Van Dyke, for many years prominent in Pennsylvania Democratic politics and once mentioned for the gubernatorial nomination, died Wednesday night of last week in Johns Hopkins hospital at the age of 61. Death resulted from uremic poisoning.

The secretary was brought to Baltimore from Venice, Fla., March 1, after pneumonia weakened his heart. He was stricken Dec. 12, soon after he officiated at a road dedication at Chambersburg, Pa.

Mr. Van Dyke was prominently connected with the Methodist church in Harrisburg, where he taught a class for ten years and was formerly the superintendent.

She was a daughter of William and Mary Weber Witmer and was born in Ferguson township September 5, 1850, making her age at death 87 years, 10 months and 22 days.
She was the widow of Aaron Thomas, who died in Centre Hall March 8, 1926. Except for a few years, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas lived in Centre Hall all of their married life. There are two children who died at maturity—John, while in service during the Spanish-American war, and Calvin, April 11, 1927. There survive the deceased two daughters, Miss Jennie, who lived with her mother, and Mrs. W. W. Reitz, of Bath, New York.

Mrs. Thomas was long a member of the Reformed church, and her pastor, Rev. D. R. Keener, performed the funeral rites on Saturday afternoon. Burial was made in the family plot at Centre Hall.

WETZLER.—Frank L. Wetzler, son of Centre county's best known residents, died at his home in Milesburg, Sunday morning at 5 o'clock after a six-weeks' illness. He was in his 65th year.
Suffering from a heart ailment since an illness in the fall of 1935 that confined him to his home for six months, Mr. Wetzler was taken ill suddenly March 23 of this year. His condition grew steadily worse from that time.
Mr. Wetzler was born in Bellefonte and at his death was aged 67 years, 10 months and 10 days. He lived in Milesburg nearly all of his life where he conducted a general store and undertaking establishment.

A wife, formerly Elizabeth Ann Lingle, and these children survive him: Malcolm L. and Ruth, at home; Mrs. Wm. Bortorf, Clearfield, as does also a brother, John L. Wetzler, county register of wills.

Mr. Wetzler devoted much of his time to teaching music on band instruments and organized several groups of boys and girls into bands and made their organizations popular.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday and burial made at Curtin.

TEACHERS UNWISELY OPPOSE

TEACHER TENURE LAW
The State Teachers' League, meeting in Harrisburg Saturday, went on record as opposed to any effort to amend the teacher tenure law.

Amendments proposed at a State meeting of directors held in Harrisburg several months ago include establishment of a probationary period to be served by a teacher before becoming eligible to the protected position guaranteed by the tenure bill; granting to school boards discretion in the matter of employing married women as teachers; adding insubordination to permissible causes for dismissal; and validation of the discharge of teachers for reasons of economy.

All these suggestions were born of experience with the tenure bill in its first year of application. To a large degree they reflected, as well, public opinion toward the bill. There is much dissatisfaction with the bill in its present form. It would seem that the wiser course for teacher organizations would be to accept reasonable change in the bill, rather than to invite strong opposition to it in its entirety by objecting to any modification.

At the dinner to be given by the Centre County Sportsmen's Federation of clubs, prizes will be given, and short talks will be made. The dinner will be held Tuesday evening, 6:30 o'clock, in the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A. building.

Cheaper Cuts Of Meat Are Tastier
When Cooked Electrically

Cheaper cuts of meat, with proper cooking, make deliciously satisfying meals. Above, is steamed steak with vegetables, accompanied by potatoes steamed in the deep well cooker.

By LOUISE BROWN

IT'S perfectly true, as most housewives know, that the cheaper cuts of meat, when properly cooked, have a delicious flavor and tenderness. They require longer, slower cooking than the better cuts—but, on the other hand, they need very simple preparation and little or no attention during cooking. This is especially true if you are cooking electrically.

Steamed Steak with Vegetables.
Suppose you want to braise or fricassee a piece of beef, this is the very easy method to follow.

Have your butcher cut a rump steak 1½ to 2 inches thick. Perhaps this is one of the days that he has a "special" on this cut of meat—and even though it is a lower grade of beef, it makes delectable food, properly cooked.

For cooking on the surface unit of the range, use a skillet with a tight-fitting lid. Place it on the large unit of the range, add 3 tablespoons of fat and turn the switch to High. When the fat has melted, put the steak in the skillet, brown it well on one side, and turn. Add 4 cups of coarsely diced vegetables—potatoes, celery, carrots, onions, turnips—or whatever you like. Salt and pepper to taste and add ½ cup water. Put the cover on the skillet and when steam comes from the vent or around the sides, turn the heat to Low and cook for 20 minutes. Then the switch may be turned to Off—do not remove the cover, but allow the meat to continue cooking for 30 minutes on the heat that is stored in the unit. Simplicity, itself, isn't it? It's an economical method, too, since meat and vegetables are cooked at one time—and the last part of the cooking is done on what might be called "free" heat.

Serve the meat on a hot platter with some of the vegetables as a garnish, leaving the rest in the gravy which should be thickened slightly.

Steamed Potatoes
If you wish potatoes as a separate vegetable with this meal, place them in the steam cooker with the rack in place. Salt, and add ½ cup of water. Turn the switch to High, and when steam escapes from the vent, turn the heat to Low and cook for 30 to 45 minutes, depending on the size of the potatoes and the quantity.

The steam, or deep well, cooker is a very useful and versatile part of the modern electric range. You can cook one vegetable—or a whole meal in it, and its controlled heat maintains just the right simmering temperature to give foods that require slow cooking a luscious flavor.

By the way, if you happen to be in a range buying frame of mind, and are shopping around, you'll be interested to know that between April 11 and 30 there's a National Spring Showing of electric ranges. There'll be displays in your local dealers' showrooms.
