

ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST

There was a small grass and forest fire at Prossertown, this side of Bellefonte, on Monday.

Andrew Zettle, who had been with a son, at Berwick, is among his children in and near Centre Hall.

If you are a Reporter subscriber and have changed your address or contemplate doing so in the near future, please notify this office by post card, giving both the present and the new address.

Mrs. Mary Flink, who presumed her physical condition sufficiently improved to be up and about, was ordered to bed by her physician who made it clear that a violation of his command might prove extremely detrimental to her.

Miss Freda Burkholder, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Burkholder, on Saturday, went to Williamsport where she is a guest of her sister, Miss Pauline Burkholder, a student in one of the commercial schools in that city.

The position of substitute clerk-carrier at the State College post office will be filled from a list of persons taking a civil service examination at State College. The time for securing blanks for taking the examination expired on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bartges and daughters, Tessie and Ina, accompanied by the Misses Marian Musser and Adah Smith, attended the ordination services in the Evangelical church at Newberry, at which time Rev. Woodrow Bartges, son of the former couple, was ordained a deacon.

Information is given out that Mrs. Shreckengust, widow of the late E. R. Shreckengust, and son Paul, will continue the mercantile business of the deceased husband and father, in Millheim, Austin, of Spring Mills, and Harold Hackenberg, of Rebersburg, took an inventory of the stock for appraisal purposes.

The Rev. Arthur Yeagy is the new Lutheran minister on the Sugar Valley pastorate. Rev. Yeagy was given a reception by members of his several congregations and presented with a gavel, significant of leadership, made from a sugar tree—the species of tree from which Sugar Valley derives its name. Refreshments were served.

John Gruenwald announces another sale of South Dakota horses and mules for Saturday March 26, at one o'clock, at the Benner barn, Centre Hall. A full description of the animals will be found in an advertisement and also on posters. Mr. Gruenwald announces this will be the last load of horses to be shipped by him this spring.

Hoyle Neff and family recently moved to the Behn farm on the east side of the Bear Meadows road leading south from State Highway Route No. 322, a short distance east of Boalsburg. Mr. Neff purchased the farm, a very desirable one, furnished with electricity and running water in the house, all buildings in good repair and well painted.

The administrators of the estate of W. H. Long sold the farm of the estate in Haines township at private sale to D. Z. Anglin of Shamokin. The sales price has not been made public. At a public sale the farm had been bid up to $1200, but the administrators would not accept that sum. The inference is that Mr. Anglin paid more than the sale bid quoted.

Frances, a young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Slack at Coburn, recently contracted scarlet fever. Mr. Slack is a producer of a considerable quantity of milk handled by the Sheffield company and consequently was obliged to remove his herd of cows to the barn of a neighbor. The neighbor also milks them and handles the milk until the rooster calls.

Mrs. Eliza Meyer continues to be confined to bed and gradually growing weaker, although cheerful and bright. A nurse is with her constantly. Mrs. Meyer and her son, John D. Meyer, live in Tyrone. The mother, more than ninety years old, is the widow of the late David J. Meyer, who with his family lived in Centre Hall for many years.

David Geiss, of Philadelphia, was a brief caller at this office on Saturday on his way to Bellefonte to visit his mother, Mrs. D. W. Geiss, a patient in the Centre County hospital at this time where she underwent a goiter operation. Mr. Geiss, lives with his aunt, Mrs. Virginia Miller, and is employed by the Brown Can company, recently organized, whose chief product is the manufacture of sanitary vessels.

Daniel Daup, one of Centre Hall's oldest citizens from point of age, celebrated his eighty-second birthday on Thursday. There was no demonstration aside from well-wishing by the immediate family and a few friends who recalled the date of the event. Mr. Daup is president of the First National Bank of Centre Hall and takes a lively interest in local affairs as he has done since becoming a resident of the town a number of years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Priest and daughter, Janet, with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Frank and Junior Frank as guests, motored to Muncy to see the "Last Raft" float down the Susquehanna River. They were greatly surprised on reaching the railroad bridge near Muncy to find the raft had met with an accident with dire results, on striking the piers of the bridge. Others from here who viewed the wrecked raft were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Homan, Bud Coldron and Newton Crawford.

Mrs. R. W. Colyer of Potters Mills, who had been at a Philadelphia hospital for a number of weeks, but returned home again, is gradually gaining strength.

THROUGH BROAD AND BEAUTIFUL ENTRYWAYS VISITORS WILL PASS TO THE NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK. (Special).—Forty thousand persons an hour—visitors from every state and every nation—must be accommodated in comfort at but one of the entryways to the New York World's Fair of 1939, according to arrangements the Fair Corporation is completing to handle a maximum daily attendance of 800,000. The artist's drawing, as reproduced above, calls for a magnificent double-decked entryway with underpasses, overpasses, pedestrian walks, bus terminals, comfort stations and bridge connections assuring comfort while providing an area of architectural splendor.

Shown is a ramp leading from the exposition grounds toward the I.R.T.-B.M.T. subway terminal, at a point where it is necessary to cross over the Long Island railroad tracks and to avoid undue congestion of pedestrian traffic. Shown in the left foreground is a domed restaurant within a fountain basin and a concourse bordered by grown plane-trees, and, nearer, an open-air cafe and an information kiosk. Along the flanking walls the artist has delineated the Fair's world concept which looks to the building of a peaceful, happier World of Tomorrow.

A Snack With The Roaster

For a hearty snack that's easy to prepare, try hamburgers broiled in the electric roaster.

By Louise Brown IT'S A SAFE bet that everyone likes hamburgers. There's nothing frilly or fancy about them—but they do hit the spot.

The next time you ask the gang in after the movies, or want a quick Sunday night snack after a ride in the country, or Sally brings the high school bunch home after the game—try broiled hamburgers in your electric roaster. I assure you they'll be met with cheers.

Hamburgers

Ground beef (according to the number to be served) Salt Pepper Chopped onion

Season the freshly ground beef to taste with salt, pepper, and finely chopped onion—a dash of curry powder is good, too. To make the cakes, place the meat on a piece of heavy waxed paper, flatten slightly and cover with another sheet of waxed paper. Roll with a rolling pin until the meat is the desired thickness (1/2 to 3/4 inch). Then lift off the top paper, and with a large sharp-edged cookie-cutter, cut rounds of the meat. Attach the broiler of the electric roaster, and when it has heated sufficiently, place the meat cakes on the rack and broil to the desired degree of doneness, letting them brown on one side and then turning them.

If you prefer, the hamburgers can be pan broiled in the insert pan of the roaster. Heat the roaster to 450 degrees F., grease the bottom of the pan slightly and place the cakes in it. Brown and cook as desired.

Have ready a supply of round buttered buns, lettuce, sliced tomatoes, pickle relish, mustard and mayonnaise—invite the guests out to the kitchen and let each one put his own sandwich together. Or rather "sandwiches" for no one will stop with one of these tasty hamburgers. Have a selection of hot and cold beverages with cookies or doughnuts for dessert.

One grand thing about the roaster is that it can be attached at any convenience outlet so you can move it in to the dining room table or to the recreation room for your informal party. Broiling is easy this way and not at all messy—you needn't worry about splattering grease. And your guests will get a kick out of this kind of cooking if you let them help
