COUNTY SCHOOLS RECEIVE THE STATE APPROPRIATION

The schools in Centre county received a total of $120,752.82 as the appropriation for the first half of 1938. Districts on the south side of the county received these sums:

MARRIED WOMEN TEACHERS.

(Editorial, Williamsport Sun) The Educational Committee of the House of Representatives has an opportunity to approve an amendment to the Teachers' Tenure Act for which there is considerable public sentiment. There has been referred to it a bill offered by the member from Mifflin county adding marriage of a woman to the list of causes for which a school board may terminate a teaching contract.

Whether or not married women should be allowed to retain their positions is a controversial question. In Johnstown, the school board holds that the readiness of married women to keep their teaching jobs is detrimental to the teaching profession and thwarts younger teachers by denying them opportunities to obtain positions or to win advancement. The board has requested the resignations of thirty married teachers, but six of whom have complied.

The situation might be met by granting to school boards discretionary authority in this matter. There are instances in which the retention Mills of a woman teacher after her marriage might be highly desirable, in which case the board should be allowed to continue her contract. There are many instances in which the assumption by a woman teacher of her right to continue on the public payroll after her marriage arouses community feeling and conflicts with the opinion of the board, in which case, it would seem, the board should have the right to decide.

While the education committee is considering this feature of the tenure act, it might at the same time consider another change which has been advocated and which some of the state's educators favor, this being the designation of a probationary period to be served by a teacher before acquiring the protection which tenure
