

COMMISSIONERS DEFINE OBLIGATION TO CLASSES UNDER THEIR JURISDICTION

Poor Boards in Centre county have not been functioning since January 1st, and those who have been regularly receiving assistance from the overseers are now being cared for by the County Board of Assistance, the Emergency Relief Board, but it is not as simple a matter as it was to go to an overseer and get a little handout in the shape of an order for a ton of coal or a week's provisions. Naturally there will be a conflict of opinion for some time as to which one of the above relief agencies is responsible for the keep of habitual dependents, the man or woman who occasionally needs a little assistance and the transients. Clarifying their position the County Commissioners issued a statement this week, giving their construction of the new law and specifying the classes that will come under their jurisdiction, namely:

(1) Care for a dependent, having a settlement in Centre county, who is not otherwise cared for.

(2) To contribute moneys to pay all, or part of the cost of maintaining children in foster homes, in institutions, and in homes for children.

(3) To pay the cost, or part of the cost, of the care and maintenance of mental and other patients confined in institutions, such as mental hospitals and other State institutions.

(4) To provide medical care for the indigent poor actually receiving relief from the County Board of Assistance.

Thus it will be seen that under the above construction of the law the County Board of Assistance will be responsible for the bulk of the expenditures heretofore assumed by the poor boards.

While no permanent organization of the Assistance Board has been made the probability is all the relief agencies will be consolidated by the first of March. The executive director in charge and the supervisor will be appointed by the State from the list of those who took the civil service examination but who the fortunate ones might be has not been revealed, as yet.

The commissioners further explain: "Generally speaking, and in order to clarify the entire present arrangement, the Centre County Institutional District, under the control of the commissioners of Centre county, is responsible for all institutional care of dependents in addition to medical attention for actual recipients of relief, but not responsible for what was formerly known as Outdoor Relief.

"Since the county is no longer authorized to use its funds for Outdoor Relief, those cases which were receiving such aid from the directors of poor of Centre county were referred to the Board of Assistance some time ago in order that the new State agency could provide assistance as of January 1, 1938. Therefore, the responsibility for providing assistance in money, goods, shelter, services or burial, with State or Federal funds, for indigent persons who reside in Pennsylvania and need assistance to enable them to maintain for themselves, and their dependents, a decent and healthful standard of living now rests with the Assistance Board, which receives its funds from the Department of Public Assistance of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

"The Assistance Board has offices in Temple Court, Bellefonte.

"We feel that every dollar spent by us for Outdoor Relief would be a penalty on the taxpayers of Centre county," according to Paul Eckley, president of the board of commissioners. "It would result in the local taxpayers not only paying their share of relief, which is legally required from the county under the new law, but also paying from local taxes for relief items which are now the state's responsibility, and should be paid by state taxes to which our taxpayers are already contributing.

"As the new officers of the Centre County Institutional District, we fully intend to care for the county's needs in the institutions and provide necessary medical care, and other services prescribed by the new law, but full responsibility for all other assistance, excepting medical care, is now with the Assistance Board. Therefore, if any resident of Centre county is in need of assistance, and has no funds with which to provide the necessities of life, it is necessary that he now look to the Assistance Board for help, and not to the commissioners of Centre county."

AHLBERG-KILLIAN

Announcement was made of the wedding of Miss Grace Killian, registered nurse, of Lewisburg, R. D., and Everett Carl Ahlberg, of Lansburg, Clearfield. The ceremony was performed Jan. 29, at the parsonage of the White Deer Lutheran church, charge, West Milton. Rev. Ernest L. Bottiger officiated at the rites.

ROCKVIEW PEN PRISONER CAPTURED IN EARLYSTOWN SCHOOL HOUSE, FRI. EV'G

Harry Lehman, a prisoner at Rockview, who walked from the penitentiary grounds on Friday just before noon was captured by guards in the Earlystown school house, south of Centre Hall, on the same evening, following information telephoned to the prison office by James Royer, farmer, who lives near the school house. Mr. Royer observed the man loitering around the one-room school building, and make maneuvers as though he desired to enter. He finally entered through a storm door to a small hallway, and managed to climb into the school room through a transom over the door.

The message to the penitentiary office soon brought two guards, who accompanied Mr. Royer to the school building, where the farmer opened the inner door with a key in his possession. The prisoner offered no resistance. Mr. Royer will receive the customary reward of $50.00 for such service.

When he left the prison grounds Lehman, white, was working on a road near the superintendent's home. He was a prisoner at Rockview since Sept. 17, having two years yet to serve on the minimum of a 10 to 20 years sentence. The other portion of his sentence was served in Philadelphia on the charge of entering with intent to steal.

He is twenty-eight years old, weighs 142 pounds and is five feet 9 inches tall.

He will be sentenced in due time by Judge Ivan Walker.
