As a result of the new farm-game program adopted by the Game Commission a year ago, under which landowners lease their hunting rights to the Game Commission for a minimum of five years, Pennsylvania hunters will have more than 20,000 acres of additional open shooting territory on which to pursue their sport this season.

The Orange and Black benefit drive sponsored by the local high school will end tomorrow. Students are still busy pinning on lapels the slogan "Support The Tigers," in a final effort to raise enough money for soccer uniforms. All persons who have not been approached at this date are urged to make their contributions to any of the student committee members or to any of the high school teachers.

During the illness of F. V. Goodhart, local funeral director, his business has been ably conducted by his nephew, F. D. ("Ben") Goodhart, who for the past five years has been closely associated with his uncle in the work. The young man's interest in the business was always more than casual; in fact, he was most conscientious and strove to master all the details of embalming, and did so. Consequently, the community is secure in the knowledge that in the event of death in the family, the same reliable service of the Goodhart establishment will be rendered as in the past.

The former W. W. Kerlin home, purchased a year ago by Mrs. F. P. Geary is being repainted on the exterior by John Coldron and assistant. The color will be tan with green window sash. This property was formerly owned by D. F. Luse, deceased who built it more than sixty years ago. Mr. Luse was an artistic painter, and expressed himself more or less eloquently in the building and decorating of his home. The frame was constructed in blocks and painted to simulate marble. The mottling was so cleverly done as to give an almost column also imitated stone. The painting was well done, for it endured throughout the years.

Robert Kramer, a New Haven Conn. dentist who was unable to attend a dinner served in honor of Mrs. Ellen Geary recently, provided a Connecticut 16-lb. turkey and also provided for its preparation and serving to a party of twelve at the home of Mrs. Geary in Millheim, on Sunday at noon. While Mr. Kramer is a stranger hereabouts many will recall his wife who frequently visited her uncle here when she was a girl and known as Flossie Geary. Others not mentioned heretofore in the group included Mrs. J. B. Kerstetter, Coburn; Charles Geary and son, Newport; Mrs. Mrs. Mae Wagonseller, Newport; Mrs. Ollie Auman, Mrs. E. P. Brown, Millheim; Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Jamison Centre Hall.

The latter Mr. Igen is a graduate of the Penn State School of Dairy Husbandry. His brother, Dean, by the way, is showing interest in the Bethlehem Steel company.

The appointment of Edgar W. Miller to a place on the board of directors of the Centre Hall First National Bank is in recognition of the business ability of the young man as well as the general fitness displayed in the personal makeup. Since becoming the head of the Miller Motor company, Mr. Miller has been able to overcome numerous obstacles. At present the concern is on a sure and sound foundation and is enjoying an extensive patronage. The stockholders in the bank at their annual meeting will be certain to sustain the board's action. Mr. Miller takes the place of the late lamented Thomas F. Delaney.

FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

To Show Livestock—Members of 4-H livestock clubs are exhibiting their baby beavers, lambs and pigs at shows, roundups and fairs. The boys and girls look forward to these events where their achievements are measured and their efforts rewarded.

Prevent Pullet Molt—Proper feeding can be used to prevent a fall molt in the pullet flock. Using supplementary feeds, such as fattening mash or pellets, will aid in building body weight, say Penn State poultry specialists. Light plays an important part in increased feed consumption.

Select Show Fruit—During the picking and packing season is the time for Pennsylvania apple growers to start preparing for an outstanding exhibit at the State Farm Show in Harrisburg next January. Fruit uniform in size, shape, and color makes the most attractive exhibit.

Bedbugs Bother Hens—Common bedbugs and some of their close relations are found quite frequently in laying houses, Penn State poultry specialists report. After the house has been thoroughly cleaned, the walls perches, dropping boards, and nests should be sprayed with kerosene. The material should be forced into all cracks and crevices.

Gather Winter Bouquets—Fields, swamps, and woods produce winter bouquets for the home. In these places bittersweet, winterberry, bayberry, swamp holly, evergreen, grasses and seed pods are found. These can be arranged attractively, say Penn State home management specialists.

Control Stomach Worms—Lambs should be drenched every three weeks until they are marketed if stomach worms are attacking them, Penn State livestock specialists recommend.

DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR POLICE SLAYER

Death in the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary was the sentence given Wm. H. Yeager, 52-year-old Montour county farmer, for the slaying of State Policeman John E. Fessler, of the Muncy sub-station, on April 22. Judge Charles C. Evans of Danville pronounced sentence Saturday morning.

The date of electrocution will be set by Governor George H. Earle. Before pronouncing sentence, Yeager was asked if he had anything to say. His answer was, "Nothing." As during the entire trial, the defendant at no time displayed emotion.

HEREFORD CATTLE FOR SALE.—500 steer calves, 400 yearling, 200 heifer calves. Other heavy cattle. Also horses and mules, about your own price.—Write, J. F. TEAL, Fairfield, Iowa. x36

SERVING TASTY MEALS MADE EASY WITH ELECTRIC RANGE, Say Young Housewives

YOU CAN DO WONDERFUL BROILING WITH AN Electric Roaster

IF anyone in your family is particularly fond of broiled meats—broiled "just so"—get one of the new electric roasters that are especially equipped to do this tasty type of cooking!

You'll be delightfully surprised at the broiling that can be turned out with an electric roaster. Steaks, chops, meat patties, fish—they'll be cooked to a queen's taste! Juicy, flavorful, tender. And it's so convenient.

But—and this may be REAL news to you—fruit broiling is just as easy. Apple slices, bananas, apricots, pears—served as appetizers or garnishes—they're simply wonderful. And broiled vegetables, too, like tomatoes and mushrooms. It's marvelous, the delicious tastes that the electric roaster develops in them.

One more surprise: While you're broiling meat in the top of the roaster, you can also heat up your pre-cooked vegetables in the bottom—and a complete meal (for as few as two or as many as ten) is ready to serve!

YOUR ELECTRICITY IS CHEAPER THAN EVER NOW—ENJOY ITS BENEFITS—CHANGE TO ELECTRIC COOKING!

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE WHO WANTS CLEAN, COOL AND FAST COOKING, AT A REASONABLE COST PER MONTH, I RECOMMEND AN ELECTRIC RANGE. MY ELECTRIC RANGE CERTAINLY FULFILLS THESE REQUIREMENTS.

MRS. WILLIAM WALLACE MONONGAHELA, PA.

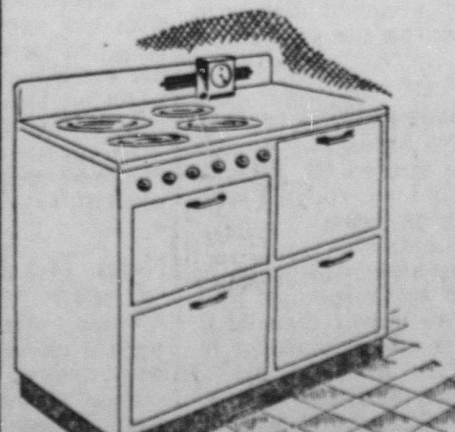

AUTOMATIC OPERATION ALSO SOLVES OTHER PROBLEMS FOR WOMEN WHO ARE NOT SO EXPERIENCED IN ART OF COOKING

FROM two to three times as many electric ranges as last year are being installed in homes served by West Penn. And three in every ten of these ranges are being purchased by women who have been cooks for only a comparatively short time!

There are good reasons why so many young cooks prefer this method. First, it eliminates much cleaning work—there is no soot or smoke to smudge walls, curtains or utensils. Foods don't even cook fast to the inside of pots and pans.

Second, "measured" heat and automatic operation mean that complete meals can be cooked without a bit of attention from the cook. She can be miles away from the kitchen—or elsewhere in the house, attending to other duties—while the cooking is going on, knowing that the foods will be hot and ready to serve at meal time.

Best of all, electric cooking is largely "waterless." The flavors and nourishing elements do not cook away. They are "sealed in"—making every morsel a delight to the tongue and an aid to good health.
