Mrs. T. M. Zuber and granddaughter, Mrs. Ray Bright of Spring Mills, on their way home from the county seat stopped in Centre Hall, the former paying her respects to the Reporter.

All the fingers of the left hand of Russell McGill, Nittany Valley farmer, were severed Thursday when the hand was caught in a circular saw as he was sawing wood for the butchering to take place at his home the following day. The injury was dressed at the Lock Haven hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hosterman this week received a shipment of Christmas holly from the former's brother, Dr. J. K. Hosterman, in Seattle, Washington. The holly grew in the backyard of Dr. Hosterman's home, and bears many more pretty red berries than does the commercial variety.

A group of local citizens, shy of their identity being made known publicly, interested in furthering the advancement of the high school band, and in appreciation of the efforts of Prof. David I. Graybill giving his time for instruction without financial remuneration, have raised a fund of approximately $50.00 as a partial reward for his voluntary service.

Miss Elizabeth Bartholomew motored to Altoona on Tuesday, taking with her Mrs. Daniel Bloom. The ladies shopped. On returning they brought back with them Mrs. Alda Bloom, who had been in Altoona for a week, called there due to the sudden illness and subsequent operation undergone by William M. Miller, her son-in-law.

Wm. M. Miller, an Altoona car shop workman, while at work on Wednesday or last week became ill and was taken to the Altoona City hospital where he underwent an operation for ulcers of the stomach. His condition is termed very favorable. Mr. Miller has been in poor health for a few years. He is well known here, being a brother-in-law of Dan Bloom of near town.

Among the Reporter's callers on Tuesday was Mrs. Sylvia Grenoble of Spring Mills, who with her daughter, Miss Margaret, motored to Centre Hall on business. Miss Margaret is a junior in the school of music, Susquehanna University, at Selinsgrove, and is being recognized by fellow students, having been elected president of one or more college student organizations and stands high in her scholastic work.
