A COLLECTION OF NEWSY HAPPENINGS AND PERSONALS FROM GREGG TWP.'S METROPOLIS.

GREGG TWP. SCHOOL BUILDING INFORMATION

Officials of the Gregg Township School District were notified on Thursday of last week that the preliminary drawings for the proposed new school building at Spring Mills, were on the above date taken to school officials at Harrisburg, by Hunter & Caldwell, registered architects of Altoona, who were employed by the district to prepare plans for the proposed new building unit. The architects advised the district that all necessary forms and plans have been submitted, in order to make application for the building under the Thompson Plan.

The Department previously approved Gregg Township as a complete attendance area, centralized at Spring Mills, where it is proposed to erect a new building, in order to accommodate all the pupils in the township, both elementary and secondary. An elementary and junior-senior high school programs would be set up in the new plan.

The details of the proposed building must be worked out in conjunction with the School Buildings Bureau at Harrisburg, and it is expected that the preliminary drawings, now submitted, will form the basis for final approval on the building. Final approval was secured several weeks ago in connection with the Financial and Curriculum problems of the district.

The proposed building would be constructed under the terms of the Thompson Plan, whereby the local district would pay twenty-two percent of the total cost of the building and equipment, with the State and Federal Governments paying the remaining 78 percent. It is expected that approximately 1000 new school buildings will be constructed throughout the State as a result of the passage of the Thompson Act.

FIRST COMMUNITY SALE IN CENTRE HALL A SUCCESS

The first community sale in Centre Hall conducted by S. T. Riegel, at his newly equipped sales place, the former Sheffield Milk plant near Old Fort, on Tuesday, was a signal success. The attendance was quite large, and all stock, except horses, passed at very fair prices. In only a few instances was there a lack of sufficient bidding to effect a sale. Horses, milch cows, bologna cattle, young cattle, sheep, hogs, etc. were offered.

The accommodations at the new sales place are ample to carry on the project to the satisfaction of the individual parties furnishing stock, and the buyer. As time goes on there will be additional improvements made for the convenience of both.

SCHOOL A COMPLETE AMERICAN COMMUNITY

Pennsylvania's army of children and youth are entering school today which is more than ever a complete American community. As new needs have arisen for our pupils, society, under the leadership of our school folks, has endeavored to provide a learning environment suitable to prepare pupils for complete and abundant living. The new curriculum is cut to suit the individual contours of the learner's physical, vocational, intellectual, emotional, social and spiritual personality.

While the three R's and the conventional academic activities are an essential part of education, they are but a part. The new education is designed in new and broader terms. The gap between learning and life is being bridged. Schools are becoming more life-like, more vital. It is understandable to all who are engaged in the happy enterprise of education that for our children and youth, September no longer means "Unwillingly to School," but rather "Merrily to School."
