The route was through Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, and back into Ohio and Pennsylvania. The two couples were out on a purely sightseeing tour and made no stops with friends or relatives.

E. A. Frank brought his son, Ernest and companions, Warren Lutz and Donald Wagner, home from Camp Newark, at Biglerville, Adams county, on Monday, after having been under religious training for two weeks. The camp is conducted by the Lutheran church and is one of the most complete in equipment and instruction operated by that denomination. The entire expense was borne by the respective parents of the boys. Mr. Frank was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Frank and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Kryder Frank.

Helen Smith, nine years old, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Frank Smith, narrowly escaped serious injury Friday evening when she was hit by a sedan operated by Samuel Klinefelter, of Potter township. The slight injury to the child, who ran in front of the Klinefelter car, from between cars parked to the front of the W. H. Homan home, was due to the fact that the vehicle was traveling at a very slow speed. The force, however, was sufficient to knock the child to the ground, having been hit on the leg by car bumper. Helen was picked up by a companion, and after being calmed was taken by Mr. Klinefelter to the office of Dr. Light, where her father met her and took her home. Next morning Helen was about, but she will watch motor cars closer than ever in the future.

Creighton Wheeland, Jr., of Bellefonte, was recently accepted for enlistment in the United States Army and is now at Fort Slocum, New York, and from there will sail to the Hawaiian Islands by way of the Panama Canal and San Francisco. Several openings are available for qualified young men at Hawaii and Panama. Those who are fortunate enough to be accepted can look forward to many delightful experiences and at the same time prepare themselves for better jobs when they return to civilian life. All this at government expense. One of the Army slogans is "Earn, Learn, Travel." Every red-blooded American boy should have some military experience. He is bound to return to civilian life a better man in every way. Applicants for enlistment should apply in person if possible, at the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, which is located in the Lewistown Post Office building, second floor.

Creating Fine Perfumes
The time and talent required to create a fine perfume is exemplified by a well-known Parisian scent whose formula, calling for forty-eight different essences, took more than two years of painstaking experimentation.—Collier's Weekly.

Oar Has Many Parts
An oar is a simple device, but each section has its own name. The handle, leather, blade and tip are known to all, but the shaft between handle and blade is called the loom—and where the loom joins the handle, the neck.

Keeping Summer Clothes Looking Like New

The children's little dresses and suits can be done on the electric ironer just as well as larger garments. Pleats, such as this frock has, can be pressed straight and crisp looking—you smooth a group of pleats into position, press with the ironer on "press" or "stop," move to the next group of pleats, and so on.

BY LOUISE BROWN
Will it wash and iron? That's the question we ask of our summer clothes we buy for ourselves and our families. Cotton clothes were never more fascinating than they are this year—play clothes from California, gay dirndls with the peasant influence, crisp street clothes, glamorous evening whimsies—are all made of cottons. The children's little suits and frocks are made of bright wash materials, and the men folks go in for linen suits, cotton slacks and shirts. We like to look smart and attractive and feel cool in these light clothes, but we want things that can be kept fresh looking with a minimum of trouble. When shopping, don't be led astray by things that look well when new but are decidedly perishable. Look for the labels that indicate whether fabrics are colorfast and Sanforized—Shrunk. Choose things with a "permanent finish" that will stand repeated trips to the wash tub. And select garments that will iron easily and well so that they look like new each time. EASY SUMMER IRONING With an ironer on hand, the summer clothes problem is much easier. You needn't hesitate to try garments on the ironer—with a little practice you will soon be skillful in doing all your ironing this way. The roll, or the surface of the flat ironer, is used as you would the ironing board, smoothing out one section of the garment, moving the heated shoe up to iron it, adjusting another section and ironing—and so on. When you use the ironer, you bring the shoe in contact with the material merely by touching a control. There's none of that picking the iron up and setting it down that gets so tiresome. And best of all, you are sitting down as you do your ironing! What a comfort that is! Your own summer frocks can easily be done on the ironer. And you can give your husband's wash suits a professional finish with a little practice—the ironer is grand for pressing wash trousers. The ironer can be used for small things such as the children's diminutive suits and dresses, just as well as larger garments, and that's something to appreciate when the laundry bag is full of grubby little play clothes. The ironer is certainly one answer to plenty of fresh light clothes with a minimum of work.
