matched by several others. The first Grangers Picnic, so it was called in its early days, was held in Leech's woods, west of Centre Hall along the Brush Valley road.

The main road passed through the grove. There was great enthusiasm among the members of the organization, and there was a great deal of criticism. Merchants, dealers, salesmen, referred to at that time as middle-men, were fearful of the policy preached and practiced by members of the order.

"Buy in quantity and direct from the wholesaler" was a Grange slogan.

The Grange was the first secret order in this region to admit female members. This too was criticized by those hostile to the organization. At the beginning members of the organization were real dirt farmers and their families—no chance for a middleman. Later there were greatly modified and there were admitted to the inner portals merchants and tradesmen.

The second Grangers' picnic was held on Farm School property, in a grove close by Old Main. That was in 1874. Following that the site selected was the old fair grounds, Bellefonte. Later, the Collins iron furnace occupied the site.

Top of Nittany Mountain was thought at one time to be a permanent fixture as a site for the great annual gathering, but in 1886, when the camping feature was adopted, the mountain top became overcrowded. It was in 1888 and 1889 that a tryout was made in the Old Fort woods. The handicaps were too many, forcing the committee to buy the present Grange

NEW DEALERS SPILL F. D. R. THOUGHT AT MOSHANNON PK

Drawing a record-breaking crowd from all parts of central Pennsylvania the Central Pennsylvania Democratic picnic at Black Moshannon Park, Wednesday of last week, was declared the most successful in the history of its sponsor, the Phillipsburg Young Democratic Club.

CCC boys kept check of cars traveling in one direction to the park and reported a count of 4299 automobiles and trucks loaded with picnickers entered the park grounds. The attendance was estimated at from 8,000 to 12,000 persons.

The day's activities began at the Hotel Phillips at 1 p. m. when Senator E. J. Thompson gave a luncheon in honor of the speaker and guests. Fifty-five persons attended.

A motor caravan of speakers and guests was escorted to the park by State motor police.

After welcoming the guests at the park, Russel Lucas, president of the local Young Democratic club, turned the speaking program over to Senator Thompson.

Speakers included Warren VanDyke, secretary of highways; Congressman Don Gingery of Clearfield; Attorney Ivah Walker of Bellefonte; Mrs. Gertrude Fuller, head of the state museum at Harrisburg; Mrs. Lucy Howe Merrill of Phillipsburg; F. Clair Ross state treasurer; Edward Prendergast secretary to Governor Earle; Brig. Gen. Fred Kerr of Clearfield; Commander John Pennington, superintendent of the Huntingdon Industrial school; Jackson Scari, Lehigh county Democratic chairman and Assistant Secretary of Revenue; Michael Frey, representative of the department of labor and industry and District Attorney Philip Johnston of Bellefonte.

Others introduced from the platform and who made brief remarks were County Chairman Clarence Kramer of Clearfield; County Chairman Satterwhite of McKean; Thomas Lauley of Blair. Centre county chairman Dick Taylor could not be present because of illness.

Senator Thompson also introduced Representatives Lowell Alexander of Mifflin county; Blake Shugart and Frank Hamilton of Clearfield county; John Decker of Centre county; Dennis Westrick of Cambria county; William Aukerman of Blair county and Joseph Simon of Clinton county.

Secretary Prendergast paid tribute to Senator Thompson, stating that his efforts to get State relief on a permanent basis had brought him national recognition because his fight for such legislation resulted in Pennsylvania being the first State to put relief on a permanent basis.

F. Clair Ross, state treasurer, declared that within the past few years the word "liberty" has taken on new meaning in America. In England, he said, liberty means the right to eat and drink as one pleases; in France it means the abolition of caste; in Germany it means the right to think as one pleases. "In the United States we used to consider liberty the right of a man to make money, all he could make in any way he could make it."

Liberty has a different meaning for us today. It means freedom from fear, knowledge that one's job is intact, that money in the bank is safe, freedom from hunger, old age security—people who have these things have freedom.

George Peterson's parachute jump at 6:30 p. m. was the climax of the day for most of the picnickers.

The demand for restaurant service in Centre Hall has been so great during the past summer that many persons could not be accommodated.

EXCESSIVE RAINS HOLD UP FARM AND ROAD WORK

The rainfall for Thursday and Friday of last week was 3.25 inches. This following frequent heavy rains during the two weeks previous, thoroughly soaked the upper crust of the earth, making it too wet for any kind of work in soil on the farm.

This excess moisture also held up road work for several days. The power shovel at the Bartholomew quarry was quieted, too. From a great pile of refuse—stone and earth—the shovel on Wednesday of last week accommodated twenty-one trucks for a part and eighteen trucks all of the time. The material is being hauled to a fill at the Fred Slack farm on the Centre Hall-Spring Mills State highway under construction. More than 500 truck loads were dumped in a day.

The only project not thwarted by the downpour of rain was the Grange Encampment and Fair. It has long ago gotten over rain-fright. Thursday was moving day, and all through the day—during and between showers—"Ritings" continued to enter the park. The driveways in some sections were pretty badly cut up, but later the sun took care of the moisture and trucks and the feet of thousands of campers tramped the soil into a smooth solid mass.

The cider press at Tusseyville will begin operations on Tuesday, Sept. 14th and the press will be in service Tuesday and Thursday of each week throughout the season.—C. A. Miller.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

Don't forget the Wm. Gruenwald sale of western horses at Centre Hall on Friday, September 3rd, at 1 p. m.

Mrs. Eva Douglas and daughter Arlene, of Yeagertown, spent a week at the J. F. Treaster home, west of town.

Seven and one-half inches of rain at Centre Hall is the heaviest precipitation in many years for the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lingle and daughter, Miss Myra Lingle, of Reedsville, spent Sunday visiting friends on Grange Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Lingle and party of friends, of Sunbury, motored to Centre Hall Sunday and spent the day on Grange park.

John C. Bailey is expected to arrive here on Friday from his home in Philadelphia and will be a guest of his sister, Mrs. W. W. Kerlin.

Mrs. Ella Shoop is now in Baltimore, Md. On Friday one of her daughters from that city called on her, then ill in bed, and the same day took her with her to her home.

John F. Foreman and two sons, of Bakerton, and Guy F. Foreman, a railway detective for the New York Central of Buffalo, N. Y., were on Grange Park Saturday evening, visiting friends.

Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Longwell and young daughter, of Tyrone, were numbered among the throng on Grange Park on Sunday. It is thirteen years since the doctor attended the last Grange fair, and that while a resident physician here.

Mrs. J. M. Coldron had the misfortune to receive an injury to one of her hands, on Sunday morning, when the lid of an ice box struck it. The Coldrons are conducting an eating stand on Grange Park and it was there the mishap occurred.

John W. Wilson, of Lewistown, was a caller at this office one day last week. For ten years he was employed in the treasury department in Harrisburg but at present is casting about to capture some business with a reasonable prospect of being developed.

John M. Blausier of Pottery Mills, attended the annual State Camp gathering of delegates from the various P. O. S. of A. camps in Pennsylvania, held in the Benjamin Franklin hotel, Philadelphia, last week. E. S. Ripka, of Millheim, district president, also attended the convention.

Miss Pauline Horner, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Horner, of Coyley, was a patient last week in an eye and ear hospital in Washington, D. C., undergoing treatment for an injury to an eye sustained while working in a restaurant at State College. It appears she injured the optic in striking it against the corner of a table.

Among the many who were on the park on Sunday was Clayton Weber and family, of Lock Haven. Mr. Weber is a son of Willis Weber who lived in Centre Hall during the time Centre Hall Foundry company was building machinery and wagons. It was due to the skill of Mr. Weber that the Centre Hall wagon became popular in its day.

Charles W. Weaver, and wife, of near Lewisburg, called at the Reporter headquarters on Grange Park. Mr. Weaver is past 83 years old, and his wife, 78. On June 19, last, the couple celebrated their 57th marriage anniversary. Mr. Weaver is a native of Farmers Mills, where he was reared. He reports crops fine in his section of Union county.

The electric light and power line is being extended from the J. B. Wert home, along State highway route No. 322 to Tusseyville. The line comes from Boalsburg and was built as far as the Wert home some time ago. The extension to Tusseyville will serve a number of farm homes and will terminate at the Ramer store. Poles are now being set.

James Brooks began serving milk on the route purchased from the Frank brothers. A new Plymouth commercial sedan is used in the service. Mr. Brooks lives on his father's farm several miles west of town, and keeps a herd of very productive cows, all having previously been tested and found to come under the rules and regulations of herds from which milk is sold in the raw state.

Reports of large yields of wheat continue to come in as the threshing season advances. A field of fourteen acres on the Manna Kline farm, stocked by him, produced an average of forty-one bushels of No. 44, a bearded variety. On close measurement the average would be increased since in the field both a ridge and a small apple orchard not tilled are included. The yield at that was the heaviest Mr. Kline had in his farming experience.

Prof. John R. Bracken and Mrs. Bracken, of State College, also Mrs. Bracken's sister, Miss Katharine Baird, of McKeesport, were discharged on Saturday from a Greenville hospital where they were treated for injuries in a motor accident as they were entering Pymatung Dam. Prof. Bracken is a member of the department of landscape architecture at Penn State. He laid out the Kerlin home surrounding, and supervised the plantings on it.
